Probe of Banquet Is Laid to Pique of Secretary Daniels

WASHINGTON, Dec. 16.—That either Secretary of the Navy Daniels, Postmaster General Burleson or Secretary of Commerce Redfield "peached" to the President concerning the happenings at the Carabao banquet Thursday night, resulting in the investigation ordered by the President, who was piqued by the satire and songs at the feast ridiculing his Philippine policy, is the current gossip among army and navy officers today.

MAYOR AND CANDLER IN HOT TILT

Platonic Marriage Agreement Fails; Divorce Is Sought

Asserting that he had found it impossible to live under the same roof with his wife, despite the fact that they had agreed so to live on a purely platonic basis, J. W. Dunford Tuesday filed a second petition for divorce in the Superior Court against Mrs. Nanny Dunford.

At Mayor Woodward's request Councilman Claude L. Ashley introduced a resolution providing for the money at the meeting of General Council and it passed the lower branch. When it reached the Alderman Board, Aldermen F. J. Sprattling and J. W. Maddox objected to it.

City Electrician's Pay To Be Raised; No Protest Made

While Council did not hear the "grat" probe report on City Electrician Turner Monday, it raised the salary of the office from $1,800 to $2,400 a year, beginning January 1, 1915.

The probe committee, composed of the Board of Electrical Control and the Council Committee on Electric Lights, will make its report at the next meeting, but the fact that the raise in the salary of the office was allowed to go through without any protest indicates that the findings will be mild.

U. S. Radium Wasted, Says Federal Report

WASHINGTON, Dec. 16.—Deposits of radium-bearing minerals in the United States are being rapidly depleted by wasteful exploitation, chiefly for the benefit of foreign markets, says a report issued by the Bureau of Mines.

From Colorado and Utah, said to possess the most important radium-bearing deposits in the world, the report said, there was shipped to Europe in 1912 carnotite ores valued commercially at $752,000.

A third time within less than four months the fate of Leo M. Frank hangs in the balance. Arguments in the appeal for a new trial were concluded Tuesday before the Supreme Court by an eloquent and searing address by Luther Z. Rosser, chief of counsel for the convicted man.

Frank and his friends first awaited the outcome of the charges of murder against him on August 25 after Judge Roan had charged the twelve jurors in the case.

A decision was longer in coming after the arguments for a new trial had been presented before Judge Roan in the week between October 22 and 29. His unfavorable ruling October 31 put the case up to the Supreme Court.

The fight which was concluded Tuesday is regarded as virtually the last stand of the defense, as the seal of the Supreme Court's unanimous approval on the verdict of the jury and the subsequent decision of Judge Roan will make it most difficult to obtain anything beyond a temporary respite from the Federal courts or the Governor of the State.

Tuesday was occupied in the conclusion of Solicitor Dorsey's argument and by arguments by Attorney Rosser and Attorney General Felder. Rosser attacked savagely the attitude of the Attorney General and the Solicitor in their persistence in the admissibility of all the evidence that went before the jury that convicted Frank and in their contention that nothing improper was done by the State in obtaining evidence.

Frank's lawyers charged that the entire bulk of the testimony bearing on Frank's alleged immorality and perversion was introduced for the sole purpose of obtaining Frank's conviction on the charge of murder and not because it had any actual relevancy to the crime of which Frank was accused.

"That jury may have thought they were writing 'guilty of murder,' you honors," he said, "but what they wrote in reality was 'guilty of perversion, guilty of immorality, guilty of the thousand and one suspicions that the Solicitor directed against the defendant.'"

"As soon as all that filth was allowed to come from the lying lips of Conley and Dalton, the jury, of course, said right away that if he was guilty of these terrible things, he must be guilty of murder, and so they rendered their verdict."

Attacking Attorney General Felder's support of the Solicitor's argument that Mrs. Frank's failure to visit her husband at the jail was an indication of her consciousness of his guilt, Rosser said: "The Attorney General ventures the assertion that this was entirely proper and legal argument. I suspect that no Attorney General ever made such a statement before in the court of last resort."

More than 1,000 quarts of whisky were discovered at the Western and Atlantic freight depot, at the foot of Spring street, by detectives Tuesday afternoon consigned to Will Strong, a notorious blind tiger keeper, following the order of Chief Beavers for a sweeping crusade against the illicit sale of liquor.

Officials of the Western and Atlantic immediately were notified by the police to hold the whisky pending a thorough investigation of the origin of the shipment and its intended use in Atlanta. Strong was placed under arrest and will be arraigned for trial before Recorder Broyles Tuesday afternoon, charged with operating a blind tiger.

The negro has been tried repeatedly on blind tiger charges, particularly when he was the proprietor of the old Vandome Hotel in Ivy street, a notorious resort.

Recorder Scores Clubs. That Recorder Broyles is working in harmony with the action of the police was shown by his severe arraignment of the locker clubs in the case of J. W. Durden, a young medical student, who was tried Tuesday for disorderly conduct.

Young Durden was arrested after he had broken into the Girls' High School, Washington and Mitchell streets, Monday night. He had undressed, and leaving his clothing in the building, proceeded to his home at No. 151 Capitol avenue, clad only in a blanket.

Letters found afterward in the clothing identified its owner and Durden was arrested. Before Recorder Broyles he pleaded intoxication and declared that he had purchased the liquor in a locker club of which he was not a member.

"They must have served some awful stuff up there," said the Recorder, "to have had such an effect on you. These miserable locker clubs that dish out poison to young men should be severely dealt with."

W. M. Slaton, Superintendent of Schools, appeared in court to make a plea of clemency for Durden. On this plea, the student was fined only $15.75 and warned to refrain from further visits to locker clubs.

Lanford Opens Crusade. Chief Lanford declared that the raids conducted on the locker clubs Monday is but a forerunner of a campaign of watchfulness that will include every club in the city, from the highest to the lowest.

SLAYER ADMITS TRIO KILLED WOMAN

Negroes Are Safe in Augusta Jail After Thrilling Trip Across Three Counties.

AUGUSTA, Dec. 16.—After a thrilling trip across three counties, officers safely landed in the Richmond County Jail at 4:30 o'clock this morning. George and William Hart and Robert Paschal, the three negroes who are charged with the murder of Mrs. Jefferson Irby at her home near Wrens, Deputy Sheriff Anderson, of Burke County, and Chief of Police Johnson, of Waynesboro, drove up to the jail with their prisoners, handcuffed, shackled and chained to the automobile. They will be left here for safe-keeping in the custody of Deputy Sheriff Plunkett, who says he will protect them by whatever means necessary.

George Hart, one of the trio, has confessed that he, his brother and Paschal murdered Mrs. Irby. According to George, who was locked in solitary confinement in a dungeon, the three negroes had been drinking the intoxicating skimmings from sugar-cane syrup when they went by the Irby farmhouse Sunday afternoon about 4 o'clock, knowing that Mr. Irby was not at home.

According to George, while he and his brother stayed in front, Paschal went into the house and soon came out with Mrs. Irby. Paschal endeavoring to overpower her, Paschal then drew his knife and cut her throat, while her two little girls looked on. He then dragged her to the woodpile and knocked her in the head with an ax. George said that then he and his brother also knocked her in the head with the ax, and then they went by the woodpile with the bloody ax near by and went away. The little girls had disappeared, being later found hiding in bed when their father returned home.

AMERICAN GIRL HELD AS SPY BY ITALY

Dorothy MacVane, Daughter of Harvard Professor, Appeals to Ambassador.

Special Cable to The Atlanta Georgian. ROME, Dec. 16.—Dorothy MacVane, daughter of Professor MacVane, of Harvard University, has been arrested in Taranto, Italy, charged with espionage upon the Italian naval base situated there. United States Ambassador Thomas Nelson Page was notified to-day by the Italian Government of the arrest.

Miss MacVane, who made a successful debut here as a singer in "La Boheme" three years ago, had gone to Southern Italy to sing with a small opera company.

Her familiarity with Italian naval officers at Brindisi gave rise to suspicions among the authorities and she was watched by secret service agents.

