A Few Facts About Special Features

Approaching the front of the store, you will be impressed with the size and arrangement, the general attractiveness provided by our new display windows. Constantly will they present an artistic and comprehensive exhibition of the newest styles, and also values which will pay you well to consider.

We believe you will be delighted with the beautiful interior and its systematic arrangement. At every turn improvements present themselves. Handsome new furnishings and fixtures of the most improved type have been specially constructed and installed, after careful planning, to best meet in each case the true object of their purpose, present, in original manner, the most of utility as well as features of great decorative value.

Observe, too, how the additional space provided by the new building permits of much greater freedom; broad, spacious aisles, more convenient displays, the assembling of more thorough and complete lines of merchandise.

Five large, roomy passenger elevators, of the safest class known, in charge of courteous manipulators, are located at the left side of the building, and one passenger elevator at the right side. The stairway in the center, main aisle, makes the downstairs section easily accessible to those who prefer to walk.

Extremely rich and beautiful are the goods, as they are displayed new, on tables and in cases for the utmost ease of inspection. Increased stocks—distinguished and widely diversified, providing for the needs of every occasion.

Summing it up briefly, we would say: This is a modern conception of a store as it should really be.

We want you, friends, old and new, to make this your store home. And we shall be glad to have your suggestions and criticisms.

I WEAR MANNISH CLOTHES BECAUSE THEY'RE SENSIBLE, SAYS HATTIE ALBERTINE CLACK, PRETTY ATLANTAGIRL

By Britt Craig.

Miss Hattie Albertine Clack, as blonde as they make them without the aid of a hairdresser, is as pretty, too, as the Goddess Beauty could endow without exhausting her stock, is displaying the frills and furrowels of feminine garb and is adopting the array of mannish.

And the funny thing about it is she happens not to be a suffragette. In truth, she scorns the movement.

She is the first Atlanta woman to saunter forth on Peachtree clad in the pocket skirt, the velvet collar and a derby, wearing a monocle and swinging a rattan cane. It would be unnecessary to mention that she made a hit. Also that she failed to encounter police interference.

In fact, she strolled boldly in front of police headquarters one busy Saturday afternoon, walked past Chief Beavers, and very proudly heard that conscientious arbiter of civic morals remark:

"Now, that's what appeals to me. It's sensible. It's classy. It's pretty. Also a handsome girl."

Miss Clack is the daughter of Professor Clark, who belongs to the plainclothes "view" school. Her home is on Peachtree street, and she is a manufacturer and retailer of mannish garb. It is merely a fact, but as she herself has to say, it is a fact that eventually will be adopted by the whole feminine world.

"Pretty soon," she declares, "there will be but little difference between man and woman. Spreads of costume from purely a standpoint of costume."

How She Became Imbued With the Fad.

It was a few years ago that she became imbued with the fad. That was when she wore short skirts, her hair in a single strand and bobbed. The Clack family lived next door to two young boys who were very popular with the girls. One day she and a girl chum stole into the neighboring backyard and availed themselves of a pair of trousers—two pairs—and two coats that flapped on the family clothes line.

"They donned the suits and strutted about their own haunts," she says, "and you please. A passer-by or a man of course—who had an admiration for an unassuming and a little more certain lines, gazed with awe and beauty. 'Gee, you girls, you are good!' 'You ought to wear 'em all the time.' 'Naturally, Miss Clack and her chum skirted in dainty and elegant attire at home. They raved juvenile wrath upon the head of the unscrupulous pedestrian, but, deep in their hearts, their hearts of hearts, they cherished his undue bit of praise. It was nothing but native vanity, but it was the wail of woman—and what is more, overpowering.

The seed was sown. Three years later—may be less—the chum went to New York, thence to London, where she was a militant, throwing bricks and counterbricks, and her happiness away. Miss Clack remained at home. Although she's not a militant, her original style of costume causes her to look enough like a girl to inspire more men to do so instinctively whenever she glances his way.

Obviously, she is naturally feminine. Which makes her a lot more original than she believes herself to be. A girl with girlish ways and a shock of blonde hair that would make Xanthippe roll in her grave, who teaches the existences of girlish zigs for the more rugged and less beautiful dress of the male, and yet remains all an impulsive girl is expected to be, is quite unusual, yes, green phenomenal.

Does Not Believe In Women Voting.

She doesn't believe woman should have the ballot, because she believes woman has got all she can stand to right now and for centuries to come. She doesn't believe in woman being anything but "woman," pure and simple and pretty, although she doesn't care how woman dresses.

"One doesn't need to be mannish in nature to wear mannish clothes, walk mannishly and act mannishly in a lot of ways," she says. "We've got enough men without masculine women. We need mannish men and womanly women. They need each other, too, and it doesn't matter a whoop how they dress."

And she continues:

"I wear mannish clothes because I like them, not because I want to emulate man in any manner. It happens that the only sensible clothes are worn by men. If I were a man and woman were the most logical dress, I'd wear woman's attire."

"Half of the average woman's life is spent in dressing, planning for dress and taking off what she has on. That's an absolute fact. Some of them spend more than half, and lose part of the other half by worrying."

"Man's clothes are simple, easy to wear and convenient. And look what all they'll do for the man. They make him look like a man, love letters everything, anything. No more of this over-dressing your hands with a young party store. Put it in your vest and the pockets in your skirt and your coat."

"And, then, a tone of mannishness adds to the beauty of certain types. The modern woman isn't as weak and frail as her sister of a few years ago. She has become a giant in most respects, everything from strength to character. Therefore, her strength requires a consistent dress."

"That's why I wear mannish clothes, and why I'm making such new dresses more mannish than the other. I'm as strong and able as most average men—stronger than some—and I can do a whole lot of things a lot of them are too weak to do. I'm going the limit, which means I'm wearing out the cut of my hair. When it comes to that I return to type."

A reporter who recently sought an interview from mannish Miss Clack found that she held the same views of styles as held by the famous Paul Poiret, the French designer, who is now in America on a visit.

"American women," echoes Miss Clack, "should be the most daring and candid in the world. We are of a new country, unhampered by traditions of those times. It is woman's part to be fascinating and to entice the men. We are the best constructed women in the world, but we wear ivory—follow the modes created by others. It is our duty to follow our individual tastes there's no telling but what America, like Paris, would soon be the fashion center of the universe."

Miss Clack also posed for pictures. A glance at them is sufficient to see why she wears mannish clothes. The photographs in which her hair posed is said by her to represent a characteristic attitude.

"You see," she says, "it is as though I were asking a father for the hand of his daughter."

However, I haven't got that masculine as yet.

"If it comes to a point where I have to do the proposing, I'll revert back to maiden and brooded."

And, as the reader can judge from her answers, she is not a C-O-N-S-I-D-E-R-A-B-L-E reversion.

DANCING MASTER QUILTS THE BALLROOM WITH A MATHEMATICAL DENOUNCING "TURKEY TROT" AND "TANGO" AS IMMORAL

By J. Walter Lee.

"Dancing, did you say? 'Suffice it to brook'! Whichever that dear word slowly and sadly, for 'dancing' is fast becoming a lost art. As for me, I'll THROUGH WITH IT FOREVER!"

