SUFFRAGETTES ATTEMPT BRYAN PEACE PLAN TO FIRE ROYAL ACADEMY

Lighted Candles and Oiled Rags in Building Containing World's Greatest Art Treasures.

London, May 30 .- An attempt was made tonight to set fire to the Royal academy. Although the usual votes for women placards were not found, the police suspect militant suffragettes were responsible for the attempt to destroy the building in which are housed some of the world's greatest works of art.

Shortly after the exhibition closed for the night a watchman discovered in a small room on the ground floor a card-board box filled with rags and cotton saturated with oil. A number of wax tapers were bound about the bex, which had been so placed that the flames from it easily would have communicated with the walls.

The suffragettes resumed their campaign of destruction tonight in the Lewisham branch postoffice, which they had attacked several times previously. They set fire to the letters in City Can Get Control, Says the buildings and the flames were extinguished only after a number of them had been destroyed.

HUFF CONTEMPT CASE DECISION IS DELAYED

Macon, Ga., May 30.—(Special.)— The opinion of Judge W. I. Gabb. of Birmingham, in the Huff contempt case, which was expected to arrive today, will not reach Macon until next Tuesday. Advices from Birmingham this morning were to the effect that Judge Grubb had delayed mailing his opinion until next Monday.

There was considerable interest when the announcement was made that the opinion was expected today, and the court officials and a number of others waited expectantly all morning. However, after the Birmingham mail had been distributed and the official package was found to be missing, Birmingham was communicated with, and it was then learned that Judge Grubb had decided not to send the opinion

MEETING AN EMERGENCY.

Every other consideration is now subordinate to the duty of council to find a way out of the wilderness into which the city has drifted with reference to the disposal of garbage. The issue is one of life and death, not of partisanship or expediency. Alderman Van Dyke sounds the keynote. He was among those who originally and with vigor opposed the location of the crematory upon the present site. Yet now that the supreme court decision has, in a way, left Atlanta facing an impasse, he throws aside politics and gauges his actions purely by the test of the public welfare. "It is not a question of how it can be done," he says: "it is simply a question of the city doing the only sensible and safe thing that is left for it to do"-to put the crematory to work! "And," he continues, "I say solemply, as a physician, that unless this crematory is put to work as soon as possible the penalty of many deaths this summer is going to be put on somebody's head."

That is the naked truth of the situation. and it cannot be evaded. If this crematory will do what is claimed for it some plan should be devised by which it may be put to work. Quibbles aside, it is ideally located. It is almost in the geographical center of the city, as a single-system crematory should be, yet by a constructive paradox it is so placed as to menace neither business houses nor residences. Four or five years of discussion, squabbling and investigation have been required to fix the method to be used and agree on the location. Four or five years more would be consumed in opening the controversy and again deciding it. And the exigencies of the situation will not permit a delay of even four or five weeks!

4 Here is a plant that will be ready for operation within two to three weeks. Its efficiency remains to be demonstrated. That done, some way should be found to pay for it within the law. In previous crises of a life and death nature partisanship has been thrown to the winds in Atlanta and patriotism has successfully taken its place. It is to the patriotism of council that Atlanta calls for protection in the present crisis. The need is solemn and emergent. The Constitution has every confidence that it will be promptly met.

If worst comes to worst and no other way offers, this crisis can be met by the policy of absolute stagnation and paralysis for a year. Every other improvement, every demand upon the city's current income, however imperative, could be suspended and the funds diverted to meet this one great emergency. That would, of course, be a calamity. Cities never stand still, but go forward or backward. If Atlanta employed this last desperate resort the city would be sentenced-to go backward for a year. We are convinced that the finance committee and council can find some way whereby the city's health may be protected without adopting a policy of scuttle and stagnation. It is inconceivable that every channel of development should be dammed up for a year, as would be threatened if current revenues were diverted to meet this urgent need. It is inconceivable that every municipal need, every cry of expansion should be compelled to mark time for a year. That would be the worst catastrophe in the city's history. Atlanta would be years in recovering from its effect.

In a moment of desperate crisis we believe council has the ingenuity and the patriotism to find a sure way out. Whatever happens, Atlanta's health must be safeguarded; and whatever happens, it must be accomplished without condemning Atlanta to stagnation for an entire year.