In addition to Miss MacVane's friendship with Italian naval officers, her French maid was also seen often walking with officers at Brindisi. When Miss MacVane went to Taranto from Brindisi, she was kept under strict surveillance. Her maid was intercepted and the authorities claim to have found evidence against her.

Immediately after her arrest Miss MacVane attempted to send word to Ambassador Page, but the authorities refused to accept her letter. Later Mr. Page was officially notified. Miss MacVane asked that her father, Professor Silas M. MacVane, be notified of her plight. Miss MacVane went upon the stage against her parents' wishes, and has been making her home in Europe during the past four years.

Professor Gone on Leave of Absence.

CAMBRIDGE, MASS., Dec. 16.—Silas MacVane, professor of history at Harvard College, whose daughter, Miss Dorothy MacVane, is under arrest in Italy, left this city about a year ago on an indefinite leave of absence. The row between the Seaboard Air Line and the Fulton County Commissioners over the bridge at Howell Mill road remains unsettled.

Music Lovers Locate Open Date for Their Philharmonic Concert

Circumstances for once have favored the members of the Atlanta Musical Association, and they have found open evening for their Philharmonic concert. The concert will be held at 8 o'clock Tuesday night in the Atlanta Theater. Heretofore the musical entertainments of the association have been held in the afternoon, and rather late in the afternoon, too, so that the attendance and inspirations suffered.

The concert will be featured by a specially arranged rendition of the Sextet from Lucia, in which Conductor Mortimer Wilson has rehearsed the performers assiduously. Wilford Watters will sing a Tannhauser selection.

Tickets for the concert will be on sale through the day at the office of the Musical Association on North Pryor street, and at night at the box office of the theater.

The kidneys filter this acid from the blood and pass it on to the bladder, where it often remains to irritate and inflame, causing a burning, scalding sensation, or setting up an irritation at the neck of the bladder, obliging you to seek relief two or three times during the night. The sufferer is in constant dread, the water passes sometimes with a scalding sensation, and is very painful again, there is difficulty in voiding it.

Expert Who is Showing Atlanta Society New Dances Talks of Their Origin.

Comes a defender of the much-flouted, much-maligned tango in the person of charming Miss Donna Bain. But the turkey trot—horror! Miss Bain positively shuddered Tuesday when it was suggested that her commendation might extend to this other modern dance. "Oh, my, no!" she exclaimed, with a scandalized expression. "I can't even bear to think of it. Believe me, I don't dance it. Why, I may say I don't even know how—and that is saying quite a little, for I pride myself on knowing most of the dances of American and foreign origin and knowing them well." It probably is just as well to explain right here, although most Atlantans know it, that Miss Bain is an authority on dancing. "She is an Atlanta girl, but for the last six years she has been in New York, part of the time giving exhibitions of the old and modern dances at fashionable teas and other exclusive functions, and more latterly teaching the people of the ultra smart set how the best of the popular dances should be executed. She has made herself a student of dancing, not only in America, but abroad as well. What she doesn't know about the pedigree and performance of dance steps ancient and modern is hardly worth adding to one's store of knowledge. And it was plainly evident in her conversation Tuesday that she didn't think much of the lineage of the turkey trot. The tango—that was different! "Nothing in the modern dances so much resembles the stately old minuet as does the tango," she vouchsafed. "That is why I like it. It is the most beautiful dance I ever have seen when it is danced properly. There isn't any undignified 'rompiness' about it. "Calls Turkey Trot 'Horrible.'" "It is the dance of the ultra set. In its present form it originated with the best Parisian society. The real

ALIMONY GIVEN MRS. PIERCE ON COUNTER SUIT

Sensational Testimony Fails to Stop Woman's Cause—Men's Visits Told by Churchmen.

Sensational testimony against Mrs. Susie Pierce, in an alimony suit following a divorce action that pretty well split the membership of the Ponders Avenue Baptist Church some months ago, failed to prevent Mrs. Pierce winning her right in Judge Pendleton's court Tuesday, and she was awarded $20 a week. Half of the amount is to go for her 8-year-old child, Helen.

The girl, by Judge Pendleton's decision, will spend school days with her mother and Saturday and Sunday with her father.

Half a hundred witnesses, all of whom reside in the vicinity of Ponders Avenue, and many of whom were members of the Ponders Avenue Baptist Church, were summoned. The church was brought into the history of the case when the membership expelled Mrs. Pierce and Gus Thomas, a cousin of Dr. Pierce, from the church. Thomas Tuesday denied the charges.

Witnesses testified that Thomas had called often at the Pierce home, both with Dr. Pierce, but more frequently when the doctor was away from home. Mrs. Pierce would sit in a swing on the porch while Thomas occupied a chair and fed her candy, and would also pad paper balls and toss them at her playfully. Many of the witnesses stated they declared there had been much talk in the neighborhood about it.

Reference was also made to a man named Sears, with whom several witnesses stated Mrs. Pierce was infatuated several years ago. As a result of this infatuation they stated she had been put out of the church, but reinstated, and dropped again after the separation of herself and husband several months ago.

Attorney Edgar Latham, counsel for Mrs. Pierce, announced that he would call a number of witnesses to show that the divorce suit was "simply a split in the neighborhood," and that he would refute all the charges made against Mrs. Pierce.

"Apparently it is simply a case of friendship, and she has as many friends there as Dr. Pierce," he said.

An anonymous love letter which Dr. Pierce testified he found in his organ and which he declared was in the handwriting of Gus Thomas was introduced.

New Trial Denied Nick Wilburn for Slaying of King

MADISON, Dec. 15.—Nick Wilburn's motion for a new trial, now under sentence of death for killing James King, in Jones County, was overruled here by Judge James B. Park.

In his argument John R. Cooper, attorney for Wilburn, stated that the only evidence brought forth in the trial was the confession of the prisoner himself while in dress, and that it seemed to be forced upon him. He also referred to the fact that Mrs. King was given her liberty, when he declared, she was the more guilty of the two.

Solicitor Joseph E. Pottle, representing the State, said no man ever got a fairer trial than Nick Wilburn; that his confession was made voluntarily and free from any kind of intimidation.

TERROR SPREAD BY VILLA TOLD BY REFUGEES

Stories of Rapine, Robbery and Killing Confirmed by the Foreigners Reaching Border.

JUAREZ, MEXICO, Dec. 15.—Sixty American refugees from the terror-stricken city of Chihuahua arrived here early to-day on a special train with vivid stories of the horrors of war as conducted by General Villa, bandit leader of the Constitutional army.

On the same train were 142 German, French, Italian and Spanish residents of the city where the Mexican rebels hold full sway, looting and killing. The refugees included men, women and children.

The Americans confirmed the stories of rapine, robbery and murder told by the refugees who arrived here last week. They declared that a condition bordering on anarchy exists in Chihuahua.

"Property of the refugees who left before us had been seized and sold at auction," said one of the fleeing Americans.

"The proceeds were placed in the war chest of the Constitutionalists, which means in the pocket of Pancho Villa.

"On Friday two Mexicans, Rafael Remban and Jacob Micharras, were put to death by one of Villa's firing squads. We were unable to learn anything of the fate of Luis Terrazas, Jr., though we know that he was compelled to sign checks aggregating a vast amount for the rebels."

Rebels Entrenched in 17 Miles of Capitol.

Special Cable to The Atlanta Georgian.

MEXICO CITY, Dec. 15.—Deceiving the War Department by their operations south of the capital, Zapatista forces have succeeded in gaining a strong foothold at Milpa Alta, only seventeen miles from Mexico City. Fighting began there late yesterday, and was still going on to-day, while troops from the capital garrison were rushed to the aid of the Federals, among them two companies of the famous Twenty-ninth Infantry. This is the first time that any part of the Twenty-ninth Regiment has been detailed outside of Mexico City.

Every rebel leader captured hereafter will be executed at once. This became known to-day when the Government explained that the execution of Emedino Mata, after he had been captured near Matehuala, State of San Luis, had taken place "in accordance with Government policy of executing all rebels as traitors."

