Discussing Much-Fought-Over Point of His Alleged Nervousness on the Morning of the Murder, Superintendent Admits It Freely, Declaring That Any Man in His Place Would Have Been Similarly Affected-Speaks Bitterly of His Treatment by Members of Detective Force, and Says That One Reason Why He Would Not Consent to Meet Conley Was That the Officers Would Have Distorted His Words.

MOTHER AND WIFE OF DEFENDANT EMBRACE HIM WHEN HE LEAVES STAND

Declares Story of Conley Was a Lie From Beginning to End, and Denies Charge of Miss Jackson That He Ever Looked Into Dressing Room of Girl Employees—He Tells of Mary Phagan Coming to Office to Get Her Pay Envelope Shortly After Noon on April 26. Says That He Gave Detectives Clue That Conley Could Write, Which Led to Arrest of Negro Sweeper-No Fund Raised for His Defense, He Asserts.

"Some newspaper man has called me 'The Silent Man in the Tower." Gentlemen, this is the time and here is the place! I have told you the truth, the whole truth and nothing but the truth!"

Thus did Leo M. Frank dramatically conclude his remarkable statement of nearly four hours, during which time he was in turn explicit as to detail of his doings on the day of the murder, argumentative when explaining some point which had looked dark for him, tender when referring to his wife and his home life, bitter when he told of the treatment he had received at the hands of the detective department.

It was in all essentials the most remarkable statement which has ever been delivered in a courtroom in the south. Through the four hours that he was talking there was not the slightest trace of nervousness, not a tremor of the hands, even when conveying a glass of water to his lips. He was perfectly poised, convincingly clear in his statements, the man unafraid.

When he concluded a hush fell over the courtroom. His wife and nother, who had been hanging on his every word, fell forward on his neck d the pent-up tears flowed freely.

The statement carried the ring of truth in every sentence, and scores in the room whose minds had not been made up left the room convinced

MASTER OF HIMSELF.

Shortly before court convened for the afternoon session Frank was chatting with his wife and some friends in the ante-room. He had just had his throat treated for an extremely bad cold which he contracted some days ago. With this exception he stated to a newspaper man that he was New York, August 18.—Sundown to- feeling fine—that he felt no nervousness, and that he expected to be on the stand fully three hours.

Shortly after 2 o'clock Frank took the stand. The courtroom was packed. Scores of friends who have stood by him in his dark days of seek him not as the slayer of Stanford confinement clustered near. His devoted mother and his faithful wife, her sisters and cousins, sat where they could see him clearly,

He began his statement with a swift account of his life and then hurried forward to the events of the fatal day when Mary Phagan entered the office of the National Pencil company for the last time.

He told in detail of his movements and activities that day. From time On such a technicality does New York state base its hope of bringing to time he referred to the financial statement and to various papers on which he says he worked that day. These papers he went over carefully, bout the fugitive's return. Both facions of the double-barreled govern-nent at Albany have promised rigid item by item, figure by figure. He stood facing the jury and talked to them very much as if he were addressing a board of directors before whom he was presenting some proposition demanding explanation.

For some two hours he dwelt on the technical details of the factory to show just how much time it would have taken him to make up the financial statement, and he explained in minute fashion the source from which each thing tangible had come except a item was derived.

MARY PHAGAN. He told of little Mary Phagan entering his office to receive her pay, of her going out and then returning to inquire if the metal had come. As she left for the last time he spoke of having heard what he thought was a woman's voice, but of this he said he could not be positive.

He visualized for the jury his work of that afternoon and of his trip to and from home; of how he spent Saturday evening. Of the early morning ride to the undertaking establishment and of his alleged nervousness he said:

"A good deal has been said of my nervousness that morning. I admit it. I was nervous. Think of it, gentlemen. I was awakened at an early hour, rushed downtown in an automobile going at top speed. I had had no breakfast. I witnessed this poor child-this young girl in the first flush of womanhood-dead and mutilated. Gentlemen, the sight was enough to make any man nervous. It would have touched any man not made of stone." Frank then told of his visit to the detective department and of his second visit to the undertaking establishment that afternoon.

Of his experience with the Atlanta detective department he spoke with trace of bitterness. He described the manner in which he says John Black administered the third degree to Newt Lee. He said the manner in which he shrieked at and cursed the negro was something awful. Of the criticism that he would not talk to detectives or to Conley, he

Climax of Trial Reached When Frank Faced Jury

The climax of the Frank trial came at the afternoon session Monday when Leo M. Frank took the stand to tell of his actions on the day of the murder.

The accused man's statement was clear, concise and straightforward. He talked in smooth, even tones, punctuating his statement with emphatic gestures of the arms and fingers. He had more the appearance of an attorney making a jury speech instead of an accused man making a plea for life and liberty.

It was a dramatic story, marked by the straightforward delivery of the prisoner. A hush settled over the room throughout his recital and he was able to talk in an ordinary voice and make himself heard all over the

The following is the first verbatim report of his statement to be pub-

"Now, Mr. Frank," said Mr. Arnold, "such papers as you want to use you can come down here at any time or from time to time and get them on

"Before you commence your statement," prompted the judge, "I want to read the law. In criminal procedure, the prisoner will have the right to make to the court and jury such statement in thes case as he may deem proper in his defense. It shall not be under oath and shall have such force as the jury shall think right to give it. They may believe it in preference to the sworn testimony in the case. The prisoner shall not be compelled to answer any questions on cross-examination. He should feel free to decline 26. to answer them. Now you can make such statement as you see fit."