Stinging words are these for a man to utter against his chosen profession—the calling in which he has spent nine years of his life in earnest study and development. Yet these bitter words, spoken a few days ago in Atlanta, forced the climax to the dancing master career of J. Sterling Roberts—one of the pioneers Atlanta family and a man who has won appreciation in all parts of the country for his success in the art of teaching dancing.

But now, though still in the prime of his strength, he has decided to retire from the profession. He turns his back upon the bright prospects of his professional career, and returning to the city of his birth, Atlanta—he has begun a business life this past week with his brother, J. B. Roberts, in the insurance business. And he stoutly declares that it is for no other reason than that during the past two years his influence—like the influence, so he says, of all the dancing masters in the world has been borne in by the warping and his pleading his pupils rush-pelmed into the audacious and immoral dancing of the "turkey trot."

A DANCING MASTER AND HIS LOST IDEALS.

"Now I've got no illusions to sell," is the way Professor Roberts prefaced his remarks on modern dancing in a conversation a few days ago. He has left the old dance-master's life with a sigh, and then "resounded" the business and wrote a letter on "From the Ballroom to Hell," in order to make a living. Sterling Roberts is bidding adieu to the role of dancing master in the broad-day of his success, and only a few months after his new "Electrical Polonaise," which he invented and rendered before the American National Association of Dancing Masters, at their annual convention at Niagara, tarried his audience and commanded the applause of the press.

Directly after that feat, however, Professor Roberts returned to the south he went to one of the larger cities of Mississippi, where he had been in the habit of dancing for a number of months, and he beheld his former pupils dancing the "turkey trot" and the "Tango" in one of the fashionable clubs in a way that shocked him. He left the city in disgust.

He visited a number of other cities and there he found the same thing going after the hugging one-step. He came to a dancing class, but the story was repeated. He showed his pupils the "decent" way of dancing the one-step, as well as the more refined dance, but after that the clubs and room he found that all they did at their clubs and private home dances was to "grab each other about the waist and trot on—so that the animals they so ridiculously imitate." SOUTH STRUCK BY WAVE OF IMMORAL DANCING.

"A wave of immoral dancing" is what Professor Roberts terms the dance of the turkey trot and tango. "Nine years ago, when I began teaching society dancing, no such things as animal dances were known. About four years ago, and two or three days ago, 'The good old slide waltz' was the most popular ballroom dance in the world, and the waltz came next in popularity.

"About four years ago, however, a wave of immoral, indecent, ungraceful dancing struck the north and the west, spreading like wildfire, and not reaching the more conservative south until about two years ago. During the past two years, southern society itself has turned upon its dearest traditions and trained its where angels fear to tread. Within these two years the indecent aspect and suggestiveness of the dance has been growing steadily worse all the time.

"The members of the American National Association of Dancing Masters have checked the wave. I think they have done everything in their power to remedy the evil. They have done their utmost to elevate the art of dancing and put it on the high plane that it formerly occupied—but their efforts seem to be fruitless. At their conventions they refuse to adopt indecent dances or indecent positions in face of the fact that the dancing public demands such dances and positions.

"TANGO" IS VULGAR.

"TURKEY TROT" A JOKE.

"The latest craze—and I use the word 'craze' literally—is the Tango, a vulgar dance, absolutely devoid of the poise of motion. The turkey trot, the bear dance and bunny hug are mere jokes, among men who know dancing. When you eliminate the best positions of those dances there is nothing left of the dance. I can safely make the statement that the turkey trot is very rarely danced in the cities, and the 'Tango' never. The Tango is essentially, through its South American origin and through its present practice over the country, an indecent dance. No such dances, also is indecent.

"No such dances cannot be danced in the lowest dives of New York city, because the situation got so bad that the authorities were compelled to take a hand and stop it. It is just as prohibited by law in New York City. And yet the situation is at present as bad as it ever was in New York.

"The sad part is that mothers will sit in the ballroom and see their daughters go through the vulgar movements of the tango and tango, and have been lowered within the past two years that they offer no protest. And one of the saddest situations of the world has arisen. It is a man's duty to strike adieus to the heart of any woman to see his life's ideals and ambition shattered by the degradation of art. For my part, I am through with it forever.

ARGUMENT RAGES OVER FATE OF DANCING.

This arraignment by Professor Roberts summarizes one of the many scathing denunciations that have been uttered within the past few months against the new "animal dances." A sensation was created in London this summer, and discussion which has reached even to the corners of this country, by a letter in The London Times, signed by "A Peers." This lady called upon the newspaper for his powerful aid, pointing out that she was one of the many matrons upon whom devolves the task of guiding a girl through the mazes of a London season, and stating that she was "face to face with a state of affairs in most, but not all, of the ballrooms, calling for immediate attention."

"A Peers," in her letter, accented as to what her grandmother

Right and Wrong Way of Dancing the Tango

In the upper right-hand picture is Professor J. Sterling Roberts, the Atlanta man who, after nine years in the profession, renounces his work as dancing master, uttering anathemas on the "tango" and the "turkey trot." The three smaller pictures reveal poses from the so-called "Tango Argentin," which is probably one of the worst forms of the new animal dances. Contrasted with this is the picture on the left, showing the proper way of the tango, called the "Tango Bresilien," posed by Monsieur Duque, its inventor, a celebrated French teacher, and Mlle. Arlette Dorgere. These pictures show in striking contrast the decent and the indecent way of grasping partners for the tango.

would have said "had she been asked to introduce a well-brought-up girl to the scandalous travesties of dancing, which are for the first time in our recollection bringing more young men to parties than are needed."

In the face of these and similar attacks, however, there have been those who as warmly defend the new dances. A recent issue of The Dancing Times, for example, declares that the new version of the Tango is graceful, decorous and worthy of a place in any ballroom.

"TANGO ARGENTIN" VERSUS "TANGO BRESILIEN" VERSUS "TANGO ARGENTIN."

The writer in The Dancing Times, however, was referring to the new "Tango Bresilien," a recent invention of Monsieur Duque's, shown at the "Theater Femina," in Paris, and not to the "Tango Argentin," the dance which has given such an unsavory reputation to the Tango in America. M. Duque, who is one of the best-known dancing teachers of Europe is and, con, is believed to be a beginning of the movement to raise the dance to its former high standard in the realm of the ballroom.

"What shall we do with the turkey trot?" is the question propounded by Harold J. Howland, written in the October issue of Suburban Life. And answered in the same issue. "The turkey trot has come to stay," he sums up the situation. "You can't get rid of it. It is here to stay. You can bring back the hoop skirt by executive order. So do the dance. But use all your influence to keep it wholesome and decent. Use your influence to create in the community, among young people and among their elders, a public opinion which shall rebuke the splendid recreation of dancing. Not all it is admitted, but if they dance them as they did the old dances—for the fascinating rhythm they contain—the art is not dead or dying, but will go on developing to wards the final aim of perfection which on the other hand, dances are drawn to these new dances because of the vulgar position—the contact of body and limb—the 'dreamy stimulation' to the passions, which they undoubtedly realize. The Parent-Teacher Association of the W. B. Blanton school held its first meeting of the new year last Friday afternoon at the school. Mrs. Gable, the president, was in the chair. In a very brief speech she thanked the ladies for their attendance and interest, and extended the plea for the coming year's work. She spoke of the best value of this organization as a constructive force in school life and of the help it can be to teachers, parents and children. She stressed the importance of co-operation, showing that the teacher's work with parents and children is not a mere matter of work-together in all things. The short business session showed matters in excellent condition. Twenty new members were added to the club. The two main addresses of the afternoon were made by Miss Mary Thomas, secretary, and Miss Margaret Williams, president. ### NEW TRAFFIC LAWS PLANNED FOR CITY

Mayor Woodward, Chief Cummings and Chief Beavers Agree That Reforms Are Badly Needed.