Funeral Delayed While Detectives Hunt for Corpse

MACON, Dec. 15.—A negro funeral here was delayed several hours while city detectives, an undertaker and a score of relatives and friends of Isaiah Milner, the deceased, looked for the corpse, the hearse and the driver. Finally the hearse was located at Saints Rest, seven miles from the city, on the Houston road. The driver was so drunk he did not know his name. He was tried before the Recorder to-day and heavily fined for disorderly conduct.

While the search was on the services at the church were prolonged, more than 100 songs appropriate to the occasion being sung. To-day the 40 or 50 mourners appeared in court as witnesses. The driver declared he had no recollection of running away from the funeral procession.

TO SETTLE $100,000 SUIT.

SAVANNAH, Dec. 15.—The suit of the Georgia Hotel Company for $100,000 damages against Collins Brothers, contractors, for not finishing the tourist hotel before September 15, will probably be settled out of court.

A business meeting, and not a dinner, was what J. K. Orr, the toastmaster, called the gathering. He said that the South could do anything any other section of the country could do, and that the South could build a great insurance company as well as the North. He introduced President Winn at the conclusion of his remarks.

Mr. Winn told what the Cosmopolitan has done and what it can do, provided it has the co-operation of Atlanta's citizens. He said that he had just closed three big agency contracts in Valdosta, Macon and Atlanta.

Colonel W. L. Peel, chairman of the finance committee, made a brief address in which he said that he considered the Cosmopolitan a splendid institution. John D. Little, one of the company's attorneys, and Judge Arthur G. Powell, general counsel, praised the Cosmopolitan in short speeches.

John Temple Graves spoke on the possibilities in Atlanta and Georgia for a great insurance company.

COSMOPOLITAN LIFE COMPANY BOOMED

At the Wincoff Hotel Monday night plans were discussed for building a great Southern life insurance company.

Attention was called to the fact that the company has written $25,000 of new business in the last week. At this rate the company writes more than $12,000,000 yearly.

Colonel W. L. Peel, chairman of the finance committee, made a brief address in which he said that he considered the Cosmopolitan a splendid institution. John D. Little, one of the company's attorneys, and Judge Arthur G. Powell, general counsel, praised the Cosmopolitan in short speeches.

John Temple Graves spoke on the possibilities in Atlanta and Georgia for a great insurance company.

Queen Quality SHOE

Five Eventful Years

Have elapsed since Queen Quality Shoes were introduced to the Atlanta public.

During this period of time radical changes have occurred in styles and methods; in every case Queen Quality was the style leader, and now you can obtain the same styles in our Greater Shoe Department as can be found on Fifth Avenue or Broadway.

For instance, the Patent Button Boot with Spanish Louis heels, illustrated to the left. This style is all the rage now, and we have them at $5, at $6, at $7, according to grade.

Or, if you prefer a Cuban leather heel, like this style, you can be pleased at either $4.25 or $5.

The same model is also carried with plain toe and cloth top.

The two styles illustrated are only two of many shown in our shoe department. More than two-hundred others await an opportunity for your inspection.

FREE SUNDAY CONCERT FOR XMAS FUND WILL BE BANNER MUSICAL EVENT

It seems that every time Atlantans have turned around in the last year they have had to pay for it. But there is still hope. For as we near the close of this year's voyage down the request-stream of life we approach now the land of "Something for Nothing." Land will be sighted at the Forsyth Theater next Sunday afternoon at 3 o'clock sharp. The "land" will be a great free concert for the benefit of The Georgian-American Empty Stocking Fund, and it will be sighted by some of the loliest tars in Atlanta's musical circles, led by the favorite commanders of local music-lovers. And YOU—and you—and as many YOU'S as there are in town—are invited to come and hear the finest concert ever given in Atlanta. Most of the musicians will be Atlanta products, which in itself is guarantee enough for an Atlanta musician is like everything else in Atlanta—he's the best there is. And although the concert is for the benefit of the Empty Stocking Fund and something may turn up that will add a few dollars to the money that is being raised to bring Santa Claus to the homes of the poor little boys and girls of Atlanta—the main idea is that it will not cost you a cent to come and hear the good music and mingle with the crowd. Every seat in the house will be free. There will be nobody at the door to take up a ticket, and there will be nobody there to charge you a dime for a reserved seat. Ushers will be there to show you to the best seats in the house and the doors will be open an hour before the performance starts—and they will not have anything to sell. Young Leon McConville, 12 years old, who does things with the cornet that stamp him as one of the coming musicians of the country, will play anything from grand opera to ragtime. And the way that little boy can play those old favorites like "Comin' Through the Rye" and "Auld Lang Syne" with all the triple trimmings—well, you'll have to hear him to know how he does it. And then there'll be E. C. Harber and Fred Wedemeyer and Jake Mathiesen, Atlanta's most famous band leaders. They'll have musicians with them from the American Federation of Labor, which accepted the invitation to play for the poor kiddies of Atlanta so quickly they'll always have a soft spot in the heart of the Christmas Editor. And that's not one-third of the list, but the others are just as good. So you can see that it is a dead open and shut proposition that this concert is going to be the best entertainment that the Christmas Editor has yet arranged. And a word must be said for the boys who are responding most loyally to the appeal of the "Good Fellow" in Monday's Georgian, who asked that all the boys break away from the club stuff for one day and send the money they'll save to the Christmas fund. The "Good Fellow" was talking to the men who make fairly good and really good salaries, but who are stranded in Atlanta without any home to live in and with no place to find the congeniality man desires except at the clubs and around the hotel lobbies.

"Good Fellow No. 2" appeared early Tuesday morning. His letter and his dollar were awaiting the Christmas Editor when he got down to work. "Here's mine," he wrote. "Now let the other boys come along with theirs. I'm not going home for Christmas, but I'm going to have a good Christmas because some kid will be playing around with a little red engine or some little girl will be crooning over a doll—and I bought it." It's fine for that Grouch. Now, there are without doubt hundreds of men who are developing that grouch—the greatest grouch of them all—that comes when they learn they can't go home for Christmas. They think they're going to have a bad Christmas, with nothing but a hotel dinner and a show to make up for the laughter and love of the home. And they probably will—unless they're "Good Fellows." Being a good fellow is the best recipe on the market right now for that grouch. Send your dollar to the Christmas Editor—and wake up Christmas Day with joy in your heart, eat your home dinner or boarding house dinner in peace and comfort, and go to the show in the afternoon and have a good time—for you can do it if you have the knowledge that you've helped some little boy or girl. Incidentally, the Christmas Editor asks all who are dressing dolls to return them to The Georgian office, No. 20 East Alabama street, as soon as they can. The dolls must be boxed and prepared for distribution, and there are only a few days left till Christmas. If you haven't dressed a doll yet—there are still a few more that the Christmas Editor will be glad to let you have.

CHRISTMAS GIFT LETTERS MUST BE IN BY THURSDAY

By MARY LEA DAVIS.

All letters to be considered in this contest must be in my hands by Thursday. None will be read after that date. The names of those who wrote "best" letters will be published as soon as possible after Thursday. For several days the men have been writing to tell what they think is the best Christmas present a husband can give his wife. Some of the suggestions are very good, too. It would seem the wisest of the married men readers of The Georgian have solved the gift-giving problem to their own satisfaction. Letters received from women readers in the last few days show that the writers have been giving the subject of present-giving serious thought. They are answering the question kindly.

labor, even as she endeavors to make his home cheerful. A vacuum cleaner of a good grade would make the best Christmas present. Nowadays there are vacuum cleaners on the market which are of good construction, yet reasonable in price. L. E. A.

FOR A WIFE.

Miss Mary Lea Davis: According to my notion, the gift for Christmas must convey the Christmas spirit, and while it may be utilitarian, yet I think it should convey that spirit, be something that will gratify what the giver knows to be an urgent longing, and in most cases I think that this desire is for something under the head of necessities. So I try to find out what it is that my wife most wants, and come as near to getting that for her as I am possible. MRS. FRED H. Atlanta, Ga.