"Gentlemen of the jury," the accused man began, "in 1884, the 17th day of April, I was born in Terrell, Texas. At the age of 3 months my parents took me to Brooklyn, N. Y., which became my home until I came south, to Atlanta, to make my home here. I attended the public schools of Brooklyn and prepared for college in Pratt institute, Brooklyn, N. Y.

'In the fall of 1902 I entered Cornell university, where I took the course of mechanical engineering, graduating after four years, in June, 1906. I then accepted a position as draughtsman with the B. F. Sturdevant company, of Hyde Park, Mass. After remaining with this firm for about six months I returned once more to my home in Brooklyn, where I accepted a position as testing engineer and draughtsman with the National Meter company, of

I remained with these parties until about the middle of October, 1907 when at the invitation of some citizens of Atlanta I came south to confer with them with reference to the starting and operation of a pencil factory located in Atlanta. After remaining here for about two weeks returned once more to New York, where I engaged passage and went to Europe. I remained in Europe nine months. During my sojourn abroad I studied the pencil business and looked after the erection and testing of machinery which had been previously traded for.

CAME TO ATLANTA IN AUGUST, 1908.

"In the first part of August, 1908, I returned once more to America, and immediately came south, to Atlanta, which has remained my home ever since. I married in Atlanta an Atlanta girl, Miss Lucille Selig. The major portion of my married life has been spent in the home of my parents-in-law Mr. and Mrs. E. Selig, at No. 68 East Georgia avenue. My married life has been exceptionally happy, indeed, it has been the happiest days of

"My duties as superintendent of the National Pencil company were in general as follows: I took charge of the technical and mechanical end of the factory, looking after the processes and seeing that the product was turned out in quality equal to the standard which was set by our competitors. I looked after the installation of new machinery, and the purchasing of any machinery, and in addition I had charge of the office work at the

Forsyth street plant and the lead plant on Bell street. 'I looked after the purchasing of the raw material. I saw after the manufacture of pencils and kept up with the market of these materials, and when the prices fluctuated so that the purchases could be made to the best possible advantage.

WHAT HE DID

"On Friday, April 25, I arrived at the pencil factory on Forsyth street at about 7 o'clock, my usual time. I immediately started in on my regular routine work, looking over the papers I had laid out the evening before and attending to any work that needed my special attention that morning.

"At about 9:30 I went over to the office of the general manager and treasurer, Mr. Sigmund Montag, whose office is at Montag Brothers, on Nelson street. I stayed over there a short time, and got what papers had arrived in the mail-all the mail of the pencil factory comes over to their office. I got that mail and brought it back to the Forsyth street office. then separated the mail and continued in my usual routine duties in the office on Forsyth street. "At about 11 o'clock Mr. Schiff handed me the pay roll book, covering the plants at Forsyth street and Bell street, for me to check over and see if the amounts and extensions were correct. Of course, this work has to be very carefully done, so that the proper amount of money is drawn from the bank. This checking took me until about 12:20 p. m. "I then went over to Montag Brothers, took the checks drawn and had them signed by Mr. Sig Montag, after which I returned to Forsyth street and got the leather bag in which I usually carried the money and the coin from the bank, and got the payroll slip, on which the various denominations which I desired to have on the payroll were made out, and went, accompanied

"While I was so occupied with Mr. Schiff in filling the envelopes, young man named Wright who had helped us out in the office as clerk during the past week came in and I paid him in cash, as Mr. Schiff had neglected to put his name on the payroll. I just made out a ticket and put it in the payroll box, not the cash box, and continued in the office with Mr. Schiff, taking all the envelopes that were due the help that had worked from April 18 to April 24, inclusive, to pay them through the window in one side of the office. "I noticed a shortage of about $1.20, or something over a dollar, at any rate, and I kept checking to see if I could find the shortage in the various deductions which had been made. I could not locate it that evening, after the help had been paid off, during which time I stayed in my office. No one came into my office and asked me for the envelope or for an envelope of any other party.

"After the paying off of the help had taken place Mr. Schiff returned and handed me the envelopes which were left over, bound with an elastic band, and I put them in the cash compartment, which is different from the cash box, the key to which is kept in my cash box, and placed them in the safe, and Mr. Schiff placed the amounts in the box, and placed the box in the safe and left them.

"Of all the mathematical work in the office of a pencil factory, this very operation, this very piece of work that from I have now before me, is the most important. It is the invoices covering shipments and is sent to the customer, and it is very important that the prices are correct, that the amount of goods shipped agrees win the amount which is on the invoices, that the terms are correct, and that the price is correct. "They came before I finished dressing. At this point I differ with the detectives, Black and Starnes, about where the conversation took place. They say it was after we were in the machine. I say it was before we left the house, before my wife. At any rate, here is what was said:

They asked me if I knew Mary to see if I could identify the body. They made the trip to the undertaking establishment very quickly. I went in and stood in the doorway. The attendant removed the sheet from the little girl's face and turned the head toward me. His finger was right.

"I then took the financial sheet that the little girl's face and turned the head toward me. His finger was right by the cut on the head. I noticed her nostrils were filled with dirt and cinders and there were several discolorations. I noticed a piece of cord around her neck, the kind we used in the pencil factory. MIDDLE-AGED WOMAN TELLS OF FLIRTING OF FACTORY GIRLS

Mrs. Mattle Thompson, a woman of over middle age and an employee of the factory, was among those put on the stand to testify to Leo Frank's character and also about the alleged flirting carried on by some of the girls from the windows of the dress-

I never peered into the girls' dressing rooms, peered into the girls dressing rooms as Irene Jackson testifies. It is noth-ing more than a room in which the girls change outer garments. I had learned that girls flirted from the window and I wanted to break up the practice.