Traffic regulations to avoid congestion on the principal thoroughfares of Atlanta will be drafted by a committee composed of council members and civilians to be appointed by Mayor James O. Woodward and President William Moore of the chamber of commerce, Monday.

The committee will be instructed to make an investigation into the traffic conditions in the city, to determine what can be done to avoid traffic congestion and to draft regulations to be presented to the city council.

The movement started by Mayor Woodward and Chief Cummings to reform the traffic laws of Atlanta is gaining greater impetus every day. Mayor Woodward takes the position that the city should do something to avoid traffic congestion years ago, and that by gradually perfecting regulations from year to year the problem would not have reached its present complicated state.

Other prominent city officials who have become interested in the problem to regulate traffic on all the streets in the business district are Chief of Police James L. Beavers, Councilman Orville H. Hall, chairman of the street committee, and Councilman William C. Cummings.

Atlanta has been growing rapidly in the past ten years, and something should have been done long ago to regulate traffic. Now, we have a great big city, and the problem is a great one. It will take more than a day or a month or a year to solve it, it is a long job.

Most of our streets are very narrow, and we have very few sidewalks. We have very few electric cars, and we have very few street cars. We have very few fire hydrants, and we have very few fire departments.

Streets should be wider. The park of the city should be one of the first thoughts of the city. The important thing is to regulate the traffic. The important thing is to regulate the traffic.

Regulation badly needed. Marietta street is about as fine an illustration of the traffic problem as can be found in the city.

Alf Newell Says Prosperity Comes to Stay in Georgia

An unusual picture of prosperity in north Georgia was painted yesterday by Alfred C. Newell, general agent of the Columbia National Life Insurance company, upon his return from a business trip to that section.

"During the past week I have had occasion to visit quite a number of the towns in north Georgia and I can say without any stress of imagination that the picture of prosperity which I saw is a picture of the future of Georgia.

"It is a business way. I had occasion to visit quite a number of the small towns and my observation was that the farmers expect not only to pay for their crops but to get a profit on them.

Just From Georgia

By FRANK L. STANTON

The Ghastly Guest. When Twilight's shadows gather gray I seem to hear the shadows say

"Departed! but his phantom-lights Come glimmering from the night's embrace And share your lonely thoughts"

"The darkness cannot draw its light— A form that fades out from your sight Even when you tell the stars 'Goodnight.'"

"Surely you saw it pass North sunset—starry, gold and kind! Why should it haunt your dreams with pain?"

And thus we saw, and thus we reap: "The ghost" will haunt the sleep: God cannot shut their souls in sleep!"

Wayward Philosophy. When Wisdom settles in a twin folk do not believe in it, so it something like an uninvited guest-traveler.

"There's a secret when it gets on the fire, but blamed little when you chop it! It chimney-falls."

Just so much time for dreaming; then it's no more than the sun, and jerk your coat and make your dreams come true.

You needn't burn fire; any sort that makes a blaze will make the world.

"As long as the World Revolves— HURRY, ERIC, My Boy!"

"We'll go to the circus 'FOR THE KIDS' SAKE!"

"The Peep of the 'Favorite.' 'I've just got a new book, and I'll never leave it. I'll think that I'll get dates and nights dreaming of him! It's too horrible an awakening!"

"I've just got a new book, and I'll never leave it. I'll think that I'll get dates and nights dreaming of him! It's too horrible an awakening!"

HIGHEST POINT EAST OF ROCKIES MARKED BY GRAVE OF DISCOVERER

Professor Elisha Mitchell Lost His Life After Ascending to the Lofty Peak of Mount Mitchell.

Ashville, N. C., October 4.—(Special.)—The highest point east of the United States east of the Rocky Mountains is a grave. It is the loftiest peak of the Blue Ridge mountains, near Asheville, and is named Mt. Mitchell in honor of the illustrious man who proved its pre-eminence among the lofty peaks of the east—Professor Elisha Mitchell. For this honor and a lonely tomb on a rock-capped summit 4,111 feet above the sea, the great mathematician, astronomer and physicist, died on the morning of Oct. 19, 1857. Elisha Mitchell was graduated from Yale in 1832, and was a tutor in the university for several years. He received his Ph.D. in geological studies at Andover, and after he had secured a call to the chair of mathematics and natural philosophy in 1837, he was ordained by the presbytery of Hillsborough in 1839. Professor Mitchell was transferred to the chair of astronomy and geology in 1841.

At this time it was generally believed that the highest point of the Appalachian range was the summit of Clingmans' peak. It was not until 1842 that Professor Mitchell became convinced that the highest point of the range was the summit of Mt. Mitchell. After measuring several points, he believed that the highest point was the summit of Mt. Mitchell. He was accompanied by his wife and two children. They were on the mountain for several days, and he was seen by some of the mountaineers. He was seen by some of the mountaineers. He was seen by some of the mountaineers.

others had thought it useless to search. Following a trail which, save to a few of its existence to his companions, the year hunter finally wended his way to the cliff from which Professor Mitchell had fallen. "Was it true," he asked, "that the body was buried on the peak that the mountain folk loved the best?" "It was his comment, and doubtless it was his intention to ascend the mountain to see if he could find the body of the missing man. The body was taken to the top of Mt. Mitchell and placed in a rock-tewn grave. A monument was placed above it to mark the last resting place of the man who proved the mountains height.

BRUNSWICK TO HAVE GREAT WHITE WAY

Branswick, Ga., October 4.—(Special.)—Branswick is at last to have a "great white way." A white way company has been formed, and the incorporation has been filed in the superior court, and this company will erect the white way. It will extend for six blocks down Newcastle street and later on other business streets of the city.

FILL, without this pleasing little pattern, every part the exponent of simplicity, will appeal to all needleworkers. First place back of the design intended for insertion upon stout patches of net. This net should be durable, and most nets are made of pattern, as finished and ironed. Then with the aid of a pair of very sharp scissors clip out the design, leaving the net beneath. As tiny rough edges will be revealed, lightly whip the extreme edges of the net, through the upper fabric, making a neat outline to hold the net. Use a sheer white goods for this waist, make pretty sleeves which circles are indicated, using a fine needle for the purpose, and single strand of floss. Pad the flowers quite heavy, in fact, enough to give a decided Boqueron look. Sincerely yours,

ODDS AND ENDS

If, after washing chamber, there seem to be hard places rub them steadily but gently through the hands, and soon they will quite disappear.

WHEN making aprons, especially those to be used in doling housework, do not forget a large pocket. It will save many a step in dusting and picking up.

WATERY custard is caused by cooking in an oven that is too hot. Set the custard in a pan of hot water and see that the water does not boil during the baking.