SUPPLY OF LITHIA WATER.

Miss Mary Lea Davis: One month's supply of lithia water will be more appreciated by him, as I do expect to be able to procure it for him. MRS. J. B. S. Atlanta, Ga.

A PAIR OF GLASSES.

Miss Mary Lea Davis: I think the best present a wife could give her husband would be love and best wishes and make a vow on that holy day to keep them. I also think a pair of glasses would be nice for those that need them. MRS. J. B. S. Barnesville, Ga.

A WATCH CHAIN.

Miss Mary Lea Davis: We are going to give daddy a watch chain for his Christmas.

made of an old gold chain inter-linked with our little girl's curls, the cost of which will be but a unit to its intrinsic value and use. M. AND B. Atlanta, Ga.

A READING LAMP.

Miss Mary Lea Davis: I have solved my Christmas problem by giving my husband books. One of the most useful and the one he enjoys every night is a reading lamp. I could not give him anything that he would appreciate more. Hoping this will help someone as it has me, I remain, MRS. B. W. Palmetto, Ga.

SPRIT OF THE GIFT.

Miss Mary Lea Davis: Christmas giving is both memorial and practical. Memorial of the Great Gift which made the first Christmas day one of joy and life, and practical because it offers the opportunity to give. Surely of all the graces giving is the greatest, giving lifts us out of self and places us closer to our fellow. Likewise, it is good to receive a gift and the response reaches out like ripples on placid water and touches other hearts with its blessings. For a wife from a husband I can see nothing so suitable to express the sentiment or spirit of the occasion as a gift Bible of Testament, and likewise should the wife give her husband the same dear Book. It is not so much the gift, however, as it is the spirit of the gift. Tucker, Ga.

GIFTS OF LOVE.

Miss Mary Lea Davis: We are apt to place entirely too great an emphasis upon what money will do at Christmas. Give yourself, your love, the tender touch that was hers in courting days. Give love gifts, encouragement, sympathy. Tell her she is all the world to you. A. WIFE. Cuthbert, Ga.

'Wildcat' Insurance Hit in $450,000 Suits

The 128 policy-holders of the American Life and Annuity Company are to be sued by Insurance Commissioner W. A. Wright for the total indebtedness of the defunct concern, which amounts to $450,000. Out of the assets the sum of $276 has been set aside for the cost of service of the suits. Most of the defendants reside outside of Fulton County.

Firm Under Fire to Extend Indebtedness

NEW YORK, Dec. 16.—The Assets Realization Company, whose securities on the Stock Exchange have been under severe pressure, announced today that each policy-holder is responsible for the entire amount of the indebtedness of $450,000. "The outcome of these suits will serve to rid Georgia of wildcat insurance companies," said Mr. Smith.

A BANK ACCOUNT.

Miss Mary Lea Davis: A few years after our marriage my husband was called to New York on special business and could not be with me for the holidays. Christmas morning I received a special delivery letter from him, containing a check for $100.00. He was in very moderate circumstances and I fully appreciated the sacrifice such a generous gift meant to him. I determined to make it a blessing to both of us and next day I put it in bank to draw interest on. Having a bank account is an incentive to save and I soon found myself making edge cuts to save nickels and pennies, and added dollars every now and then to my bank account. My husband gave me money on several anniversaries of our marriage and on my birthday. The money went to large amounts, but I hurried them to bank. Five years later we moved into our own home and the couple in moderate circumstances gave us the gift of a bank book to wife from the husband, even if it can only stand for a small amount. "Large trees from little acorns grow." MRS. N. H. Union, S. C.

PEN AND PAPER.

Miss Mary Lea Davis: A fountain pen and a box of the very best stationery would be a very suitable Christmas present for the hubby, also one that would be useful and a constant reminder of the giver. MRS. L. H. Lancaster, S. C.

A HAND BAG.

Miss Mary Lea Davis: To my mind, one of the best presents a man can give his wife Christmas is a leather hand bag. It will last indefinitely, remind her of him every time she uses it, and be always of service to her. W. T. P., JR. Wade, Fla.

FOR A HUSBAND.

Miss Mary Lea Davis: A check, large or small, to pay on the home, a card of pearl collar buttons, a silk tie, tucked shirt, both the wife made, and The Georgian to read on his return home from work for a year, all paid for with the wife's earnings during the year by doing some light work, with a card thanking him for his love and care during the year, would be a nice surprise Christmas present for her husband, with happy little children, on Christmas morn. MRS. J. L. D. Columbus, Ga.

A VACUUM CLEANER.

Miss Mary Lea Davis: It should always be a husband's desire to lighten his wife's

You too should use COLGATE'S RIBBON DENTAL CREAM

I heard a young mother talking to her little son about his teeth—telling him how important it is that the teeth be kept clean. "If you want to be a big, strong boy," she said, "and then a big, strong man, you must have good teeth. And to keep your teeth sound you must remember now, while you are a little boy, to brush them twice every day." The young mother told me that the youngster liked the taste of Ribbon Dental Cream and that this had helped her in inducing him to form the important daily habit. Of course, she talked with him about it now and then to impress on him the great advantage to his health and comfort that comes with this daily care. "Then twice a year," she added, "I have the dentist look him over."

TO-DAY'S INSTALLMENT

"Please! Don't let me hurt you! Let me be gentle, but I can't stay. I can't bear any more."

He loosened her clinging arms—sorrowfully almost, as one impelled by a force too great for himself. He held her hands in his cold ones for a moment—and looked at her in pity.

"There, dear—there. Forgive me!" He half led, half carried her to a chair and placed her in it as if she had been a helpless child. And indeed, Emily Nelson was almost helpless now. Half fainting—aching—collapse imminent, she fell away from his arms. She had fought for the life of her first-born—and lost.

"God bless you, mother." The boy's voice was tender now. He was speaking his farewell—his final farewell. After all he had once loved his beautiful young mother—and he would never see her again. And never again would he see the father, who had given him life—the father he had estranged past all forgiveness. His father would never know how the blow on his cheek had seared its red path of torture into the heart of the son who had struck him.

"God bless you, mother—and good-bye."

With one last scourging of her will Emily Nelson cried out—she struggled for her boy's life and her own sanity.

"NO, KEN! NO! CHARLIE!"

"In the hour of death she called the name of the man she had loved—her father—the man to whom she was bound by fetters past pride's breaking—she must always love now.

Thoughtlessly Kenneth's self-appointed way—to the blood atonement, he would not face life and the long days and hours. Death was but one moment—and then—oblivion.

He stumbled to the door—wrenched it open—and there in the portal stood Charles Nelson.

"Charlie!" cried the mother. Then came excited her, dusk of outworn eyes and aching heart. Quickly so that the two men brought face to face did not know she had succumbed to emotion, Emily Nelson slipped back in her chair—swooning.

"Father!" cried the son in a broken voice of mingled joy and pain. In his eyes was the dawning light of sanity—of new day.

"I have been waiting for a long time, Ken!" said the man with tender strength in voice and earnest eyes.

He opened his arms. Kenneth stumbled forward into his father's welcome embrace. He had found his refuge.

And the family skeleton slunk from the room astashed, defeated by the deathless power of forgiving love.

In a sordid Bohemian hall there was the glow of twilight calm—of peace. In Emily Nelson's apartment nearby stood Mary Burk waiting—waiting for the home-coming of which her loyal heart felt strangely well assured.

Sunset—and sunrise! For in Kenneth Nelson's room a boy was kneeling at his father's feet, while a man and woman came again into their kingdom—the Kingdom of Love. And perhaps one day Kenneth would find his King—too, in the rose-garden of Mary's love.

THE END.

Do You Know--

The safest railway line in the world ought to be the Illinois Central. No other railway certainly has carried its precautions against accident into such minute detail. A general order has just been issued prohibiting drivers, firemen and conductors—everyone, in fact, who is concerned with the actual running of the trains—from carrying on their watchfaces pictures of sweethearts, wives or babies. Such pictures, it is claimed, are likely to distract the attention of employees from their work.