I never looked into that room at any time when I had reasons to suspect that girls were dressing or un-dressing therein. The employees are supposed to be through undressing at o'clock in the morning.

Mr. Glynn declined to say whether a date had been appointed for such a meeting, adding that it made little difference, as a considerable time must intervene before contracts can be awarded. Searching for Thaw's Assistants

Second only to the search for Thay that for Richard J. These five did the "rough work." Who was the brains of the plot—whether Thaw himself or some astute lawyer-will have to be developed later.

The description of Butler tallies closely with that of an ex-assembly-man of the same name, from New York city. William Gordon, proprie-tor of the little hotel at Fishkill Landing, where the five made their headquarters for two days prior to Thaw's escape, identified tonight a photograph of the ex-assemblyman as one of his late guests. The clerk of the hotel bore him out. In New York trace was found of a Butler of the same initials, familiarly known as "Hooks," said of late to have operated taxlcabs and formerly to have been a longshoreman. Ex-Assemblyman Butler is said to have been identified with the longshoremen's union. Mrs. Butler said to-night that her hsuband was absent from home from Friday afternoon until Sunday night last. She did not know where he had gone.

FOREIGN BEEF.

Some criticism has met the action of the department of agriculture in sending Dr. A. D. Melvin and Edward C. Joss, of the bureau of animal industry, to Argentina and Australia to investigate beef production in those countries.

It is difficult to see the justification for such criticism. This action of the department is not, as has been supposed, an attempt to encourage foreign importations, but to safeguard such shipments as will be made under the new tariff law.

Undoubtedly advantage will be taken by foreign countries of the new law which admits cattle and meat products free of duty. But it is feared many foreign shipments will not come up to the high standard fixed by the meat inspection laws of the United States, which are much more rigid than those of other countries.

Secretary Houston, in the effort to prevent confusion and the condemnation of large meat shipments, with the bad feeling which would be engendered has wisely foreseen these difficulties, and seeks to disseminate information as to America's

The department of agriculture will cooperate with the treasury department in keeping out meats from diseased animals, and that prepared improperly and in insanitary packing houses.

Failure of southern farmers to raise enough meat supplies for their own use and for sale is expected to encourage foreign importations. Secretary Houston, in discussing this point, says:

"The work for tick eradication in single states of the south has increased the annual value of cattle output more than $2,000,-000 for a few counties alone. that when greater headway has been made against these plagues the deficiency in catproduction will be overcome and an increase to meet the population will be obtained. In the meanwhile, however, with the demand for meat greater than the domestic supply, it is only a question of time when economic law will cause foreign shippers to seek a market in the United States." The southern farmer who raises a few beef cattle and a dozen head of hogs will have no reason to complain of competition from Argentina or Australia.

A NEWSPAPER FEAT!

Mr. M. H. de Young, the owner and manager of The San Francisco Chronicle. has absorbed his republican morning rival, The Call, and henceforth the morning newspaper field in the city by the Golden Gate will be occupied by The Chronicle-Call and The Examiner.

The success of Mr. de Young in the newspaper field has been inspiring and he of diners one night. Ten thousand persons has helped to make the fame of many notable literary men . the Pacific coast. The paper is today one of the most influential and forceful journals in the west.

Mark Twain made his headquarters in The Chronicle office, and wrote there his famous Carson Appeal letters. Stories that were destined to make Bret Harte famous appeared first in The Chronicle. Prentis Mulford, who wrote under the nom de plume of "Dogberry," and Charles E. Northrup, were contributors. Charles Warren Stoddard circled the world writing let ters for The Chronicle. Other contributors were W. A. Kendall and Mrs. Washington | tographers to take his picture in heroic at-Wright, who wrote under the pen name of "Topsy Turvy," and Edward Townsend, who originated "Chimmie Fadden."

The Call was founded in 1856, nine ; ears before The Chronicle, but under the ownership of John D. Spreckles, has not been a money-maker. I hat the new Chronicle will continue to expand in influence and power FOSS' LAST FLOP.

Governor Eugene N. Foss of Massachusetts, one time republican, then democratic representative in congress and later democratic governor of Massachusetts, has again turned republican.

The tariff is at the bottom of Mr. Foss' latest change of faith. He is imbued with the New England idea of tariff revision, which is high protection on manufactured goods and low duties, or none at all, on raw materials the manufacturer uses. He also favors free food products for industrial communities.

Recently Governor Foss startled his party colleagues by declaring that he would move one of his plants to Canada because of the pending tariff bill. Just how this move nearer the Canadian market, and made to escape the payment of Canadian duties, was a blow at the Underwood-Simmons tariff bill, he did not satisfactorily explain. There was something in his statement of the case about reciprocity, but it was not clear.

Mr. Foss has now gone over lock, stock, and factory, to the republicans and will again fraternize with his brother, George Edmund Foss, formerly republican representative from the Tenth Illinois.

While critics of the democratic tariff bill were predicting that American factories would move abroad, an unexpected defender appeared in Germany in Dr. Schweighoffer, secretary of the Central League of German manufacturers.

This advocate of high protection for Germany sees in the lowering of American import duties the rejuvenation of American industries and a more determined campaign for foreign trade.

In his own country there is at present a widespread and growing demand for the reduction or abolition of duties on foodstuffs for men and animals, such as the Underwood bill carries. High prices of meat in Germany have become a great evil.

One correspondent relates that last year, owing to the failure of the hay crop of 1911, the national and municipal governments of Germany were forced to import meat and sell it at cost to the poor of the great cities. This course was attacked by the farmers, the government defending its action by the statement that duties were paid at the border and later refunded.