In putting down linoleum or oil cloth have strips of mending nailed on the edges next to the baseboard. This prevents dirt from getting under and preserves the edges.

If you are doubtful about your cream keeping sweet, bring it to almost boiling, put in tightly corked glass bottles and set on the ice to cool. In this way it will not sour nearly so soon.

DATLES are much cheaper, moose-wholesome, more nutritious and richer flavored than raisins and may be substituted for them in cakes, puddings and pies. But be sure you use fresh ones.

Ilue has run into other material, all the clothes, with a strong solution of ammonia, using hot water; if this does not remove the stain, wash the clothes in rainwater to which vinegar and bleaching powder have been added. This, it must be understood, is for white clothes only.

To clean wall paper, use pulverized pumice stone four ounces, your one quart; mix thoroughly with knead with water enough to make dough. Form into balls two by two to eight inches; sew in a cotton cloth, boil forty minutes, or until firm. After cooling allow them to stand several hours. Then remove cloth and use. This formula was given by a professional wallpaper cleaner.

To remove axle grease or tar from the hands rub well with fresh, unsalted lard. Allow the grease to remain on a few minutes to soften the dirt; then wash in quite warm water with good soap, rinse well, then dip in vinegar to kill the alkali. The hands will be clean and smooth.

WIPING the kitchen oil cloth with skim milk will be found almost as beneficial as treating the cloth with a coat of varnish. The milk can be wiped dry in a few minutes, but the varnish will not dry for several days.

WHEN the wooden steps are removed the condition of stone and marble underneath is a trial to the housekeeper who cannot afford to send for a professional cleaner. She should dissolve oxalic acid in boiling water, apply it to the steps with a stiff scrubbing brush or broom, rub hard, rinse with cold water and wipe with a clean dry cloth, after first having absorbed the surplus moisture with a sponge.

FOK gum arabic starch put one-fourth ounce of the best gum in a large mounted bottle and cover with a pint of water. Set the bottle on a cloth in a pan of water over the fire to dissolve, stirring until it liquefies; then strain through a clean cloth, and bottle for use. Good for stiffening laces.

To remove stains from white fabric mix together equal quantities of the yolk of an egg and glycerine; allow this to remain on the spot where the stain is for half an hour; then wash the fabric in a light suds of white soap and warm water.

If certain heavy-colored garments have to be kept out of the rigor of "packing away" boxes, barrels or chests, do not hang them in the dark corners of your closets. Keep near the door and hang out in the sunlight every week. This will prevent moth from breeding and destroying the garments.

HANDY little boxes just large enough to slip into a man's pocket, tooth powder or paste, a little talcum powder and perfume, a small comb and a tiny glass are excellent things to carry if one expects to stay away from home for twenty-four hours.

DAME FASHION SAYS

BY MRS. KINGSLEY

THE newest parasols are covered with bordered voile, chiffon or silk. For evening wear the Mimé costume is favored. The hair is banked high on the crown of the head and clusters of short curls fall over the ears.

Bolero jackets are cut off quite short, the ends frequently tied or drawn together under an ornamental waist.

The latest offerings of the millinery world is the hat of changeable silk or satin veiled with tulle and trimmed with flowers.

Very long gloves are being worn with the short sleeved dresses and the caprice of the moment is for them to lie in folds at the tops.

Pale blue hatbox is used for a charming frock, and the low belt of folded tulle is caught at the side with a pink rose.

This is a season of bright colors and a prominent shade is yellow, beginning with the palest sand color and running to brown.

Sheer hand tucked linen adorned with eyelet embroidery and lace is used for juvenile coats. These are lined with pale rose or blue silk.

Combination garments are in many designs. For instance, there are drawers and petticoat, corset, petticoat and drawers, either in two or three garments.

The jacket of contrasting color and material has been followed by the leading Parisian houses, each putting forth its own individual rendering.

Smart little coats of white serge have collars and cuffs of colored satin. Ball buttons covered with the same material are used to fasten the coat.

The Medley collar makes a very smart addition for a vest having Y shaped lines. This style of collar is growing in favor because it leaves the throat bare in front.

The favored trimmings of the hour for frocks of all varieties are embroidered bands done in the vivid colors of the Balkan states.

The wide crush sirdle of satin finished with a large bow tied so the ends and loops extend above and below the girldie, by several inches, is very becoming to the girlish figure.

An extremely beautiful gown seen recently is of white crepe with a design sketched in exquisite colors.

The whole is veiled with a net of gilt beads.

Japanese and Chinese parasols of silk, chiffon or lace appear in odd designs. The squares, round, oblong and oval pagoda shapes will appeal to the woman who desires unusual accessories. Many parasols are lined with silk or chiffon of a contrasting color.

CLEVER CREATIONS FOR LITTLE MISSES

THE SOCIAL CLIMBER

BY LUCILLE DAUDET

If the baby kicks off his little slippers they can be fastened at each side with miniature gold safety pins. These pins are very small—less than an inch long—and made of gold wire. They are sufficiently strong to pin the slippers and stockings together. Do not pin at the back, because it is the sensitive part of the foot and might annoy the baby.

THE way of the social climber, like the way of the sinner, is downward. The straight and narrow way, while leading into ultimate good, is not the only way for dual redemption for the sinner despite all pulpit teachings to the contrary. The soul part of us is reached by experience along various paths, according to our ability to see and grasp at the time just what is before us, and while the way you might be shortened by your quickened and awakened consciousness of your need for what is best, I might go stumbling on for years and then only awake to my necessities at the end of a long and life. But, mark you, if it were only to be a glimpse for me of what you had enjoyed in spiritual happiness for so many years, my kingdom would be my own chance just the same!

And now to go back to the social part of your aspirations. The straight road into the kingdom of social aspirations for one may be shortened by some unucky chance of outside help in the form of a socially prominent relative or friend, while for another it may mean the slow, hard climb of years, and whichever your course is there is always something to learn, by the way, that will either strengthen your present success or aid you in the effort to reach it.

The girl with determined social ambitions should start out to satisfy them with a decided business system of procedure. Here is a scheme I have offered me: What have I got to put into it? That is the first business step for you to take, and the second is to look over your "capital" and see just where it is best to place it, and how much it is going to bring in to you.

In looking over your "capital" keep in mind that beauty is not an essential social success. It is merely a little bit more "capital." I know a girl who was musically inclined, in fact, rather gifted that way, and her parents had sacrificed most of the modern comforts in life—viz., servants and luxuries in the way of fine clothes—in order to give her a good musical education.

Her artist soul recognized in this reserved woman a kindred soul, earnest and fine, and she began to talk music with her, not expounding her own ability but drawing out the interests of the other. She was led to a quiet cup of tea "that they might talk things over." She went to the house—the music room, where the "quiet cup" was served, and centered her whole attention upon what the other could do. Her tact and skill and her own carefully trained gifts made her the slowest real time to think it over, what is your special chance for social success? Can you talk better—

CORSETS AND HOW TO WEAR THEM

BY EDNA EGAN

THE mistake most women make, and especially those who have reached middle age with a "womfortable" figure, is in the shape and size of their corsets, also the method of putting them on.

As a rule the woman who finds her increasing size out to buy a corset that will "hold her in" and so strong other it may mean the slow, hard climb of years, and whichever your course is there is always something to learn, by the way, that will either strengthen your present success or aid you in the effort to reach it.