THE FATEFUL BOLL WEEVIL.

State Entomologist Lee Worsham announces that the Mexican cotton weevil will reach Georgia during the early part of the forthcoming August. It will strike the southwestern part of the state the first year, probably infecting the counties of Clay, Early, Decatur and Miller. Already the weevil is in Alabama and moving rapidly toward the Georgia line. During 1914 other Georgia counties will be invaded, and in the course of the next two or three years the entire cotton belt will be subject to the

If the comparison may be used in so extreme a case, the boll weevil in Georgia and other southern states will come in the nature of a blessing in disguise; at least for its depredations there will be the consoling feature that farmers who would otherwise resist the doctrine of diversification indefinitely will be driven to diversification. The boll weevil will be at once the taskmaster that drives to diversification and the emancipator that liberates from the tyranny of all cotton.

When the pest from across the Rio Grande invades a district it takes complete possession. The farmer cannot restrict it to suit his plans. He must restrict his plans to suit the boll weevil. So since cotton is the only article of diet for the insect, all planting plans are laid to circumvent the weevil as far as possible, then to produce crops that are immune to the plague. Remedy after remedy has been tried against the insect, and all are failures. so far as stamping him out is concerned. He resists the ordinary poisons and antidotes. The only manner in which he can hopefully be combatted is to plant cotton of an early maturing variety, so as to "beat the weevil to it," to burn over the fields each fall, and in the interim to take such physical measures as may keep down the numbers of the trouble-maker, such as hand-picking from stands of cotton. Texas, Louisiana, Arkansas and Alabama have for some time been plagued by the weevil, but still make good crops of cotton through the use of these methods.

The main thing is to prepare agricultural systems for the changed conditions that come with the advent of the weevil. Georgia has had years to accomplish this. In addition, the soil of the state adapts itself ideally to diversification. Even after the plague has reached its maximum in this state, our revenues from the soil should not show a decrease. They should even show an increase. For the food-crops that the weevil will force us to raise, and the beef as well, are just as good makers of dividends as cotton. And Georgia can stand a tolerably heavy tribute to the weevil, if she can cut off the many millions we now send outside the state for feedstuffs.

AN IRREVERENT AGE.

In his recent address before the Georgia Bar association at Warm Springs, former Supreme Court Justice Andrew Cobb stated. as follows, some of the disquieting tendencies of our day:

We are living in an irreverent age. We are also living in an age that is irrelevant. Men who have lost the sense of reverence, or wilfully disregard its promptings, challenge the attention of the public and pose as the leaders of thought. Facts which are immaterial, which have no real protective force, are adroitly used as reasons for determination of issues and in favor of the side which should not prevail. Reason, experience and the better impulses seem to be at a discount, and prejudice and the lower instincts are appealed to to furnish the basis for action.

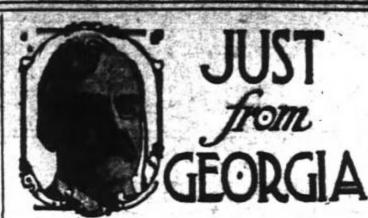

Boiled down, this means that we are living in a half-baked age, and the assertion is largely true. The old and somewhat silly saw runs that "a cat may look at a king." We have, unconsciously, taken the philosophy of the saying to bolster up a false interpretation of democracy. The result is that our perspective is all awry. We're getting cats and kings mixed with ludicrous and . harmful frequency. The demagogue masquerades as the statesman. The layman, unlearned in the law, knows more than the judge and wants to recall the latter for deciding upon principles and equity rather than upon transient popular whims. The muck-raker masters, overnight, the difficulties of every business and industry, and lambasts the men who have spent their lives in it.

Nothing is sacred, nothing immune from the "higher criticism" of the half-baked. The man in the street, just able to write his name, is qualified to discard the constitution which is the sheet-anchor of our institutions. The jingo newspaper is equipped to pass on grave international issues in a ferment of jingoism and shout its head off to involve this country in war. Progress is excellent, indispensable to life. But, isn't Judge Cobb right? Do not we of this age need at least a tincture of the sobering reverence and relevancy of the fathers? Are we not in danger of forgetting that the "world was made when g man was born?"