While the United States has undoubted ly entered upon a decidedly new economic policy in reducing protective duties, and free listing breakfast table supplies, the country at large believes it will be successful, and that it will help to lower the cost of living.

THE CIVIL SERVICE.

Despite the change in administration, democratic applicants for places under the federal government are finding themselves brought face to face with a stone wall in the civil service law.

As an illustration, examinations were held in the five larger Georgia cities last Saturday for positions in the internal revenue service. It will probably occasion surprise to know that these places have been covered under the civil service, and that the collector must appoint his assistants from the list of those who have successfully passed the required examination.

Under the new tariff law the work of the internal revenue service will be greatly enlarged to include the collection of income taxes. At present one-third of the receipts of the government are derived from internal revenues. The figures for the last fiscal year were $344,424,453. This will be increased by approximately $100,000,000 by

To handle this large volume of business requires honest, efficient and capable men. and the merit system has been extended to control their selection.

For the past sixteen years democrats have hesitated to qualify themselves under the civil service, believing that they would not be given a fair showing under a republican administration. There is now no ground for such apprehension.

The spoils system has been abolished, and regardless of delinquencies in the administration of the civil service laws, it is a good thing for the country.

NEW YORK'S EXCISE LAW.

New York has been contributing a mirth-provoking farce for the amusement of the country during the dog days. Mayor Gaynor and District Attorney Whitman are at odds over the interpretation of the excise law. The practical results are ludicrousexcept to those involved.

Nighely at 1 o'clock the police raided Healey's restaurant, and bundled welldressed men and women unceremoniously into the street. The police claimed to be acting under the mayor's orders. The district attorney said it was not against the law to eat at 1:05 in the morning, or any other time.

The climax of the farce came when District Attorney Whitman joined the throng waited outside to see what would happen. No cabaret could compare in motion and bizarre features with what did happen. Promptly at 1 o'clock the crowd was roughly thrown out by the police, Mr. Whitman among the others. The mayor claimed the district attorney was "in the midst of and siding with a disorderly crowd." The mayor's statement continues: "The district attorney instigated this open and forcible resistance to the police. On Wednesday night he went to Healey's with a retinue of trained and brilliant writers to write him up and of flashlight photitude; and at 1 o'clock in the morning joined a mob which had been collected by concert to forcibly resist the police in doing their plain duty." The mysterious part of the affair is that one particular restaurant should have been chosen for the police raids, when others in the same district were probably keeping open after 1 o'clock.

Just Natural Mistakes.

Little mistakes will happen in the "make up" when the editor is rushed, thus the editor of The Caboo (Mo.) Enterprise regrets that he "got a portion of an article about Albert Claire's mule in the piece about Mrs. Marcellus' dinner;" and now comes the editor of The Adams Enterprise who says he is "mortifled to see that the piece he wrote about the decease of a prominent citizen, in which he said: 'He is gone where all is well,' should have appeared with an 'h' where the 'w' should have been in the word 'well.'" But he assures his readers that "mistakes like that sometimes happen in the best regulated newspaper offices."

The Danger Sign.

The poet of The Dalton Citizen, after a vacation in the country, gives this advice: "The bumble bee's a peaceful bird;

But take this tip from me: Unless you want your feelings stirred, Just let his 'bumble' be!"

Just Shoes. With "Shoes" for his text the philosopher The Chanute Tribune delivers the goods as follows:

"Makers of socks rejoice because shoes wear 'em out so quickly. Shoes are loved and ruined by bootblacks; hated by cats and newly wedded pairs, and abhorred by young boys. Shoes may be seen anywhere, under beds, on chandeliers, tied to cabs or resting at night and last on in the morning.

A Morning Note. Meet the glad morning on the way: Toss high yer hat and shout "Hooray!"

And thank God for another day! His Work Unfinished.

"I've done lost my office of judge of this here justice court," says a Billville lawgiver, "and not more'n one-third o' my enemies are in jail yit!"

Why He "Relapsed."

"His sickness was of long duration," says a Georgia weekly exchange, "but he got to where he was able to sit up and write a poem, and all might have gone well but for the fact that the editor to whom he sent it was able to return it by the next mail, and that gave him a relapse.

Report on Liquor Traffic May Mislead Some People By Sam W. Small.

The annual report of the commissioner of internal revenue, as noted in The Constitution recently, is replete with some noteworthy facts, especially with reference to the liquor trade of the nation

The people who are interested in temperance reform ought to know exactly what those facts mean. The first item that seizes public attention is that the reported consumption" of spirituous and malt liquors was larger last year by 7,000,000 gallons than in any other year of our recorded history.

That looks queer to those who know that over half of the people are living under prohibition laws and that seven-tenths of the area of the states is "dry territory." They jump

Sam W. Small. the conclusion that "prohibition is a failand say so with gleeful vehemence. Now let us examine the real conditions nd see what is the truth:
"Consumption," as used in the government report, does not mean that so many millions of gallons of liquors have been actually sold and drank by the public means the amount of liquor that paid the internal revenue taxes and was withdrawn from government custody.

Take whisky as an instance. It is overproduced. Last year there were in the bonded warehouses, without a market, 263,785,831 gallons of distilled spirits, "the largest on record," said the commissioner in his report. Within the fiscal year just ended 3,663,507 gallons of that had exhausted the eight years bonding privilege and had to be withdrawn by operation of law; and so was added to "consumption," though simply transferred from government warehouses to private storage houses. Today there is enough whisky in government warehouses to supply the national demand for two and a half years if every distillery were closed down forever on the present instant.