State-Wide Milk Survey

The decree has gone forth from the state department of agriculture and from the Atlanta Chamber of Commerce that Georgia must have pure milk. Appreciating the necessity of thorough milk inspection and reforms in controlling the milk supply, Hon. J. D. Price, commissioner of agriculture, on August 1, installed a laboratory for milk inspection, with an expert, Dr. Kenneth N. Atkins, director. After two months' thorough survey of the conditions in Atlanta and in other cities of the state, Dr. Atkins is prepared to present the results of his investigations to the public in the form of an illustrated lecture.

The invitation to give this lecture comes through the chamber of commerce committee on milk supply, Dr. S. A. Vianek, chairman. This meeting will be held in Tallahassee, on Tuesday evening, October 7, at 8 o'clock. The lecture will be held by Hon. J. D. Price, Dr. R. E. Stallings, state chemist, and Dr. Atkins. The women of the City Federation of Atlanta have pledged their hearty cooperation and will be present on Tuesday evening. Club women have visited the laboratory with Dr. Atkins and Dr. Vianek. They have heard and seen interesting and starting facts and want all the women of Atlanta and of the state to become acquainted with conditions which so vitally affect every home.

Knowledge on the part of the public, especially that portion of the public which has undertaken to improve conditions, is the basis of effective action. Tasks cannot be accomplished for which there are neither power nor machinery, but in this instance these essentials are provided and it only needs the governing pressure of public opinion to push this work to a successful finish. It is not enough for the board of health to act on the basis of state-wide inspections must be made, state laws must be supplemented by ordinances that must be made effective.

It is interesting to learn how many violations of the state laws concerning milk were reported. The action was taken on how many cases brought, and what disposal was made of them. The code will not be itself, nor can health officials be altogether blamed when the citizens remain indifferent. The public should demand a regular printed statement of the standing of the products of milk supplies. This would prove not only a great protection to the consumer, but a stimulant to the producer.

The discussion on Tuesday evening will make it evident that wholesome conditions do not develop spontaneously. The people must learn that evils exist, the producers must be educated to overcome those evils, and the organizations must make their demands for improvement. Most of all, the general public sentiment must back the efforts of those who are prepared and willing to lead bringing about desired results. The compilation of facts now ready to be given to the public will show that the subject of milk demands immediate action.

Women's clubs have proven helpful allies in many improvements in civic conditions forwarded by men's organizations; let them unite forces now with the department of agriculture and the chamber of commerce to stimulate interest in the development of pure milk. The public sentiment must be their obligation. Club women everywhere are recognizing more and more their public duty to their community, to this call. They must stand ready to foster this important interest and give opportunity for its practical expression in connection with the milk survey.

The interrelation between the well-being of the community and that of the individual becomes very clear when it is seriously considered. Human life is the greatest asset of the state. Its conservation should be our greatest task. Women's clubs are interested in securing for the state the means of much which our federal laws are adequate and enforced to conserve public health. It means even more that state laws should supplement the federal law, and it means most that the city or county in which we live has effective food regulations.

Public sentiment will fight the wrongs and correct the deficiencies that now exist. No one will gainsay that the regulation of the milk supply is one of the "inalienable rights" of women. There is need of the woman's interest, the domestic sense of cleanliness and the active demand from the consumers' point of view.

When the representative women of the state meet in Cuthbert at the annual meeting, set in motion this great engine of public opinion as regards pure milk. If this work is broadly undertaken the department which determines the milk standard will be of inestimable value to the state.

EVERY woman has need of at least one gown which may be worn on almost any occasion, and the ones shown here are among the very newest so-called tailored costumes.

The large figure in the center is more extreme than the others, being of dark broadcloth and brilliant plaid silk, with skirt draped and knotted at the knees.

The suspender effect in the upper left-hand corner is very pretty with its black corduroy skirt and blouse of plaid silk, covered with chiffon. The suspenders and lower portions of the sleeves are of the corduroy.

The dress directly opposite this is of brown cloth, quite simple, but very stylish.

The smaller center figure wears a light frock, the turned back pleats and butterfly bow giving it unusual style.

In the lower left-hand corner is shown a black and white whipcord model, draped in back, and with a panel embroidered at the end. The black charmeuse in the right-hand corner is made with the apron effect, and is untrimmed except for black and white buttons.

Yale Is Developing Slowly. Quarterbacks in Demand. Presence of Many Good Drop Kickers May Upset Some Season's Dope.

By Edward R. Buschell. Philadelphia, Pa., October 4.—(Special.)—Although the eastern intercollegiate football season is now but one week old, enough has been seen of it to warrant the prediction that the 1913 brand of football will be a marked improvement in every respect over anything the game has produced since the radical change in the rules following the season of 1906.

Each game was featured by a splendid display of back and cleaveback in the use of the forward pass totally unexpected in the initial game. It was rather the individual strength of a few players coupled with really good

Veterans Form Backbone of World's Series Rivals; Review of the Last Meeting

New York, October 4.—Veterans of the memorable struggle between the Giants and Athletics for the world's championship in 1911—which the Athletics won by four games to two—will form the backbone of the two teams when they meet each other again in the world's series on the afternoon of October 10.

Of the twenty-five players who went on the Athletics in the world's series series of 1911, only one, Harry Sawyer, is still in the "big league" of twenty-five, which Connie Mack has prepared as eligible for the forthcoming game. In the only man who played in 1911 who will not play again in 1913, the absence of series of 1911 will, therefore, be in large measure, a contest between the same men who engaged in the series of 1911.

Famous Paris Bohemian Tells of the Renowned "Black Cat"

Adolph Willitte, the Great French Caricaturist, Was a Charter Member of the Little Montmartre "Chat Noir"—The Inside Story of the Establishment of the Cabaret.

(Copyright, 1913, by Curtis Brown.) Paris, October 4.—Not since the early days of the old cabaret "Le Chat Noir" in Montmartre has there been a true Bohemia in Paris. Several cabarets, which came into being in the early days of the century, have since the disappearance of the "Chat Noir" ceased to be the same. The traditions of this famous place, but the true spirit of accuracy in looking at things, and the spirit of the old times is gone.

So declares Adolph Willitte, perhaps the greatest and most famous of the old Montmartre cabaret men. He is the founder of the little band that peopled the famous Montmartre cabaret, even the little of the original Montmartre, and next month is to be celebrating the anniversary of the opening of the little Montmartre cabaret. Willitte and his gay studio are now in the city of Paris, marking the anniversary of the opening of the little Montmartre cabaret.

Paradise Without Eve. "Our paradise was without its Eve. No woman had the temerity to enter the Chat Noir. In the first place, it was too dirty and another obstacle was the great amount of property and compactness for those were the days of the search for a woman. It was in the Chat Noir that I met the woman of my dreams. It was in the Chat Noir that I met the woman of my dreams."

When Whites Are Eaten They Are Skoaked for Several Days.

Here They Are "Face to Face"

THE LIVE WIRES OF AUTO ROW

Do you know them now? These are the men who put five thousand motor cars on Atlanta streets. They never turned their backs on anybody in Atlanta until The Constitution photographer insisted on recording the backs of their heads. Few people guessed by their back hair who they were, although scores of auto fans filed their speculations. Those who guessed most of them correctly have not been selected.