Feats of Surgery.

"I went over to see Mrs. Punkjoy this afternoon," announced Mrs. Jamesworthy. "She has just returned home from the hospital, where she underwent an operation for some stomach trouble. She says she'll have to return for shother operation as soon as she is strong enough."

"I know what you are driving at, Mrs. Jamesworthy," replied her husband. "This thing of being operated on by surgeons at the hospital has become a sort of fad in your set, supplanting bridge whist, and a woman feels that she isn't in the swim unless she has been carved a few times: I suppose Mrs. Punkjoy is all swelled up with false pride, and I'm rather surprised that she would consent to see you, but she probably concluded to use you for advertising purposes. You are expected to go around the neighborhood telling all about Mrs. Punkjoy's distinction, and making everybody envious, and I suppose you'll fall for it.

"But I see it in your eyes, and hear it in your voice, that you want me to put up the price of a surgical operation so you can appear in society without being humiliated, but I warn you right here and now that I won't do it. I'm waxing old, Mrs. Jamesworthy. Silver threads among the gold shine upon my brow today. Life is fading fast away. My one ambition is to save up enough kopecks so that when old age comes on, and I am wearing slippers and long white whiskers, I'll be able to indulge in fried liver at least once a week. I think I deserve that much after all my strenuous years in the clanging mart. But if I permit you to take up this new fad, and go to the hospital every other week to have a part of your anatomy removed, I see quite plainly where I'll get off, and that is at the poorhouse. So just put this notion out of your head. I'm always willing to buy you a bottle of stomach bitters or a box of green pills for piebald people, but I draw the line at having you mangled by the sawbones at $50 a throw. That sort of sport is for the idle rich.

"I don't see what the world is coming to, anyhow. I can't keep cases on the women any longer. They have me traveling in circles. When I was young the woman who wanted to cut a wide swath in society and hold up her nose at an angle of forty-five degrees claimed that her ancestors came over in the Mayflower, with William the Conqueror. I heard so many chesty dames make that claim that I used to wonder how many acres of deck room they had on the Mayflower. The vessel must have been considerably larger than an onion ranch in Texas. The claims of those oppressive females seemed rather ridiculous then, but at least they were not expensive, and husbands had a chance to carry an occasional coin to the building and loan joint.

"But all that sort of thing is done away with now. You never hear the good old Mayflower mentioned in polite conversation. When society women get together they begin recounting their adventures at the hospital or sanitarium, and the woman who has been mutilated the most gets the goldheaded cane and is recognized as the first lady of the town. In the old days women took some pride in their accomplishments. One could play the plano to beat Sam Hill, and another was the best breadmaker in seven states, and a third could do things at the quilting frames that would set your teeth on edge. There was some sense in pride of that kind

"But the old order changeth, Mrs. Jamesworthy, and today a woman has no standing in society unless she has the blue prints showing that several of her ribs were extracted by the painless surgeon. I'd rather see you drop out of society altogether than gain eminence by such methods. So if you wish to please your toilworn husband you'll refer to this subject no more, and tell Mrs. Punkjoy that she'll have to get another press agent, as you have some fish of your own to fry at home."

The World's Mysteries

THE FAKE TICHBORNE.

The Tichborne case was one of the most remarkable in recent annals of crime. It was the attempt of a "missing heir" to obtain the fortune of a wealthy Englishman. This case has been almost forgotten, although forty years ago it was a subject of international comment. There were many most peculiar circumstances surrounding this case, and there are many people today who are not convinced that Arthur Orton, the claimant, was not the son of the rich Sir Edward Tichborne. Tichborne was a wealthy English baronet. He had no son, and his nephew inherited his fortune as well as his title. The nephew, James Tichborne, had two sons, Roger and Alfred. The elder of these sons was a rather wild character, and his dissipation drove him out of the English army. He wandered to South America, where he spent the life of an adventurer.

Finally word reached that country that Sir Edward was dead and that Roger was now direct heir to the title and estates. He sailed from Rio de Janeiro for New York. Some mishap befell the vessel on the voyage, and it never reached its destination. nor was anything ever heard of its fate or of that of the crew and passengers.