The increase of malt liquors for the year amounted to less than the reported decrease of like liquors in several preceding years, and is accounted for both by immigration of beer drinkers and increased ad vertising activity by the beer makers in the states that produce most of the nation's beer

This year, for the first time in a quarter of a century, the number of retail liquor dealers has fallen below 200,000-and that includes all druggists, hotels and restaurants, clubs, compounders of patent medi cines, perfumes, etc. Also there are 600 fewer wholesale dealers this year than last The decrease of retailers for the year was the enormous number of 21,554, being the largest falling off in our history.

In any other industry these figures would be immediately accepted as proof of a tremendous shrinkage of trade. Why not in this case also?

The decreases above noted were almost wholly in states that are "dry" or near dry. I have figured the classes state by state and can furnish the official proof.

Few people seem to know that over onehalf of all the retail liquor dealers under the American flag are in six states—New York, New Jersey, Pennsylvania, Illinois, Wisconsin and California! Ten northern and western states contain over two-thirds of the total number.

More than half the brewers are found in five northern states; more than half the retail beer dealers are in eight northern states. The large consumption of liquors is in the great cities and in those states where licenses are most freely granted throughout their borders. The 1912 year book of the United States Brewers' association, open before me, says the average consumption of all liquor in the prohibition states runs from one and one-half gallons to two gallons per capita; in local option states from three to six gallons per capita, and in license states from thirty to sixty-nine gallons per capita. the last named high rate being in Wisconsin Really there is nothing in the recent report to cause excitement. Gradually the liquor trade is being driven into close con ditches. Meanwhile:

Imitation is undoubtedly the cause of the frequent suicides by polsoning by the use of bichloride of mercury tablets. There is hardly an omission in the news of the day of such a fatality. And it is not by any means a pleasant poison in its operation. But more suggestive are the instances in which this lethal drug is taken "by mistake." Among the latest is the case of a New York physician who had prescribed for his patient capsule of harmless medicament. The patient declared his inability to swallow a pill. The doctor undertook to show him how easy it was, went to the closet, swallowed in presence a sample of what he found there and offered another to the sufferer.

Again it stuck in the throat of the patient, and this was his good luck. The doctor went home to collapse in the course of the night; he had found the wrong bottle, and the mistake cost him his life. The man who could not swallow survives.

When the faculty themselves fall victims, where is protection to be found? Evidently in compelling such a distinction in form as shall compel recognition by the most blundering handlers of chemical remedies.

The World's Mysteries

Are the stories of the Admirable Crichton true? If they are he was no doubt the most precoclous young man the world has ever produced, for he was not only the greatest linguist for his age of any age, but likewise the greatest swordsman. The only prototype of such another man is to be found in the wildest of romances. History credits him with having been so marvelous a swordsman, that he could, without assistance, combat successfully with a whole company that attacked him, and that at a very youthful age he could dispute successfully with all the most learned men of Europe, and in twelve different languages, and in prose or poetry, whichever they might wish.

The name of this wonderful man was James Crichton, but he is known altogether by his nickname of "Admirable," which he won through his fame as a scholar and swordsman. He was a Scotchman by birth. and lived only twenty-three years, having been born in 1560. Where did he get his vast amount of learning? History is silent on this point. He was the son of a lord, and his family were descendants from royal blood on both Europe and in the next six years he startled the world by his great knowledge. He received the education usual for a boy of his means and social position, but if the stories told of him are true, he must have possessed a master-mind, for it is said that at the age of thirteen he took his degree of bachelor of arts and at fifteen that of master of arts, being third on the list, which included the names of many afterwards fanous professors and literary men.

When at seventeen he went to Paris, having quarreled with his father, he not only was a marvelous linguist, but a skilled performer on several musical instruments, and accompanying his mental accomplishments it is noted that he was remarkably handsome and was possessed of a fine voice.

As to his memory, the stories told of it are inconceivable. It is said of it, that after hearing a speech or sermon an hour long he was able to repeat it word for word. It is only possible to accept this story with a grave doubt of its entire truth.

When he reached Paris he proceeded, as was a custom of the period, to affix to the doors of churches and other public buildings challenges to literary and philosophic warfare. At the end of six weeks he engaged to present himself at the College of Navarre to answer any question "in any science, liberal art, discipline and faculty, whether practical or theoretical." and this in any one of twelve specified languages, Arabic, Greek, Latin, Spanish, French, Italian, English, Dutch,

Flemish and Slavonian. The learned heads of Paris took it more or less as a joke, but they accepted the challenge, and young Crichton acquitted himself so well that he won general admiration. But he was going to surprise them still more, for the following day there was a tourament in Paris which had attracted the chivalry of the continent, and the brilliant Scotchman, who had astonished them with his learning the previous day, carried off the prize from all the best lances in the kingdom

Through Europe wandered the youth, one moment fighting, the next day lecturing and the next debating. As one of the sixteenth century writers put it: "He filled us with awe, for he knew more than any man should sides. He was only seventeen years old know." His very greatest accomplishment when he left home for the continent of is said to have taken place at the University of Padua, where he presented himself as willing to answer any question put to him by the learned men in any language they might suggest, but would even go further and give his answer in "any one of the hundred different species of verse."

He finally drifted into Mantua, where he was engaged by the duke as instructor to his son. It appears that both teacher and pupil were in love with the same girl, and as she preferred the handsome Scotchman there grew up at once an unfriendliness on the part of the pupil, and Crichton, returning home one evening was attacked by a band of assassins, and having killed or disabled all of them but one, and, curious to know who had inspired the assault, Crichton merely disarmed the man and tore off his mask. To his amazement he recognized his pupil. Under the circumstances Crichton offered his own sword, and the youth snatched the w apon and drove it through Crichton's heart. Thus at twenty-three died a genius, who, if half the tales told of him be true, has had no equal in the world.