Some suggestive experiments have been made on Genoa with lighted projectiles, which is thought may make the place of the electric searchlight. The projectile, which is filled with calcium carbide, is fired from a cannon, and since it is lighter than water, after striking it comes to the surface. During its immersion water is automatically admitted, and produces acetylene gas, which burns with an illumination equal to that of 3,000 candles.

A gorilla flew as a passenger in an airplane from Strasburg to Metz the other day. The animal in the pet of a German military airman, who acted as pilot, the ape at first refused to be tied into the machine, but when he was told some persuasion. Through the flight he screamed and trembled, and when the machine landed he was so parched from fright that he had to be helped out of the passenger's seat.

Household Suggestions

Should the inkpot be accidentally upset on tablecloth or carpet, pour a little hot water over it at once. The ink will float on the water, and when cloth or carpet is rubbed dry no stain will show.

In wet weather clean the windows with cream leather in the usual way, then sprinkle a little flour on the polish. The result will be an easy and brilliant polish.

Used in water as a daily gargle, borax keeps the throat healthy. Used in water for cleansing the teeth, it "disinfects" them and prevents their decaying.

Oh, the Perils of Pretence! Only last week that infatuated pretender, Augustus Perkly, on entering a ballroom said to the footman in a loud, prepotent tone of voice: "Please tell my coachman to bring the brougham back in three hours." The footman went, and two minutes later, as Perkly was standing up to dance with Miss Blond, he returned to say, in a voice audible throughout the room: "Your coachman says he can't come back in three hours, sir, because he's got another fare for then, sir."

Beauty A DELIGHTFULLY DIFFERENT TALK WITH MME. YORSKA

Mme. Yorska in Two Charming Poses.

By MAUDE MILLER.

WHAT is the secret and how do you tell? Oh, it is an absorbing topic, and a very difficult question to decide. But Madame Yorska, that dear, elusive dainty little French actress formerly of the Theatre Sarah Bernhardt, Paris, who seems to be well versed in the subject, has whispered some very important secrets which will perhaps help those who are more inexperienced.

Of course, it isn't given everyone to have so many admirers. And now for the secret. The most important thing in the world for a girl to know about. Far more important than any beauty hints; they are of secondary importance. What is it? The secret of understanding a man.

"Oh, mon Dieu, these men," said Mme. Yorska, who at present is artistic director of the French Drama Society of New York, clasping her hands and leaning forward from the big couch where she was curled up among the cushions. "They are like children, they come to us all flushed with health and the joy of living, and often they have not an idea in their heads. But do they enjoy life any the less? Ah, no, and why? Because they are unconscious of the fact. And we women? Do we in our funny superiority way look at them askance? Ah, no; we laugh very humanly, and long quite shamelessly to get them as we would a good child or a favorite Newfoundland dog.

NOT DIFFICULT. "You must not mind any feeling of ennui, remember, as you funny English put it, it is all in a good cause. These clever men, they are so funny they get drunk on their genius if they have any, but they are no match for the clever woman. She knows intuitively that even if he is clever most of his manner is a pose.

"A poseur is very uninteresting, all the time thinking of himself and his charm. But there is no man who is too clever to lose his hand to a woman if she has learned how to play her best card. She must appear indifferent to him at first, and gradually allow him to arouse her interest. Real interest, or seeming interest, it is all the same. He will be too absorbed in himself to notice. And by and by when she finds that she must tear herself away, he will say to his friends, 'Such an interesting woman, so much temperament, so sympathetic. I must see her again.' Not a word about the color of her eyes, or the straight line of her aristocratic little nose, or the maddening curve of her mouth. Not that I mean to imply that a man does not care for beauty. Not at all, but a clever woman can make a man think she is beautiful.

"Then there is the kind man. One often finds the kindest men among the bourgeois class. It takes brains to be an intelligent bourgeois. And with the kind man you need not play. It would hurt your heart to be anything but natural when he is willing to play the game so fairly.

"But be careful lest you lose your heart in a game like this. For it is the most dangerous kind to play, although it is generally true that the kind man is too straightforward, too honorable to engage in a game of hearts for his own amusement. "The very young man is very much the same as the older man with a pose, although he is not so clever. But he studies charm and makes a dash to see what you call a lady killer. He does not know that he is very often a very good plan to give him some very rude awakening. It develops his manhood and in the hands of a very clever woman any latent possibilities can easily be developed after the foolishness has somewhat evaporated.

"You have enjoyed my little talk, yes? Mercé, beaucoup. I have enjoyed it much. I hope I have given you all, what you say, good advice."

A Charming Unique Short Story, Complete. The Power of Persuasion

In a corner of one of the most quiet streets in Sevastopol in the burning sun sat an orange seller, a Tartar, motionless and half asleep. In front of him stood a flat basket half filled, with big oranges.

Everybody else was half dead with heat, but the Tartar felt nothing. What was he thinking, as he sat there with his basket of oranges, worth, perhaps, one rouble and a half more. No answer occurred to him. At last he said:

"But the man's boss will say to him: 'We don't want a drunken monkey like you. Get out!'"

"A man should drink intelligently and not let himself be caught by his boss."

"A man should not drink at all. Everybody knows that vodka has a bitter taste."

"Nonsense! If you don't like the bitter, drink something sweet."

"But you should drink when I don't feel like drinking at all!"

"Now, what is that?"

"Well, if you had you would know that according to statisticians every man in Russia drinks a litre and a half of vodka a year. Do you understand? Is it your duty then to drink—or not?"

The Tartar sighed, scratched his head and admitted, "Of course, naturally it is."

"That is how it is," said the passerby and walked on. When he reached the harbor, he stopped, leaned against a pillar and gazed at the limpid blue water of the bay. He was thinking:

"That Tartar is a sensible fellow," he muttered to himself. "He is right, vodka is no good. He says it ruins your health and robs you of your money and your job. I know what I am going to do. I am going to chuck drinking—Shut up, don't contradict me!"

He raised his hand and stood as if he were listening to dim voices within himself.

"I have chucked it," he said.

The man was barely out of sight when the Tartar began to feel an unpleasant sensation. He nodded his head repeatedly, smacked his tongue and tugged at his full trousers. Then he said to himself:

"What that man said was true. He is quite right. If I drink and like it, it is nobody else's business."

He jumped up, picked up his basket, walked quickly down towards the harbor and entered the inn "The Jolly Tars."

Up-to-Date Jokes

"I haven't seen Hemmshaw for a week."

"No; he hasn't been out of the house since his accident."

"Was he seriously injured?"

"No; but he feels the disgrace deeply."

"Disgrace?"

"Yes. After living in the heart of the City all his life, he went to the country one day last week and was run over by a milk wagon."

Secretary Bryan at a luncheon in Washington, said of a man who through modesty, had declined an important and useful office:

"So he wants to hide his light under a bushel, eh? Then perhaps the country is just as well off without his services. When a man talks of hiding his light under a bushel, I usually think that a thimble would answer the purpose just as well."

Jim—"Honesty is the best policy, arter all."

Bill—"How?"

"Remember that dog I stole?"

"Yes."

"Well, I tried two hull days to sell 'im, an' no one offered more'n five dollars; so I went, like a honest man, an' giv him to th' ole lady what owned 'im, and she giv me tea."

AT BAY A Thrilling Story of Society Blackmailers

TO-DAY'S INSTALLMENT.

He found the little red morocco book—the book that would tell him the sad reason why the girl he loved—the girl whose eyes said, "I love you," had denied him in words the message that gave him hope.

"Address—indexed—initial G. Yes. . . . Graham, Aline—daughter of Gordon Graham, District Attorney. One letter—own hand and signature."

The box dropped to the floor and Captain Holbrook rose to his feet with the lines of hopelessness forming a network of pain across his face. In horror he voiced his bitter discovery: "SECRET MARRIAGE—ALINE."

And in a broken tone of despair, he voiced his pain in one word—"Aline!"

Would his faith die? Would he voice the cynic's answer to knowledge such as this burning blast from the hell-like furnace of the world's own purgatory? "Women—they're all alike—all of 'em—after all!" Would he say this, let this—and leave Aline to her doom?