After a long period, when Roger Tichborne did not appear, the Tichborne fortune and the title was given to the younger brother, Alfred. Lady Tichborne, however, never gave up hope of Robert's return. She finally began to advertise for him, and offered a considerable reward. In response to this advertising an Australian detective agency produced a "missing heir," who was known under the name of Thomas Castro. He said he had been picked up, with eight other sailors, from the missing vessel, and was living in Australia under an assumed

The claimant finally went to Europe, and Lady Tichborne declared she recognized him and welcomed him as her long lost son Officers in his former regiment also recognized him, and so did many other people, including old family servants. He was able to answer all questions, even the most intimate ones asked of him.

In 1868 Lady Tichborne died and the claimant began suit to recover what he declared to be his fortune and his title. The case came to trial in 1871. Castro, lacking funds, issued bonds which he promised to take up when he obtained his fortune. These bonds found ready purchasers. The trial lasted 103 days.

During its progress he proved that a scar on his head and a brown spot on his side were such marks as Roger had borne, and he was also able to produce sailors who swore that they had assisted in his rescue from the wrecked vessel Bella.

The defense conducted the case with great vigor and made an effort to prove that he was Arthur Orton, the son of a London butcher, who had emigrated to Australia. The legal battle waged fiercely, but finally Castro lost his suit. He was thereupon arrested and placed on trial for perjury, as were also several of his witnesses. The hearing continued for 186 days, and the indignant British populace subscribed large sums of money to assist Castro, the working people especially believing in him.

He was found guilty and sentenced to fourteen years in prison. The case, up to his sentence, had cost more than $1,000,000; the Tichborne estates had to be heavily mortgaged and hundreds of poor people lost all their money.

After ten years Castro was set free and in 1886 came to the United States to lecture. This venture was a failure and he returned to Europe and in 1895 published his "Confession." This he sold to a London newspaper for a large sum. This "Confession" was full of doubtful statements and was. in its way, harder for some people to believe than had been his original story. When he died on April 1, 1898, his death certificate and the plate upon his casket bore the name "Sir Roger Tichborne." Finally the affair was almost entirely forgotten, although it was revived in 1907 when an aged man who said he was Roger Tichborne died in the King's hospital, Brooklyn. He said that he had reached England from South America in 1856, but was spirited out of the country with the threat that he would be killed if he ever returned to London to try to enforce his claim. This mystery has never been satisfactorily cleared.

The Circus By GEORGE FITCH. Author of "At Good Old Siwash"

(Copyright, 1913, for The Constitution.) The circus struggled along for several centuries in a mild form, but when P. T. Barnum took hold of it and plastered it over the billboards of the country, it became great.

There are two kinds of circuses. One is a super-colossal and titanically tremendous aggregation of the world's wildest wonders and demoniacally death-defying daredevils gathered into one unprecedented and unimin ancient or modern history. The circus can be found on any billboard during the summer, and draws millions of eager watchers.

The other kind of circus is chiefly aweinspiring for the ease with which it flits from hither to yon. A circus carrying a and fragrant beasts will slip into a town at 6 a. m., and by breakfast time will have set up ten acres of tents and will have its callione fired up.

WHY JAPAN IS HURT AS BOSTON SEES IT

(Correspondent Boston Transcript.)

Viscount Chinda has endeavored to impress upon the state department the fact that the pride of his people has been wounded, their feelings hurt, and in their belief their national honor reflected upon by the time and the manner of the anti-Japanese legislation in California. For the purpose of cementing friendly relations between the two countries, the Yamamoto ministry deaginable galaxy under the greatest canvas | termined to make a handsome appropriation for the California exposition. The amount agreed upon was 1,200,000 yen. It was felt that this would prove to California and the United States generally the friendly feelings of the Japanese people, an evidence of the disappearance of any resentment resulting thousand people and 500 varieties of fierce from the controversy over the school question in California some years ago. The very state with which Japan proposed to cultivate a feeling of friendship is the state which has on the eve of the exposition undertaken to slap the Japanese aliens in the

A Question of National Honor.