"I can stand things made of barks and buds and healing herbs, and things indorsed by distinguished prelates, but when a man comes to this door talking of a manual of social forms. I reach for the broomstick and urge him to avaunt while the avaunting is

"Mr. Turpentine, who lives next door, bought that same book from an agent who was around here last spring, and I have no doubt you are the same man, for Mrs. Turpentine said he looked more like a tenpointed lightning rod than a human being, and I can't imagine why a man of your longitude should waste the precious hours trying to sell a silly book, when you might be digging sweet potatoes or doing something else that would contribute to the public weal.

"Mrs. Turpentine says that since getting that book her husband has been worse than useless. She has to do all the chores around the place, while he sits in the house with a fountain pen, dashing off model letters to John Wanamaker and Andrew Carnegie and everybody he can think of. "One day when I wasn't watching Mr. Curfew went over and borrowed that book and read it day after day, and then it affected him just as it did Mr. Turpentine. went to the book-store and bought a bushel of note paper and pens and ink, and then he sat up till after midnight every night writing letters to total strangers and imaginary people. "It was impossible to get him to do anything useful. I had to carry in water from the well, and coal from the shed, and all the time he sat around writing to people nobody ever heard of, and then saving his letters for future reference. It was no use trying to argue with him. He said that correspondence was a branch of our education which was sadly neglected, and he proposed to make up for lost time, so that if he ever did have to write an important letter to the president of the United States he'd know how to do it.

"One night he wrote a love letter addressed to Miss Bridget Poolaway. That was one of the names he found in that trifling book. He said that he had long observed her with respectful admiration, and her charms had kindled in his bosom a fire which could not be extinguished. He could control his passion no longer, so he begged her to be his bride. Of course it was almost a duplicate of a letter he found in the book. "When he went to bed he left that letter lying on the table. My married daughter was visiting us at the time, and she happened to be the first one up in the morning Seeing that letter lying on the table she glanced at the address at the head of it, and League of America and the Chicago Cub mathen put it in an envelope and mailed it. "You wouldn't believe that there was such a woman in the world as Bridget Poolaway, would you? It doesn't sound reasonable, yet there was such a woman, and she had just moved into this town, and she got that letter A day or two later Mr. Curfew was sitting out by the front gate with a shotgun, hoping to get sight of an agent who had sold him a celluloid shirt which caught fire and nearly cremated him, when a tall, gangling woman, about seven feet high, with false teeth and a crooked nose, rushed up and threw her arms around his neck and called him her own dear tootsy-wootsy.

"I'm your own little Bridget," said she and then I took the broom and went out and bridgeted her over the head and chased her away. But she came back with a lawyer, and now she is suing Mr. Curfew for breach of promise and bigamy and I don't know what else, and if you want to see ructions around this place, just mention your manual of social forms to Mr. Curfew, who will be here in a minute or two."

Telescopes BY GEORGE FITCH, Author of "At Good Old Siwash"

A telescope is an invention which enables a man to see as far as he could with an eye as big as a wash tub.

In fact, the telescope is an enormous glass eye. It is worn by the astronomer while peering into the star-spangled universe in search of newly organized solar systems and comets which are proceeding without train orders.

The telescope consists of a long muzzle loading brass tube with lens in one end and an eye piece at the other. When the astronomer has screwed the small end into his eye like a monocle he can roam at will through the depths of the sky, counting asteroids, measuring sun dogs and plotting corn lots on Mars. A planet is only a speck of light when viewed by the casual citizen going home at midnight. But when the astronomer rins his telescope on a neighboring planet he cannot only discover its topography and com plexion but can publish bulletins regarding the rate of excavation in its canal prism. Many an astronomer has watched two stars try to pass on a single track several billon miles away and has wept tears over a tragedy which isn't as important to the rest of the world as the swat-the-fly problem.

In fact, when an astronomer has few years spying on the universe with a telescope he becomes oblivious to mundane affairs and would not leave off counting the rings of Saturn or the dents in the moon long enough to watch an oil refinery burn in the next block.

The telescope has done the world a great deal of good. It has enabled man to produce that fascinating serial entitled the almanac, to weigh the sun regularly with a view to regulating its diet if necessary and to discover on-rushing comets in time to repair the old cyclone cellar and get out of range. If it were not for the telescope we would not know where we were going on this earth or when we would arrive. But thanks to the telescope, astronomers are able to call the stations years in advance and to calcu-

Church Bell Passing.

(From The Dawson News.) A quarter of a century or even a shorter time ago people seemed to have the idea that churches must have great tall pires and a bell. The present-day sees a remerkable change in this respect. Church ste ples and great tall towers are being disca ded. In former years the tolling of church bells for funerals was quite common, but even this practice is passing away. The church bell is also rapidly disappearing.

In today's discussion Senator Bristow asserted that the American Sugar Refining company which several years ago started out to acquire the beet sugar factories, abandoned the plan because "they found it would be cheaper and easier to destroy this in-dustry through free sugar than to control it by purchase of stock."

Senator Walsh declared that testi-mony of beet sugar men before the lobby committee was to the effect that the reason the American Sugar Refining company reduced its holdings in the beet sugar plants of the west was because of fear of the Sherman anti-trust law.