These men regard everybody as a possible prospect for an automobile sale. They never lose sight of him. They are the sixteen leading automobile experts in the southern motor car industry. It's a treat to hear anyone of them expound the virtues of his favorite car.

M. NABORS, Manager Southeastern Motor Truck Co. Southern wholesale distributors Mack, Saurer & Hewitt, and Commerce trucks, he is one of the south's leading truck men and holds an unequalled sales record of 14 trucks in 12 consecutive days, each being an individual sale.

C. L. DUPUY—Yes, he's from Texas, and he can pick the "winners." Certainly he had no say-so about being born in Texas, but he did the next best thing and came to Georgia. He sells the car everybody is talking about—the Buick 26, the car a year ahead. He also sells the best one-ton truck in town—the Seiden. STANDARD AUTO CO., DISTRIBUTORS. 225 PEACHTREE ST. ATLANTA, GA.

GEORGE W. HANSON, whom you are now meeting "face to face," is president of Atlanta's Automobile and Accessory Association. He is also president and general manager of the OAKLAND MOTOR SALES CO. NEW HOME - - - - 46-47 AUBURN AVE.

FRANK C. STEINHAUER—You are "face to face" with the man who helped to make the Cadillac a household word in Alabama and the south. STEINHAUER & WIGHT, 225-230 PEACHTREE STREET.

F. B. LUDWIG—Southern district manager of the Volvo Motor Vehicle Co. Mr. Ludwig has long been a native of the south. He certainly will give you the glad hand when he meets you "face to face." He also extends an invitation to see the new Volvo 45, new 1914 model. Call at the factory branch. VOLVO MOTOR VEHICLE CO. 452 PEACHTREE STREET.

H. M. BURNS—The tallest man on Auto Row. Here he is "face to face" with you. Along with C. E. Houser, he has been selling the automobile in Atlanta and Georgia for many years, and numbers his friends among the thousands. Mr. Burns and Mr. Houser have recently taken the Regal car, and will be distributors for Georgia, Florida and Alabama. The new firm will be known as the REGAL MOTOR SALES CO. 242 PEACHTREE ST.

C. E. HOUSER—Who wears the smile that won't come off. Here he is "face to face" with you. He has long sold automobiles in the south for many years, and, along with his partner in the other panel, has put some big ones across. Mr. Houser and Mr. Burns have the distribution of the Regal cars in Georgia, Florida and Alabama. The new sales and show room will be known as the REGAL MOTOR SALES CO. 242 PEACHTREE ST.

A. H. GOODWIN—He wants good live dealers in the south for the Chevrolet—four-cylinder, 2-passenger, $750; four-cylinder, 6-passenger, 1913; six-cylinder, 6-passenger, $1,250; six-cylinder, 8-passenger, $1,500; and Chase Trucks, $600 to 4,000 pounds, priced from $100 to $1,500. JOHNSON MOTOR CO., DISTRIBUTORS FOR GEORGIA. 455 PEACHTREE ST.

W. C. MAHONEY—You meet him today "face to face." He is the southern branch manager of the famous Cartercar—the car that saves you trouble. It is friction-driven. The 1914 announcement of this great car will be out in a few days. Watch and read the papers for it. CARTERCAR COMPANY, Factory Branch for the South. 228-230 PEACHTREE ST. PHONE IVY 2247.

H. E. GREGORY—City sales manager of the Cole Motor Car Co.—The standardized car. Here he is looking you right in the face. Look out, or he will sell you one of the new 1914 Cole, 4-cylinder, or the proven car Cole 6-cylinder, which is causing so much comment throughout Atlanta and Georgia. These cars are now on display. COLE MOTOR CAR CO. 239 PEACHTREE ST.

R. Y. SANDERS—Now you have him "face to face" with you, and the first thing he will tell you is that he sells the greatest electric automobile in Atlanta. It's the Chicago Electric, with the panel top. CHICAGO ELECTRIC SALES CO. EAST THIRD STREET.

GEORGE MCCUTCHEON—Southern district manager of the Buick Motor Car Co. He is the fellow that will meet you "face to face" and tell you all about the new Buick 1914 automobile. When better cars are built, Buick will build them. BUICK MOTOR CAR CO. 241-242 PEACHTREE STREET.

CARL WILSEY—He is willing to meet you all "face to face," even if he is a new-comer on Auto Row. He sells the American Hearty Car Type Tire. Come in and see him. AMERICAN TIRE CO. ACROSS FROM THE MASONIC TEMPLE, PEACHTREE ST.

C. M. LOVE—Who, along with Mr. Smith, will handle the Kirt cars in seven of the south's leading automobile states. Headquarters for Mr. Love and Mr. Smith will be in Atlanta, at 45-47 Auburn Ave. The new name of the firm will be SMITH & LOVE. OFFICES: 45-47 AUBURN AVENUE.

H. S. SMYTH—Who will handle the sales of the Kirt cars in Tennessee, North and South Carolina, Georgia, Florida, Alabama and Mississippi. Here he is "face to face" with you. The new name of the firm will be SMITH & LOVE. OFFICES: 45-47 AUBURN AVENUE.

W. S. BECKER—You have him "face to face" with you. He is from the land of motor car builders. The name of the car is the Overland, which sells for $100 Each. Toledo, Ohio. The firm name is OVERLAND SOUTHERN AUTOMOBILE CO. 228 PEACHTREE STREET. ATLANTA, GA.

REGARDING CREDITS

The local bank, that very necessary link in our business system, makes diligent to seek and inquire personal security till you get started with him at least. The former job is to see that all the commercial agencies and all your neighbors find out whether the local jobber will have a man from the bank to see him before he opens up and proposes to sell everything he has, and were the installment man who retains the title until the average merchant is so afraid that his competitors will take his work as a sign, and will sell to him from January to January, with scarcely any investigation whatever. He is in the bank to see that the appearance. Later on you wake up to find that the man who has been your customer was long on talk and short on work and possibly left some credit, but he is not paying his bill, and he is not paying the banker and he is not paying the merchant. He is not paying the merchant. He is not paying the merchant. He is not paying the merchant.

Europe Wants One-half of All These 1914 Hupmobiles

Can you conceive a higher tribute to this new Hupmobile than the fact that Europe puts in its claim for one-half the total 1914 output? Such a signal endorsement has come to no other American car, for the Hupmobile has not won its laurels on the score of price.

Its loyal following in our own land is not as you know a price following—but a preference based on the conviction that it is the best car of its class in the world.

Why Europe Places the Hupmobile in a Special, Trusted Class Foreign buyers of American cars are the most discerning in the world. They have been taught to distrust American soap peddlers, which is the cost of quality.

COTTON WAS FIRM AT END OF THE DAY

Bullish Reports From the Dry Goods Trade Main Factor in the Advance—Closed 9 to 14 Points Higher.

New York, October 4.—Apprehensions of renewed bad weather in the southwest and very bullish reports from the dry goods trade checked a decline in the cotton market during a volatile early trading and price advanced sharply covering a decline in the close was firm and from 7 to 14 points net higher.