If the Tokio government based its protest on a question of treaty interpretation the way would be opened to a court settlement, but the ground for protest is much broader, it is based upon the general proposition of international comity and couched crimson and green tights and performing in terms that touch upon the spirit of our treaty relations. In short, the protest of Japan forecasts a determination to insist upon equality of treatment for all aliens in this country, Asiatic and European alike This could only come about by admitting the Japanese to citizenship or by undertaking the repeal of all state enactments which differentiate between aliens eligible to citizenship and those who are not. The latter cannot be done except where such enactments conflict with the terms of existing treaties. nor can the Japanese government formally insist that a foreign government permit Japanese citizens to expatriate themselves.

A New Treaty.

The effort of the United States will doubtless be to negotiate a new treaty and find a way out of the present difficulty that shall at the same time allay the feelings of the Japanese without sacrificing the right of this government to determine who shall become citizens and who shall be excluded. That is a well-accepted principle of international law. The American people will not submit to arbitration such a question of domestic policy, but many people believe that the United States can afford to volunteer to Japan to admit those Japanese to citizenship who are now permitted to enter this country. The number is not large and would subject the Pacific coast to no economic hardships. If Japan in a new treaty will undertake rigidly to exclude all classes from immigration to this country except the limited number who are now admitted under the verbal agreement between the two governments, popular sentiment east of the Mississippl and north of Mason and Dixon's line would probably favor granting to Japanese aliens the right to citizenship. This would not be in accession to any demand on the part of Japan, for that demand has not been made, nor could it be. It would be an act of comity on the part of the United States, and would be hailed by Japan as evidence that its aliens were accorded the same treatment given aliens of other countries. It is to be seriously doubted, however, whether a democratic administration, whose platforms in the past have contained rigid exclusion planks, would be willing to make such an offer to Japan. The only other way to compel equality of treatment for all aliens is for those states making such discrimination to repeal their laws on the subject. That the Pacific coast states will not. Will Japan be satisfied with anything short of equality of treatment for aliens? That question constitutes the crisis today between the two countries.

ON LOCAL MOTORDROME

Houston Crane, the best amateur motorcycle rider in Dixie, threatens to develop into a motordrome star.

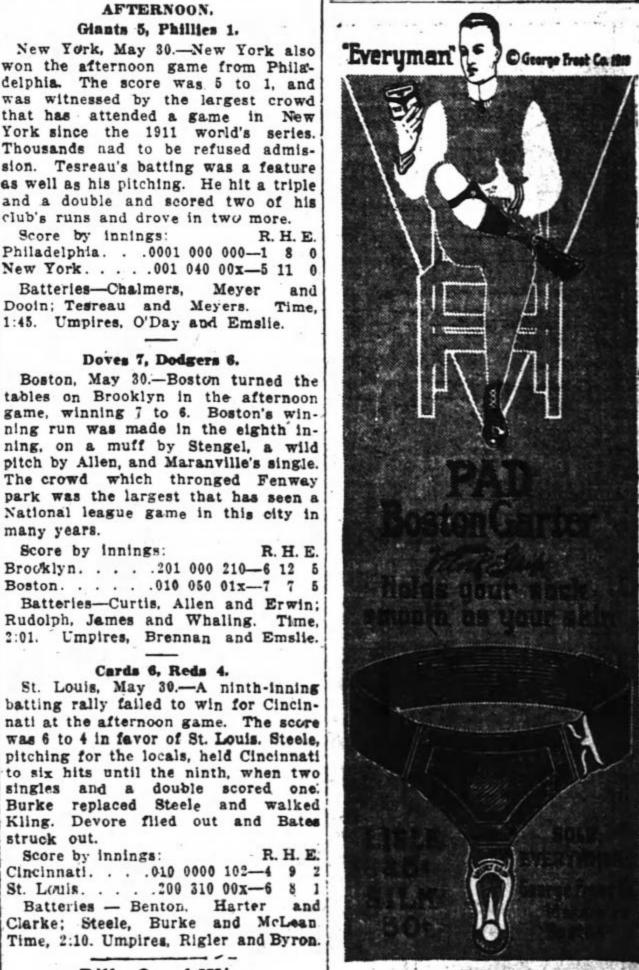

Yesterday afternoon the local lad made his first attempt on the new Atlanta track. To the surprise of the veteran riders, he was absolutely at home on the banked surface, and hit up a speed of 70 miles an hour-the limit of his road machine-keeping right on the pole all the way. It is probable that a match race with some other amateur will be arranged for him at the opening meet.