A Prophet of Evil. Senator William Alden Smith, vig-

The Week-End Motor Trip Will Promote Patriotic Interest

By Isma Dooly

That the automobile is a promoter of patriotism no one can doubt who takes one week-end trip through the regions of the state only seen from the railroad train, or over the good roads recently built which carry one right through the hills and valleys heretofore seen only from afar. For instance, the motor trip from Atlanta to Warm Springs, in Meriwether county, shows a bit of country that for four hours-the time it takes to make the trip-presents a scene right and left of hills and forests and resourceful farms which tell the story of prosperity as it cannot be more impressively told. PROSPEROUS RURAL SCENES.

Leaving Atlanta by the road that passes through Hapeville to Jones boro, from there to Griffin, there are communities and homes well kept and clean, with a wondrous setting of productive lands, good bridges and roads, only now and then an ignorance of forest preservation, which state legislation and a more direct campaign for the same can soon remedy. A road from Griffin leads away from the railroad line through a section of beautiful country, Williamson being the first point of importance reached.

A prosperous little town is passed through here which has a continuation of the same good road to Woodberry. Between Woodberry to Warm Springs the road, with but exceptional places, is good, the bridges needing strengthening in one or two places.

The Same Moon.

The Same Moon.

The same moon arises in a glory of gold light between the giant pine trees that stand in front of the same hotel site, where fifty years ago the beaux and belles arrived in their carriages, with their horses and servants, and made joyous the time of summer moons. Now they come in puffing, blowing, rubber-tired motor cars, with chauffeurs in front and dress suitcases tied on the back. They stop in the same place and at night frivol and filit and desport themselves under the same moon.

The Mixing of the Times. But the mixing of the times, the strength from the mixing of the drinks for which hosts at Warm Springs have always held the chamion trophy. On Saturday of last week Willis opened his store in violation of the law, and upon hearing of it, Bailiff Gaddy immediately swore out a war-rant for him and set out to place him under arrest. Gaddy's account of the

"About 4 o'clock I started for Willis' store to arrest him, accompanied by my brother-in-law, John Wynn. When we reached the store Willis was seated on the front steps, and upon seeing us, got up and ran to the rear of the store. When Wynn and I got inside he pointed a revolver at me.I warned him not to fire, and started for him, and as I did so he fired once, the bul-let striking me in the right side of my breast. WHIFFS

TOMORROW is Bill Smith's birth day. A big celebration is planned at the ball park. What are you fens going to do about it? Let's all go out and make "Bill Smith day" the noisiest that we have had this season. Something is going to be pulled off that is being kept quiet. We don't even know what it is ourselves.

Fine Chance.

THE CRACKERS have a fine chance to climb into second place in the league standing by winning the majority of the games this week. Montgomery is not scheduled to play for the first three days. If we can grab two out of three from the Barons, we will only be a game and a half behind second place. Then we can tear into the Billies with a vengeance.

Better Than Last.

WELCHONCE has a better record to date this season than he had all of last year. With Nashville in 1912, Welchonce had the following record: Games 123, at bat 471, runs 63, hits 157, total bases 196, sacrifice hits 16, stolen bases 24. With the Crackers, including Saturday's games, his record is: Games 122, at bat 489, runs 74, hits 162, total bases 216, sacrifice hits 23, stolen bases 22.

WELCHONCE and Long have excellent chances to break the Southern league records, the former in the number of hits made, and the latter in the number of runs scored. Including Saturday's games, Welchonce has made fat hits. He needs 30 more to establish a record. Up to the same time, Long had tallied .89 runs. He needs 11 to establish the record. Counting Monday's game with the Barons, they have twenty-two games to get the required number of hits and runs in.

Improved Fielding.

THE CRACKERS have been winning more consistently during the past nonth because of improved fielding at every position on the team. Take a stance at the following figures and rou can see for yourself.

No Errors Here,

JOE AGLER and Harry Chapman have been piling up a bunch of errorless games of late. The speedy throwing receiver has not made an error in the last twenty-five games he has caught, having 90 putouts and 28 assists, without a bobble. At the initial cushion, Joe Agler has gone 36 games without booting one or without dropping a throw. He has handled 338 putouts and 19 assists without a bobble. Around the Keystone.

BISLAND and Smith have seen doing some splendid fielding around that old keystone. In the twenty-four games he has played at second base, Wallop has handled 128 chances, with but 5 errors. At shortstop, Bisland has made but 4 errors in thirty-five games, handling 66 putouts and 108 assists cleanly. Three hundred and six chances with but 9 errors between the chances with but 9 errors between the two men is certainly cavorting around that middle cushion with approved style.

The Robert F. Maddox Sweepstakes, run in three heats on the French point system, ten for first, six for second and three for third, with six riders in each heat, and the heats, 2, 4 and 6 miles, will be the feature event of the evening.

The match race between Harry Glenn and Harry Swartz, best two out of three, 1, 2 and 3-mile heats, should also prove very interesting.

Beginning tonight, the Motordrome purse, which is the first event on the program each week, will be used as a point scoring system for the riders that will participate in the all-southern championships, which will be runnext month.

The winners at each meet will be given points, and the ones with the greatest number of points will be selected by the local management to represent Atlanta in the meets with the eastern and western riders that are to be brought here in September and October for dual races.

This will add interest and incentive to the riders to race, their fastest in the purse, as there will be big money in the match races next month with the imported riders.

First place in the finals will be awarded with 25 points, second place

32 LIVES ARE LOST BALLOTS FOR WOMEN WHEN VESSEL SINKS

Weapon Into the Divorce Laws of Georgia.

By John Corrigan, Jr.

Washington, August 18 .- (Special.) Senator Tillman, of South Carolina, during a siprited attack on woman suffrage in the senate today, deprecated the existence of divorce laws in Georgia.