Liverpool cables reports of increased southern yields and the extension of the cotton crop and the fact that the market was firm here after the publication of the October 1st report, were probably responsible for the early advance. At this rate, lower active months should add 6 to 8 cents under the last week's advance, or about 15 to 21 points below the recent high record.

Houses with southern and European connections in the dry goods trade were sellers during the early trading and in addition to the reports from Liverpool, private cables from Germany reported that the recent advance in prices had checked the demand from southern mills.

Weekly reports of the domestic dry goods situation indicated a very active demand in advancing prices. However, and following the usual pattern, the market was checked by the fact that the demand was accompanied by lower temperatures, the result of which was a decline in the demand for heavy wearing apparel.

There was heavy covering on the part of some of the heaviest sellers of the market, and the price advanced to a level of 15 to 18 points from the early low level.

Closing prices were within a point or two of the best. Local brokers thought it possible that the final advance would be a very active one, and that the market would close at a level of 15 to 18 points from the early low level.

Signing of Bill and Possibility of Imports From Argentina Caused Wheat and Corn to Decline—Oats Also Off.

Chicago, October 4.—Sentimental effects of the signing of the tariff bill showed today in the wheat bill. The market, though steady at the close, was 5 to 8 1/2¢ under last night's.

Knowledge that the tariff law was actually in operation had considerable to do with the downward shift. Observers declared new buyers were kept out and that short sellers were encouraged.

Attention again fixed itself on the point that the tariff law was actually in operation had considerable to do with the downward shift.

The new 1914 Model Hupmobile with Electric Starter.

The new Hupmobiles, as announced for 1914, will contain no radical changes from the previous year's models. Numerous refinements and improvements, however, have been made which give the cars a far greater value than ever.

That distinguished the Hupmobiles two years ago are still present at the time. Our engineers, however, have been working patiently and persistently on hundreds of minor improvements, all of which go to make better mechanical harmony, until today we believe there is no other car in the world that is so perfect.

The two years that the Hupmobile 32 has been on the market we have made a single radical change of design in 1914, when the Hupmobile 32 was first introduced. It contained three, detachable fenders, spare tires, and American makers.

First Medium-Priced Car. The Hupmobile was the first medium-priced car on the American market with the latest motor.

Improvements Offered. A genuine rain vision ventilating window shield improved type of tire cap, which permits the tire to wear evenly without strapping a larger gauge.

The Well Dressed Woman

A MODEST TROSSEAU

By the Amateur Dressmaker

FOR five years Ethel's elder sister, Margaret, wasn't sure that she loved the civil engineer who addressed her. But when his employer sent him to the Far East for an indefinite time, she knew he was the one man in the world for her to marry and she suddenly agreed to do so—though she had saved only $20 from her salary as stenographer and typewriter for a law firm. Margaret would have been married in a liaison suit, but Louise was so horrified at that idea that Mildred instantly bought some white tulle and set it all to work on the wedding gown. With two lengths of the material she made the back and front of a First Empire frock which begins under the arms and is closed to a self-closing that also crosses the shoulders and forms sleeves for straight, narrow sleeves ending just below the elbow. High above the normal waistline the chemise is shirred into three rows of ruffles, set an inch apart and accumulating a wide skirt, while the skirt portion is slightly caught up under a corset bonnet to expose a white silk petticoat. The rest of the main went into a long, square narrow box plait, flanked by two wide side plaits across the shoulders, two three-quarter, straight-cut and rather small sleeves set plainly into low-dropped arm-eyes, and center-fastened fronts buttoning between the joining points of a low-rolling collar and the buckle of a wide belt in black velvet like the cuffs which, however, are fastened to correspond with the trimming on the bottom of the thirty-six inch jacket. A black velvet hat trimmed with an orchid sprig is a part of this costume costing $60.

Margaret has a black velvet tailored jacket to wear with her blue serge traveling suit, which has a skirt whose plain front is overlapped just below the knee by the lower corners of a black width that is cut much longer than the other portion and caught at its center to form ripples below the hips. This low, half-bonnet effect vastly becomes a tall, angular young woman like Margaret. The coat has cut-in seven-eighths sleeves, a loose back slightly drawn in by a black satin sash that is caught under rounded tabs at either side of the waist line, knotted once at the base of the hips and falls in two firm-edged

AUTUMN MODES FOR THE PROMENADE

Purple cloth was used in making the first of these smart costumes, which shows the slightly elevated waistline. A frill of embroidered mill extenders about the neck and ends at the waistline in a buckle made of cloth. The fullness of the upper part of the skirt is caught in at the bottom by two rows of crocheted buttons. The other costume is a girlish model with jacket of hunter's green cloth and skirt of small checked black and white cloth, down the front of which extends a strip of the green cloth. The collar and cuffs are of white broadcloth.

more outside garments, and concentrated herself upon the fact that she was going where milk mimosas are cheap and until that time could manage with those she's been wearing. So we deliberately appropriated the remaining $100.00 as follows: $50.00 for materials for lingerie which we made up at home; $20.00 for shoes and slippers, $20.00 for gloves and hosiery, and $10.00 for a corset.

FATHER wasn't allowed to view this $200.00 trossseau until we had it finished and collected in the guest bedroom already to be packed into the new trunk which was his contribution to Margaret's wedding outfit. He was so delighted with the work that he gave us a hearty hug all round, with a kiss to Ethel, who had particularly run over for doing errands for the published seamstress, and to Ruth, who had pulled out all the basting threads. My four girls, as bridesmaids, wore short First Empire frocks in white cotton crepe striped with pale blue, but as it was an evening wedding, they didn't need hats. The bridegroom gave each one of them a bracelet watch in silver, engraved on the back with Margaret's initials and the date of the wedding. I didn't get a new gown. There wasn't time to make it.

THE NEW HAT AND COIFFURE

By Marion Morris

THE "EMALIN" head trouble is what the French dictionary calls feminine headache, but though they may have suited very well in other days it is in one sense, not so applicable this Autumn. For, what with many and diverse models, the hats are surely less trouble to wear than some that we have known—and surely more becoming!

Paris is insistent upon the use of black velvet. Black velvet for afternoon hats, black velvet for dress hats—black velvet and more black velvet are shown us. So in nine instances out of ten, the shapes themselves are of the luxurious beautiful fabric, dependent solely upon the ornament or trimming for any lightning touch.

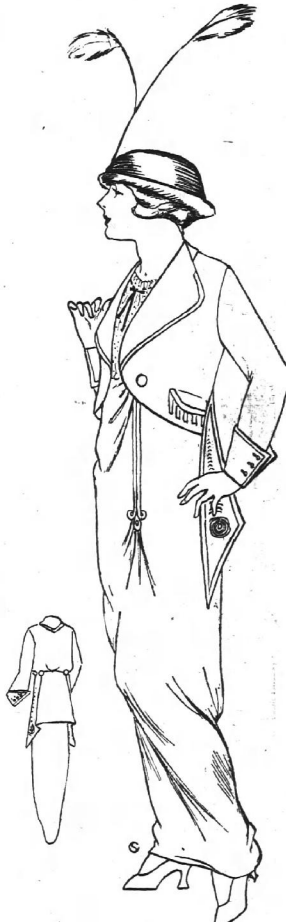

Simpler than ever they are, these new hats—and you will find their beauty of line, their smart shapes and soft and unusual touches much more charming than much elaboration. They are just such hats as will appeal to the women of good taste and refinement.

its smartness to the arrangement of the hair beneath it.