Tomorrow the grading of the infield will be completed, the uprights and wire netting will be in place, and late tomorrow afternoon there will be some real riding. Sunday afternoon at 3:30 o'clock, the band concert will be given. There will be absolutely no riding. Ample police protection will be afforded.

HARVARD LEADER

Run in Big Meet at Cambridge Today.

Cambridge, Mass., May 30 .-- Out of the preliminary stage of the annual intercollegiate track and field championships which were Legun in the Harvard stadium today, there emerged four-score of student athletes qualified to participate in the semi-final and final events of tomorrow.

Although the competition during Gadsden Steelmakers this afternoon, 15 the afternoon was keen, it was not to 1. Randal's hitting was the game productive of any record perfromances. A fluky wind was the cause generally assigned. In the fight for qualification, Harvard was unexpectedly the leader, with twelve men. Corneil, which with Pennsylvania

> R. H. E. had been thought the principal contender for the championship, placed ten athletes, while Permsylvania will carry only eight men in tomorrow's events. Michigan, Yale and Dart mouth qualified ninefi men each. The number qualified by other colleges was: California 5, Syracuse 4, Columbia 3, Johns Hopkins 3, Princeton 3, Wesleyan 2, Brown, Franklin and Marshall, Penn tSate, 1 each. Pennsylvania's chances of success were not considered less favored by their failure to qualify more men to day. The Red and Blue athletes had come to Cambridge spurred by the words of their veteran coach, Mike Murphy, "It will kill me if you don't win, boys," and they were confident tonight of victory.

Cornell followers expressed the belief that the trophy would go to Ithaca, while Harvard made no claims, most of the Crimson qualifiers being regarded as having little prospect of prominent places in the finals. Trial heats were held today in all events except the mile and two-mile runs. There were no reversals of form worthy of

and he was dragged 40 yards. .

AMBASSADOR W. H. PAGE IN QUALIFYING RECEIVED, AT ST. JAMES

London, May 30 .- Walter Hines Page, United States ambassador to the Court of St. James, was received today by King George, to whom he presented his letters of credence. Sir Edward Grey, the British foreign secretary, presented the new ambassador. Then Mr. Page went through the formality of presenting to the king and queen the members of the embassy staff, most of whom had attended many courts and levees in company with the late Whitelaw Reid. Ambassador Page and his secretaries wore ordinary evening dress which American diplomats always assume at levees. With the naval and military attaches in uniform, the drove from the hotel wher the am-

Ambassødor Page said: "It was one of the most pleasing experiences of my life. The king and queen spoke frankly, cordially and kindly on a number of subjects. They asked after President Wilson and his family and also after my own family." Harold Fowler, secretary to Ambassador Page, made his first appearance as a diplomat at today's audience. Mr. Page has received innumerable invitations both to public and private affairs, which, with the court functions during the season, will keep him

-After the royal audience, Ambassador Page called on Paul Cambon, the French ambassador, and dean of the diplomatic corps. Within the next few days he will pay his respects to the other ambassadors.

Do You Make the Most of Your Opportunities?

Few persons do. The man with money to invest seldom gets the best. The man with ability to market does not always market it to the best advantage. The employer who needs good men seldom gets them as good as he could. One and all neglect the opportunities that lie practically in their hands.

This paper, for instance. Do you read the want ads it presents as carefully as you should? Yet they are here every day for your consideration. Turn to them now. See if some one of your wants is not met-if the investment, the position or the man isn't advertised. If not, then write carefully and completely a little

Thousands will see it, and those who have what you want will answer. And, though every day is a good day to read and use The Constitution's Classified, Sunday is the best of all. So phone your want ads now for insertion in The Sunday Constitution—the standard southern news

Preliminary Steps Taken and First Meeting of Peace Conference Fixed for Monday.

London, May 30 .- The preliminary treaty of peace was signed at St. James palace today by the delegates of all the Balkan allies and of Turkey. Sir Edward Grey, the British foreign secretary, presided at the meeting.