"The divorce evil does not directly affect South Carolina," he said, "but our state is the only one that does not permit divorce in some form. North Carolina and Georgia, states on our struck an uncharted rock and sank in creasingly trivial grounds, if report be

Senator Bacon interrupted: "Divorce is not respectable in Georgia," he declared.

"The senator means divorced people not respectable," interrupted Senator Tillman. 'I mean the institution of divorce.' Senator Tillman wanted to know how anything the legislature of Geor-gia has done was not respectable.

South Carolina a Lonely Isle. "My state is a lonely isle," he con-tinued, "surrounded on all sides by a turbld flood of raging, maddened waters; and lest we, too, be submerged, I would see the waters subside and the dry land appear, and under the blessed rays of God's moral sunshine would behold once again over our whole country the fruits and flowers of domestic peace, love and affection, confidence, joy and contentment."

"It is a beautiful dream," said he, that female suffrage will purify politics. The important thing for us to consider is the effect on women themselves. We had better endure the evils of corruption in politics and debauchery in our government rather than bring about a condition which will mar the beauty end dim the luster of the glorious womanhood to which we Better Bad Politics Than Bad Women. "We can better afford to have de-graded and corrupt politics than de-graded and bad women. To have both in ever-increasing degree, as was the case in Rome, would make the world so case in Rome, would make the world so unspeakably horrible, as well as corrupt, that good men and good women both would disappear from the face of the earth, and civilization would be blotted out like it was in the dark ages, after the fall of Rome.

"I shudder to think of the consequences to the womanhood of America should suffrage become universal. Yet, the experiment is going to be tried, I fear."

Senator Tillman said the demand of women for suffrage was growing too fast to be stopped by "old fogies" like himself.

himself.
"I believe woman will improve politics," said ne, "but ultimately politics will destroy her, as we know her and love her, and when our good w men are no longer to be found and we have lost the breed, the doom of the republic is near."

Death for Diggs and Caminetti. Senator I'llman included in his speech a vigorous attack upon the divorce evil and referred to the Diggs-

Caminetti white slave cases in Cali-"If the California men had our cus-"If the California men had our customs," he cried, "Diggs and Caminetti would not be alive now, because L.ey would have been shot like dogs, and the fathers of the girls they have rulned would be acquitted almost without the jury leaving the box. The unwritten law is the best law to protect women's virtue that I have heard of."

"The danger from woman suffrage," said Senator Tillman, "was inreeased by the cowardice of public nen erv. by the 'cowardice of public nen where."

COTTON LOST PART

Favorable View of Weather Conditions Main Factor in the Decline-Spot Cotton Quiet and Unchanged.

New York, August 18 .- A more favorable view of weather conditions in the southwest was considered responsible for considerable liquidation, or a renewal of bear pressure in the cotton market today, and prices lost a good part of their recent gain. Official advices did not indicate as much rain in drouthy sections as suggested by private advices, and early decilar, were followed by rallies, but the man was more or less unsettled during the entire day, and further private rain or shower reports caused renewed weakness in the late trading. The close was steady, but at a net decline of 19 to 24 points on August and Sep-tember, while new crop deliveries were from 10 to 12 points under the final figures of last week.

Liverpool had the rain news before the local opening, and private cables reported liquidation by some of Satur-day's buyers as the cause of the de-cline there. The start here was easy at a decline of 14 to 17 points, and there was a lot of selling orders around the ring which probably rep-resented the unsettling influence of resented the unsettling influence of the rain news on buyers of last week. Offerings, however, were pretty well taken around the initial figures, and prices gradually rallied. There seemed to be some doubt as to whether the rains had been sufficient, particularly as the official forecast was for dry weather in the western belt, with the exception of showers along the Texas N coast, and after the first flurry of sel off pending receipt of the official de tailed reports. These showed less rain than looked for, and after their publication prices rallied to within a polat or two of Saturday's closing figures.

A fair amount of precipitation was shown at some of the central Texas staions, however, and prices later weakened again under private reports of showers in Texas this afternoon The close was 4 or 5 points above the cotton quiet; middling uplands 12c; gulf 12.25; sales 200 bales

New York, August 18.—Private reports of rain throughout Texas over Sunday were responsible for liquidation at the opening of the market today, under which prices declined about 15 points. Aside from the weather conditions in the southwest, there was no news of importance affecting the market, and when the government's detailed reports failed to show general rains in Texas and Oklahoma prices recovered most of their early loss.

The first was a reply to that upon the opening of court here this delivered by Mr. Lind. This note included the demand for recognition of Mexico.

The second note was sent direct to Washington and demanded that a reply to the previous note be made before midnight. This is regarded here as an ultimatum.

OR ADOPT DEFIANT ATTITUDE

One official in discussing this latter note said that Mexico had reached the point where she either must bow her head in humiliation before the United States or adopt an attitude of defiance. The first contingency, he added, was regarded as impossible.

The official said that Mexico fully realized the gravity of her action and the possibilities that might ensue in case the United States refused to recognize the republic.

Conservative Mexicans, however, are unwilling to believe that even the severance of diplomatic relations and Mexico's defiant attitude will provoke the United States beyond forbearance. At the embassy there was an evident desire to appear optimistic and one was led to believe that Mr. Lind still hoped for a continuation of the negotiations. Those familiar with the workings of the Mexican administration expressed doubt as to the government again opening the subject for discussion.

President Wilson Disappointed.

The president and his advisers were plainly disappointed at the turn of events, but announced that the American government would have nothing to say tonight. Instead, the American communication appealing for a suspension of hostilities and a constitutional election, together with the emphatic statement that under no circumstances could the United States recognize the Huerta regime because it was set up by irregular force instead of constitutional order, will be made public tomorrow.