He picked up the little packet of all-revealing, all-betraying letters as if to search for what had taken Aline into the tolls of destruction.

Then he straightened up like the soldier he was. "No, by Jove! I can't look at any letter that is hers. She killed Flagg to try to get it, she hand on her throat, poor little lady!"

And then Captain Lawrence Holbrook walked over to the fireplace and ground that glass plate with the story of death printed on it beneath the iron poker. He did not desist until it was shattered to very atoms. And then he raised a transfused face and said his creed with the devotion of a worshiper at some pure altar:

"SHE IS A GOOD WOMAN—OR I NEVER MET ONE!"

"Tea is here, Captain," spoke Barney's precise voice.

Holbrook started.

"Pour me a cup and let it cool a little."

"Cream, Captain?"

"No cream, and no sugar. Just tea."

"Yes, sir."

The Captain thrust his hands again through their accustomed place in the cuffs of his shirt, he put on his coat and slipped into his pockets the packet of letters and the tall-tale morocco book.

The phone was again in demand.

"Hello—hello! Give me Main 724—Barney clean up that mess made of the hearth and put the pan and the red lamp away."

"Yes, sir."

"Hello—724? Your night editor, please! Hello—night editor? This is Captain Lawrence Holbrook—yes, sir, same. You promised Mr. Graham this afternoon to publish a denial of the engagement of his daughter, Miss Aline Graham, to me. WELL, NEVER MIND THE DENIAL—that's it, exactly—let the matter go as it lays. Yes, sir, this is J. Holbrook, himself. Exactly—PREMATURE BUT QUITE RIGHT, and I'm sorry to have troubled you at all, sir."

Those black buzz had lifted at the corners to their quizzical triangle—and the bit of a brogue had deepened as it always did in moments of determination, excitement or just mischievous ban-

A Charming Evening Gown Fully Described by Olivette.

Simple dinner dress in vervaine brocade charmeuse. Vervaine may be one of the glorious new purples brought forth by the new season.

The richness of color and the simple elegance of line are responsible for the beauty of this stunning dress. The full bodice crosses in a V front and back and outlines the low neck.

At the armhole the full material tightens to take the place of sleeves. At the waist again the fullness tightens under a girde.

Extremely chic is this wide girde of very pale green liberty silk which ties in a great soft bow just at the crossing of the surplice.

The platin skirt is slightly gathered round the waist and closes down the front.

Directly in front it is caught up under a button of the material.

The skirt is quite long in back and is raised by its own line of drapery in front.

For the woman who objects to the sleeveless effect, the gown may be improved by a short angel sleeve of the green liberty or of self-colored tulle.—OLIVETTE.

Tabloid Tales

WHAT, Mother, is a diplomat? I read so much of them in these days.

A diplomat, My Child, is one whose manners are so highly polished that he can call another man a liar and the other man will never know it.

What, Mother, is meant by Patience?

Patience, Little One, is that sentiment which so soon ceases to be a virtue when displayed toward the faults of those you dislike. It is also the best investment a married woman can make.

Are all Mother who talk about others to be classed as gossips?

No, no, My Child; those you dislike are gossips; those you like a "well informed."

Is it so wicked, then, to listen to gossip?

There is nothing more wicked, Little One, than to listen to gossip, but it is the popular thing never to condemn the gossip. All one has heard all he has to tell. When his talk is exhausted, it is then noble for his listener to show her contempt for a tattler by leaving the room.

What, Mother, is Hope?

The answer, Little One, depends upon the age of the person in whose breast it is inspired in mothers, Hope is that sentiment which, when they see other parents' abuse and disown their natural best element.

What, Mother Mine, is meant by "getting back to Nature?"

It is an expression, My Child, used by those who are weary on looking for a while and want the soothing "dis-guised."

Cheap and Easily Made, But Ends a Cough Quickly

How to Make the Very Best Cough Remedy at Home, Fully Guaranteed.

This pint of cough syrup is easily made at home and saves you about $2 as compared with ordinary cough remedies. It relieves obstinate coughs even whooping cough—quickly, and is splendid, too, for bronchial asthma, spasmodic croup and hoarseness.

Mix 1 pint of granulated sugar with 1/2 pint of warm water, and stir for two minutes. Put 2 1/2 ounces of Pinex (50 cents) worth in a pint bottle, and add the sugar syrup. Take a teaspoonful every one, two or three hours.

This takes right hold of a cough and gives almost instant relief. It stimulates the appetite and is slightly laxative—both excellent features.

Pinex, as perhaps you know, is a most valuable concentrated compound of Norway white pine extract, rich in gaultherin and the other natural healing pine elements.

No other preparation will do the work of Pinex in this mixture, although strained honey can be used instead of the sugar syrup, if desired.

Thousands of housewives in the United States and Canada now use Pinex, and have never been troubled by a cough. This plan has often been imitated, but the old successful combination has never been equaled. It is a low cost and quick results have made it immensely popular.

A guarantee of absolute satisfaction or money promptly refunded goes with this preparation. Your druggist has Pinex, or will get it for you. If not, send to The Pinex Company, Fort Wayne, Ind.

MOGULS FINISH BUSINESS AT ANNUAL MEET

Southern League Season Will Open April 15—Schedule of 154 Games May Be Adopted.

The twelfth annual meeting of the Southern Association of Baseball Clubs passed into history last night in a quiet and orderly manner...

The pennant for the Southern Association championship of 1913 was awarded to Atlanta by Judge Kavanaugh...

Following are the delegates and the cities they represented: Atlanta—Frank E. Callaway, C. J. Nunnally, A. J. Ryan and W. A. Smith.

Birmingham—R. H. Baugh and W. D. Smith. Chattanooga—O. B. Andrews.

Montgomery—C. P. Wilcox and Bobby Gilks. Mobile—C. Z. Colson and Briscoe Lord.

New Orleans—A. J. Heilmann. Memphis—Frank P. Coleman. Nashville—W. G. Hirsig.

Officers Re-elected. Judge W. M. Kavanaugh, who has been with the league since its organization, was unanimously re-elected president-secretary-treasurer.

The moguls all paid Judge Kavanaugh a high compliment in putting his name in nomination.

Captain W. T. Crawford, of Shreveport, was again unanimously elected vice president of the league.

The position of second vice president was created, and this was given to Charley Frank, President Frank E. Callaway, of the local club, made the nomination, and in doing so stated that it was generally understood Mr. Frank would not be connected with the league next season, and that the league could not afford to be without his advice and experience.

This announcement puts to an end the New Orleans end of the league. Frank will represent the Cleveland club in the South, as it was believed that he would, and the New Orleans capital will probably purchase Somers' interest and name Heilmann president and Dobbis manager.

The board of trustees elected were A. J. Heilmann, of New Orleans, chairman, Frank E. Callaway, of Atlanta, and C. P. Wilcox, of Montgomery.

Dixie League Represented. Pomeroy and Hood, representing the Dixie League, appeared before the directors at the morning session and laid the plans of the Dixie League before them.

The Dixie League moguls want to waive the use of the grounds of the Southern League, but do not want to commence playing until the season of 1915.

The matter was referred to a committee consisting of President Kavanaugh, Mr. Coleman of Memphis and Mr. Heilmann of New Orleans. This committee was instructed to go into the matter and report at the mobile meeting. The schedule committee appointed to draft the playing dates was the same as appointed last season.

Charley Frank of New Orleans, C. Z. Colson of Mobile, and O. B. Andrews, of Chattanooga.

Holiday Dates Awarded. The holidays were awarded to Atlanta, Birmingham, Chattanooga and Memphis, the last named team getting the place of Nashville, who had the plums last season.

These dates, July 1 and Labor Day, are the only dates during the season where the receipts are pooled. It was ruled and the motion made and carried that the home cities should be given $100 each in the season where the receipts were turned into the common pot.

The league was redistributed at the suggestion of Mr. Colson, a member of the committee, who suggested that by so doing much mileage could be saved by the non-Sunday and the Sunday-playing towns being paired off.