Dr. S. Daneff, the Bulgarian peace delegate, in the course of an interview after the signature of the preliminary treaty of peace, said:

Balkan peace, but general peace, and Europe is saved from one of the most thorny problems of the age.

"We owe a deep debt of gratitude to Sir Edward Grey, whose enduring and untiring mastery in treating diplomatference has been fixed for Monday, he refused to show them to the quar- ed to arrest Martin Espinosa, formerly June 2.

the preliminary treaty," he said, "beterms we have been obliged to accept. We have been despoiled of the fruits of our victory. We have been made the whipped boy of Europe. Great Britain took the leading part in depriving us of Scutari. We lok here to secure a modification of the Albanian frontier so as to give us lands for cultivation and a natural route between Podgoritza and Ipek.'

LATEST REPORTS FROM ALL OF THE MARKETS

NEW ORLEANS COTTON MARKET WAS VERY DULL

There Was Little Desire for Trading on Account of Holiday.

New Orleans, May 30 .- Extreme dullness prevailed in the cotton market today. With New York closed and no official weather reports, because it was Decoration day, and double holidays following the close nere, there was little desire to trade, except to even up in preparation for the government's condition figures Monday morning Private reports concerning the weather and the growing crop were bearish, but they caused only very moderate shot selling On the opening, the tone was steady and prices were 1 to 2 points up on good cables The range throughout the session was only 3 or 4 points At the highest, the trading months were 2 to 3 points over yesterday's close; at the lowest they were unchanged to 1 point under The close was at a net rise of

1 to 3 points Private weather accounts indicated that ver ylittle rain fell overnight in the cotton region, and that temperatures were about seasonable. Some rain was promised in the forecast, but the trade regards rains now and then as beneficial. Crop reports, especially ceipus, 15.000, including 14.300 American. from the western belt, could hardly have been better, and pointed to a gain in condition since May 25, the end of the period to be considered in the government's report.

Review for the Week.

New Orleans, May 30 .- The net results of the week's trading in the cotton market were a decline of 12 to 21 points. The market was quiet and , narrow the week through. The high prices were made on Tuesday and the day low prices on Thursday. At the highest the trading months were unchanged to n 2 points down, compared with last week's close; at the lowest they were tel5 to 23 points under last week's close. The range was 15 to 21 points.

The market was depressed chiefly by good weather and crop accounts. Much bearish talk was circulated renigarding the pending report on the concodition of the crop on May 25, mut, while estimates by private Lureaus thwere as high as 85, as compared with Rthe ten-year average of 79.9, it cannot be he said that any great amount of coteron was sold short on it. The holidays in the American markets at the end of this week and the beginning of next, had the effect of restricting op erations, and, on the whole, bears preferred to cover commitments rathe than to enter into new ventures. Re 8 ports from the cotton belt indicated that the crop was making satisfactor; progress as the result of recent rains and the somewhat higher temperatures. There was still some complaint however, of low night temperatures Moderate short selling from the inte rior was in evidence. Against this was equally moderate buying for long ac count, which bullishly inclined traders and brokers said was coming from spinners who were nedging agains their future requirements.

In the spot department, prices los one-eighth of a cent, middling closing at 12 5-16, against 12 7-16 last week, Vicksburg ........ s and 11 3-4 this week last year. Sales on the spot amounted to 1.168 bales, against 2.742 last week and 660 this week last year; sales to arrive amounted to 835 bales, against 1.389 to strong; beeves last week and 600 this week last year.

Weekly Stock Review. features of this week's dull and heavy stock market were the receivership for St. Louis and San Francisco and the presentation of two new plans by Union Pacific for the disposal of its $126 .-650,000 of Southern Pacific holdings. The financial embarrassment of the Frisco System was generaly known in financial and via Galveston, 5s Sd; American mixed, new kiln railroad circles, but the belief seemed to pre-vail in some quarters that a way may have 4s 111/2d; September (La Plata), 5s. been found to save the property from reorgani zation. All the segurities of the Frisco road fell to low record pilces and later were followed by various issues of the roads comprising the Gould and Hawley groups, selling of these lat ter stocks emanated from sources which suggested liquidation, though their decline was probably accelerated by the shorts. The outcome of the plans submitted by Union Pacific still is a matter of conjecture, but the general opinion is that the Southern Pacific stock will finally be trusted under government

> 1913 PECAN CROP IS TO BREAK RECORD,

Thomasville, Ga., May 30 .- (Special.) After being in session for two days the South Georgia and Florida Pecan Growers' association adjourned yesterday afternoon to meet in Thomas ville again next year. This place was chosen by unanimous vote of the members, who reported one of the most successful and enjoyable meetings in the history of the organization.