PERHAPS it is because we are not very far away from the time of luscious fruits and lovely colorings, but at any rate quite a number of the very fetching new hats were adorned with fruit for trimming. I saw patches with fruit for trimming. I saw patches of the loveliest pink and gold base on one black velvet hat, rich purple plumes with their green leaves ornamenting another, and even green plumes formed a whole wreath round the crown of still another black velvet hat.

In every instance the fruit was the only trimming for the hat!

To women who love the richness and beauty of certain feathers, the news that the Winter millinery will show many plumes is pleasant news indeed. The feathers are used in many unusual and novel fashions—and you will see plumes tied and twisted and arranged as never before. One new idea is to

A variation of the Eton jacket is shown in this illustration. The gown is of plum-colored velvet, the slightly draped skirt made quite narrow and the little jacket trimmed slightly with silk braid to match that on the skirt.

ONE of the quite fetching models not so easy to wear (but very chic indeed if you can't) has but a medium size brim, which has a slight droop on the right side and a very sharp upward turn on the left. It is immensely effective! But one's tresses must be carefully coiffed for they are much in evidence with the hat. Indeed quite a number of the models are so twisted and bent that the hair is much revealed.

And speaking of the hair remains me that the newest coiffure notes from abroad whisper that the hair is to be worn high again—that over the forehead in the sleek, simple manner that we have just learned to manage—but rather high in the back, and with the hair piled on the crown of the head. It will be waved, of course, and so arranged as to cover the ears.

It is well to remember, too, that particular care should be taken with one's locks before choosing one's Winter hats. More than one hat has been

Good Sense and Symmetry

By Mary Langdon

This is the second of a series of papers on the harmless reduction of flesh. The third will follow in an early issue.

IF all the methods of reducing weight a course of Turkish baths is perhaps the most popular. When I decided—oh I might just as well fear up that I am the fat heroine of the doctor's office—that a little matter of twenty pounds or so in the discard would do me just that much good, every second person to whom I mentioned the subject immediately said "Oh, go and take a dozen Turkish baths and you'll be all right." Sometimes just to relieve the monotony I prefaced my tale of woe with a request not to mention what is apparently the favorite pastime of the land of the star and crescent in my presence, but my converse usually plaintively asked, "Then what are you going to do?" and seemed to have no alternative to suggest except starvation. Now to have my own dear family physician talk up the same thing meant that it was to be finally driven to it. I hated to persevere, in fact it is almost as disastrous to me as nausea, but it was evidently the only thing to be considered under the circumstances.

After six baths I had lost nineteen of the original twenty pounds of excess baggage, and then a mere man took me on his knee—aggravately speaking of course—and explained what the trouble was not only with me but with most women, and you never guess it; we neither "swim out, O'Grady" or take any other advantage of the pool the kind management has provided and when you really think it over, it wouldn't be there if it wasn't quite a necessary part of the treatment, now would it?—as high as water is these days—we may be adding in another year.

GOING back over the assortment of women with whom I have Turkish-bathed, I remember that most of them did dodge the pool and just upon an immediate run-down and a drowsy couch after the showers had finished the bath proper, whereas it seems our brothers only begin to enjoy themselves at this point, following up the loss of weight in the bath with a swim which hardens the muscles and at the same time wards off a possible danger of contracting cold. My swimming education had been sadly neglected, but it seems that I could still paddle about enough to be benefited.

WILLIE was wondering what next. I ran across a nice old lady who was consulted in the support of the hair resorts in the country that specializes in rheumatism. She looked so well and happy and also so much slimmer and better that I demanded details. "Why, my dear," she said, "I had the original twenty pounds of excess baggage at the magnificent sum of thirty cents each and I not only had better than I have in years but my remedy slippy melts the fat off!"

I mentally "put down six and carried two" until I reached the conclusion that I could have four of her kind for just about the price of one Turkish bath plus a tip to the attendant, and that it would be worth a trial anyway, for not the least part of my disappointment had been due to the fact that every bath had meant giving up something else.

I promptly bought a bottle of her net preparation extract of pine needles and proceeded to devote the evening to my new treatment. The thick, black, sticky mud had first to be dissolved in a pitcher of hot water and then poured into a tubful of hot water.

TOOK a look and stayed in the tub for twenty-five minutes according to directions but it was really a little too long for a starter, as there is a slight tendency to quicken the heart action just at first. Then I went to bed between blankets and for the next hour I dripped steadily, getting so uncomfortable that I decided to get up and change my gown. The directions do not include a cool bath at this stage but I have since discovered that it is a very good thing to take a quick tepid dip and go back to bed minus the blankets.

Now as to results: I must admit that I am still carrying about five pounds too much but when I compare this with the former treatment and consider the two months I have been at it, I am—well, happy.

The graceful lines of this chic little tailored model make it one which will be especially becoming to youthful and slight figures. The frock is developed in blue serge of a soft quality, and is trimmed with tiny buttons of black satin. The girldie effect is also of black satin.

train, weighted across the end to lie flatly on the floor. During the ceremony Margaret wore a long-sleeved, high-necked machine-stitched, but she will ordinarily wear with her wedding gown a small, square-cut bolero of apricot-colored white satin, edged with pearl beads and having plain apricot satin revers. The wedding costume, including the maines veil, cost only $50.

MARGARET went away from our house in a black satin three-piece suit, which will do for visiting, luncheon and informal dinners. Widely plaited into the waist band is an overskirt that falls in soft folds to the knee, excepting directly in front, where it separates over the perfectly plain walking skirt. This apron is covered by the elastic wide band and of an orchid satin girldie that is loop-fastened a trifle below the waistline in front. The orchid shade is repeated in the embroidery bordering the satin bolero and under that area that goes over a long-sleeved, white lace blouse. The third piece of this costume is a semi-Russian blouse, which is laid in two ends over the skirt. The loose fronts of the coat and hat button fasten at the waist line, but the black satin roll collar stops on the shoulders.

UNDER this coat Margaret expects to wear one of her set of set tailored white linen shirtwaists which she has included in her $200 coat. She had a very nice sister last Winter, and so instead of putting any money into a storm and mounting coat, we bought four yards of grey-blue silk broche for a three-quarter evening wrap, which we lined with black satin and edged along the fronts as far as the hips (where it fastens far toward the left side) with grey wool. At the back of the neck, where the collar stands high upward, the black satin lining shows distinctly and makes a good contrast to the grey-blue shade of the outer side of the wrap. The black also shows in the turned-back, fur-lined cuffs on the enormous, fastened blouses of the wrap, costing only $25.00.

When we found that we had spent $240.00 of our trossseau fund, we realized that Margaret couldn't afford any have the feather shooting out from the side of the hat at a very sharp angle (regardless of false citizen eye).

YOU may expect bright and vivid colorings in the feather trim minge-free shades. Golden yellow, brown, that on the brim or any other place where they will be novel and smart. The colorings in these critic feathers are beautifully combined and they make effective adornment for tailored hats.

Quite picturesque are some of the hats with their shirred and gathered brims—drooping mushroom shapes that are most becoming to youthful faces—and may be used by older women as well.