On his motion, it was ruled that the league be divided into north and south, Atlanta, Chattanooga, Memphis and Nashville comprising the northern division, and New Orleans, Mobile, Birmingham and Montgomery the southern. Two schedules are to be drafted, the calling for 140 games and the other 154. The season will open on April 15.

Lord Makes Only Trades at Meeting. Two trades were pulled off at the Southern Association baseball meeting yesterday.

Briscoe Lord, manager of the Gulls, traded infielder Charley Starr to New Orleans in exchange for infielder Taps Starr. Starr should prove a big help to the Pelicans next season, as the New Orleans club is made up of a bunch of youngsters, and is in need of a veteran. The Gulls have been after Taps for some time.

The Gulls also made a trade with the Vols. President Hirsig, of the Nashville team, gave up Clayton Terry, the second-sacker, and in return received Heinle Berger, the big right hand twirler.

RODGERS GETS DECISION. PITTSBURGH, Dec. 16.—Mickey Rodgers earned a decision over Hooks Evans, both at Pittsburgh, in a six-round bout before the South Side Club last night.

COUNT CASTRO SIGNS TO PLAY WITH 'NOOGA

Famous Comedian-Player to Act as General Utility Man With Lookout Team.

COUNT LOU CASTRO will return to the Southern League ranks next spring, wearing the spangles of the Chattanooga club. He is going to have an easy job—not a thing to do outside of being assistant manager, head coach, utility infielder, utility outfielder, pinch hitter (277) and entertainer.

O. B. Andrews, president of the Lookouts, and Castro came to terms. Lou held out and received a good amount for his services.

With Lou out on the coaching lines the Lookouts will be one of the greatest drawing cards in the circuit. He is popular with every fan in the league, and his Arlie Latinum style of coaching has amused thousands.

Mr. Andrews is to be congratulated for the wise move he made in bringing the Count back into fast company.

Shortstop Maraville's father says that the boy should have stuck to his trade as a pitcher. The temptation to something about going into an when he's earned is well-nigh irresistible.

Where 'Matty Tells of Diamond Tragedies' we look in vain for a mention of that time Mr. Baker lunched a baseball game in Central Park and ruined a carefully constructed ball game that Matty had been working on for nearly nine innings.

It's getting so that any one who mentions tens of hundreds of dollars around a baseball meeting is met with the dotted-line look.

The job of American League basemen over the new rule is a hot one. It is highly never piled again is tempered by the fact that Walter Johnson is still here.

Not that it will make any difference to Cap Anson, but the National League basemen vote him that position when they had voted to vote him. He knows their hearts are in the right place, as well as their legs.

Inasmuch as the new boss of the Boston Red Sox is a hotel man, it is highly probable the Bostonians will be known this season as the "Bellhops."

A little indignation meeting between Tom Lynch, Hank O'Day, Bill Danlen and Joe Tinker might be productive of a few warm stories for the Hot Stove League.

Tom Lynch now knows what it means to a player to receive his little unconditional release.

About 300 people attended the banquet given Manager Robinson, of the Yankees, in Brooklyn recently, and the new leader of Charley Ebbets' club found it harder to make a speech than to manage a ball club.

Connie Mack doesn't think the Athletics have a chance on the American League flag next year. The leader of the world's champion says that if Griffith gets one real hitter, the Tigers two more good players, or Wood and Walsh come back, the Athletics will have a real battle for the pennant.

Dundee Held to Draw By Johnny Griffiths. CANTON, OHIO, Dec. 16.—In a bout that was fast and full of action, but savage from going to gong, Johnny Griffiths of Akron, held Tommy Dundee, the New York lightweight, to a draw last night, the boys wading through twelve rounds of mulling. It was a no-decision contest, but the newspaper decision jalled the bout even.

Cincinnati Wants Two Players and $15,000 for Tinker

CINCINNATI, Dec. 16.—Two players, a pitcher and an outfielder, together with $15,000 in cash, are asked from the Brooklyn club by the Cincinnati club in exchange for the services of Shortstop Joe Tinker instead of the straight sale of the player to the Brooklyn club for $25,000, as had been arranged by President Herrmann and Ebbets last week.

This action was decided on after the board of directors of the Cincinnati club had overruled the action of President Herrmann in making the deal.

"THE OLD RELIABLE" PLANTEN'S C & C OR BLACK CAPSULES REMEDY FOR MEN AT DRUGGISTS OR TRIAL BOX BY MAIL 50c FROM PLANTEN'S HEAVY BROS. BLDG. N.Y. BEWARE OF IMITATIONS

133-Pounders to Ignore Ritchie Real Lightweights to Organize

By Left Hook. THE Amalgamated 133-Pound Lightweight Boxers' Association, to which only ringmen who can scale 133 pounds at the ring-side for a combat are eligible, is in process of organization. This is no idle dream, according to information received from Nate Lewis and Tommy Walsh, managers respectively of Charlie White and Joe Mandot, who are acting as sort of advance men and press agents for the association.

They are in communication with the managers of the leading 133-pound boys of the country and expect to have a startling announcement to make before long. A constitution and by-laws will be drawn up, annual dues fixed and officers elected. One important feature will be a heavy fine imposed on members who sign articles in magazines heavier than 133 pounds.

The aim of the association is, of course, to eliminate such fellows as Willie Ritchie, present champion, and to keep the lightweight title where it belongs, among the real 133-pound lads of the ring.

The movement was started when it became evident that Ritchie, who was handed the championship on a foul in the sixteenth round of a stubborn fight with Ad Wolgast, intended to raise the weight limit from that at which he secured the title, namely, 133 pounds. This action on Ritchie's part makes it impossible for any of the boys who were being battling at the championship weight of 133 pounds, which Gans, Nelson and Wolgast all allowed was the proper poundage, to fight Ritchie on his own weight terms and have a chance to win.

Murphy Match an Example. Ritchie's match with Tommy Murphy, which was called off the other night for some mysterious reason, is an example. Ritchie had agreed to scale 135 an hour before gong time for Murphy, meaning about 137 at the ringside. Murphy was forced to accept the champion's terms. So lit the chance did the betting public think Tom had at that high poundage that Ritchie was a 10 to 4 favorite several hours before the bout was scheduled to have started.

There are plenty of 133-pounders of class in the game, and they seriously intend to get together and fight if out for their championship. Ritchie will be referred to by them as the heavy lightweight champion and told to mingle with Freddy McFarland, Freddie Welsh, Eddie Murphy and Jack Britton as often as he pleases, but to leave LIGHTWEIGHTS alone.

Just look at the list of 133-pounders who are corking cards about the country right now. Besides White and Mandot, the boys mentioned above, there are Ad Wolgast, now handled by Frank Mulken; Johnny Dundee, managed by Scotty Monieth; Johnny Griffiths, the Ohio sensation, who permits his dad to do his business; Tommy Murphy, teamed by Jim Buckley; Leach Cross, looked after by his brother, Sam Wallach, and Joe Rivers, who listens to what Joe Levy tells him. About four of them are claiming the title already. The Association Has Class.

They form a dandy bunch of real lightweights, at that, and what a time they will have scrambling for the championships if they go through with this plan. There is no reason why they can't either. If all of them ignore Ritchie completely unless he consents to do 133 ringside for one of them, where will Ritchie be? Not in a choice spot, believe us. Half of that gang can lace him at 133.

The organizers are a bit worried about Buckley and Levy, who are angling for Ritchie matches for Murphy and Rivers. But they expect to show them the light before long, and to bring them into the fold. The other managers are with them to a dot.

They say a champion can dictate. He always has in the past. Perhaps this will be the first time when the reverse has been the case. Organization accomplishes wonders. Go to it, gentlemen.

Gibbons Hands Hirst Lacing for Six Rounds

PHILADELPHIA, Dec. 16.—Boxing is play for Mike Gibbons, St. Paul ring sensation. He gave Joe Hirst, of this city, a bad lacing in a six-round bout at the Olympia A. A. last night. Any time after the second round Mike had opportunities to put the game lead away, but when Joe was staggering and in a bad fix Mike always managed to let up in his work.