The officers chosen for the coming year were: President, B. W. Stone of Thomasville; vice president, R. O. Simpson of Monticello, Fla.; secretary. W. W. Bassett of Monticello; treasurer, D. L. Williams of Cairo. According to the reports of the mem ters of the association, who are all in the picture that has been left unactively interested in the pecan busi- done. ness, the crop this season will be a fine one, much better than that of last year. As showing something of the standing of he pecan indusry in this section it was reported that within acres planted in groves and the numthe coming season.

NO, ANDREW CARNEGIE WAS NOT IN ATLANTA DESPITE HOTEL BOOK

"Is Andrew Carnegie in Atlanta tohight?" This question was asked by scores of guests who crowded the Fiedmont hotel lobby Friday evening. for the rumor received its origin from a mute source that is sometimes considered authority, the hotel register. All evening long, and way into the night buzzed the comment of the Piedmont patrons, "Andrew Carnegie is here. I saw his name on the register."

Even the hotel clerks were puzzled at first, and bell boys volunteered to scourge the hotel for the Pittsburg magnate, but Chief Clerk Calloway put an end to the excitement when he advised the curious that Andrew Carnegie was peacefully touring the continent across the pond, the register to the contrary, notwithstanding. Handwriting experts will hardly be called in to detect the "forgery," which is laid at the door of some care-free joker. It was a hard blow for the room clerk to hear the veracity of the reglister indicated, but he avers this is the Quotations based on actual purchase during first time he has been deceived by that grim record which he is forced to swear by.

Gettysburg, Pa., May 30 .- Standing on historic Gettysburg battlefield and bringing "a message of a reunited country," Rrepresentative Thomas Heflin, of Alabama, today paid eloquent tribute to the heroism of the men who wore the blue and the gray. His was the first address ever delivered by a southerner at Gettysburg Memo

"Our colonial fathers from north, south and east and west," Mr. Heflin said, "fought together when they brought this republic into being, defended it together in the war of 1812 and triumphed together when they carried the Stars and Stripes into the heritage of the Montezumas. The final and crucial test of the republic 3 strength and durability was the com bat on the field of battle in the war between the states."

He added that the question of the right of the state to secede and the right of the union to prevent it, the status of rights and relationship between state and federal government, "could not be determined in the councils of peace; it had to be settled by the arbitrament of the sword."

Harmonious Household.

"The republic once abounding with conflicting opinions as to state an: federal rights and powers," he continued, "Is today the harmonious household of sovereign states, the home of a brave and happy people. Here we bow with solemn reverence in honor of our nation's dead and pay to their blessed memory the tribute of our tlefield immortal. Here the soldier in blue and the soldier in gray read in ingness to do and die for what they believed was right. Here union and confederate soldiers, by their daring sacrifice and heroism, challenged the admiration of the world. Here northern valor drew up in battle line the bravest of her brave, the noblest specimens of her patriotic manhood and southern chivalry marshaled the noblest types of her splendid citizenship. "Here the brave union soldier checked the march of the hitherto irresistible confederate soldier. Here in the red glare of destructive battle fire two mighty lessons were taught; one that the union should be preserved, and the other that the union should be ever mindful and considerate of the rights of the states. So the soldiers of the two armies who baptized this soil with started the work cementing the bonds of an everlasting union

THE AMBITION OF MARK TRUITI sums up, in the life of one big man, his big focs, and big friends, the strife, the hopes, and the aspirations of modern America. Involved with his ambition is the ambition of the laborer, of the capitalist, of the progressive, of the humanitarian, of the socialist, of the society woman, and of woman who gives all for love. This is a man's book in its account of a battle royal of steel kings. It is a woman's book in its story of young romance, marriage, divorce, the passions of maturity and the triumph of love. 454 pages. Net $1.35. At all booksellers.