OTTO JORDAN BEING TAUGHT HUNTING GAME

Ex-Cracker Goes on Trip in Pittsburgh Woods After Displaying His Georgia License.

THE following story concerning Otto Jordan, the former Cracker second sacker, was printed in a Pittsburgh newspaper recently. Jordan was a great favorite here and has a host of friends: The hunting adventures of Otto Jordan, one-time second baseman of the Atlanta ball club, and an old ball player, are causing considerable amusement to residents of Pittsburgh's south side. Jordan is a fine built man, weighing 190 pounds, and the picture of well-conditioned happiness and health. But as a hunter he has his amusing qualities, and there is no gainsaying it.

Jordan at one time was considered one of the best ball players in minor league company, but has about outlived his usefulness on the diamond. Last season he started off with the Chattanooga club of the Southern League, but was later let out by "Kid" Elberfeld, manager. He later joined a semi-pro team where he finished the season. Then Otto got to hunting Georgia woods and yards of tangled vines after his big heels. Instead of slipping his feet from the cumbering vines he was just dragging them along in the flush of his strength.

Scratch Out "Athlete." But what a sad difference. Jordan got a few rabbits, and in the afternoon he also got the license. He was then and again. Then Phillips demanded: "Let me see your Georgia hunting license." It was turned over upon demand. Phillips took a pencil, ran a line through the word "athlete" and returned it without a word. There was no comment from Jordan.

While he was about it Phillips played it rather mean on his companion. Leaving Jordan sitting there, resting, he made a short excursion through the woods. He shot a rabbit, returning he threw it down at Jordan's feet. "There's the consarned thing, I don't want it. Let it lay." He walked off. After a hundred yards or so, he looked back. Along fringed the patient Jordan, carrying the rabbit. Just as Phillips intended him to, it's an old trick, and it worked; the tenderfoot carry the game.

Jordan got home very tired. And Sunday he had cramps in his legs. But to show that he was a very determined hunter, Jordan was up bright and early Monday morning with another party. This crowd spent a few days near Plainsville. Jordan did fairly well. He was getting acclimated.

His Hunting Dream. On the second day out, the crowd had the misfortune to have Jordan shoot a squirrel. It was not a big one, but not until that night did they understand why.

Once in the house where they made their headquarters, Jordan was nominated to sleep in the same bed with Adam Dewalt, a veteran hunter of the South Side. He went right to sleep. He was tired; big men often get tired after a day in the woods. But he got the nightmare. A thousand squirrels were biting him. The squirrel murder pressed upon his mind. In his efforts to free himself he drew back his mighty right fist and dealt Adam Dewalt a huge buffet on the side of the head. When upon Dewalt essayed to fly through the side of the house. It took the whole party to comfort the dreamer, and the next day it was far from a happy party. Dewalt's face was swollen and his teeth loosened.

Louisville Has March Dates With Atlanta. LOUISVILLE, Ky., Dec. 16.—The return trip of the Louisville Baseball club from its training camp at Fort Myers, Fla., has been arranged with the following games: Atlanta, March 16 and 17; Birmingham, March 18 and 19; Chattanooga, March 20 and 21; Nashville, March 22 and 23; Knoxville, March 24 and 25. HELLO BILL, OR HELLO GIRLS, AT DUTCH MILL A HUMMER. If you really feel dull and groggy, or if that life is not worth living, take Dutch Mill and go down to the river. The show this week is a hummer from start to finish, and if the plans laid out for the management do not carry the show will be even better than this. With new costumes, new show girls—and great prizes, too—the Dutch Mill will make a record in Atlanta, and it deserves the success, too, for the shows are good and clean, and the patronage is increasing daily.

Baseball Spread 'Some Banquet' Fine Scenery, Startling Speeches

By O. B. Keeler. AFTER solemn deliberation, extending through the few remaining hours of Monday night, we reached at sunrise Tuesday morning the conclusion that the affair might properly be termed a Banquet.

We had been brought up to regard the Banquet era as having passed with the time of Lucullus. Ordinarily, we still believe that that precept holds good.

But we desire to get strongly into the record with the unfolding statement that the Twelfth Annual Spread of the Southern Association of Baseball Clubs, tendered by the Atlanta Baseball Association at the Hotel Ansley, was a Banquet in the strictest sense of the word.

THE Mural Decorations constituted a large point on which Messrs. Lucullus et al. would have shown up feebly in comparison. The Hotel Ansley people went to the limit of ingenuity and evolved a plan that was greeted with whoops of delight when it burst upon the startled gaze of the expectant banqueters.

The table, set for 40 guests, was in the shape of an immense diamond, including a mimic Ponce DeLeon ball park—green grass, "skinned diamond," grandstand, bleachers, players' benches, board fence, advertising signs, and all—the players in the field.

The scene evidently was of that memorable game between Atlanta and Mobile, when the attendance record went glimmering. There on one side was the Cracker line-up, and on the other was listed the plucky ball club of Mike Flinn, that came so near to licking us.

All that was within the tables. Around the table were tall pillars, each surmounted by a flag and the name of a Southern League ball club, in the order of their finishing scores. And across the end of the entire apartment was hung a great blue pennant—"Champions 1913"—a gift from the Spalding Co., Inc.

STARTING out with that much of an edge on the comparison adds weight to our original contention. Petronius very likely had some gifts in the art of toastmastering, but even if we should accord him an even break with Major Callaway we should have left an array, or perhaps a battery, of orators like Judge Kavanaugh and "Bob" Bayne, and Major Jack Cohen, and Mayor Jim Woodward, and Charley Frank, and Gus Ryan, and Charley Nunnally, and so forth.

BOXING News of the Ring Game.

Eddie Hanlon, the local welterweight, will not meet Jack Robinson at Jacksonville, Fla., 11-13-14. Filly Lotz, manager of Hanlon, received a wire from Charley Leonard, promoter, stating that he would have to postpone the match to a later date. Leonard claims that he could not reach a satisfactory agreement with Robinson.

This is certainly tough luck for Hanlon, who has worked ten days for the scrap. It looks from this distance that Eddie should have been notified beforehand, so that he could have saved the expense of training Eddie.

Chicago fans have made Charley White an even money bet against Ad Wolgast for their ten-round bout in Milwaukee Friday night. Nate Lewis, manager of White, writes that much money is being wagered on the fight, as the boys have many admirers in the "Windy City."

THIS being agreed to, Judge Kavanaugh made a fine and feeling address concerning the Southern League and his association with Southern baseball, and took occasion to deliver a pretty tribute to the stalwart service and sterling value of Charley Frank.

"We don't want Charley Frank out of this league," Judge Kavanaugh asserted. "This afternoon, on the motion of Mr. Callaway, we created the office of second vice president, and we put Mr. Frank in it—and we're going to keep him!"

THEN Mr. Frank talked, and finally the speech-making got to be what might be called general, and then Major Callaway, having put it off as long as he could, called on Lou Castro.

What followed might be described as a cataclysm, an upheaval, an outburst, or a deluge.

Before the Count had been speaking three minutes Charley Frank's neighbors were hammering him on the back in an effort to help him catch his breath, and half the remaining non-combatants were shedding tears of pure delight in their cores.

The Count has made speeches before. Once, to our certain knowledge, he entertained a crowd in the Memphis ball park, while a rainstorm fell over the game, and was presented with diamond cuff buttons for his laudable efforts.

But the night of December 15, and verging on the midnight hour, Count Luigi de Castro, of Central America and the Virginia League, made the speech of his checked and hectic career.

REALLY, it seemed a pity that the late Mr. Lucullus was too late to see how it was done.

FOOD FOR SPORT FANS

By GEORGE E. PHAIR.

SCRAPS. They advertise the windup as a fight beyond compare. A titbit for the boring fans, a morsel rich and rare. They never say a word about the wild and wilting geats. Who clout each other on the jaw and pull down 50 cents.

They never say a word about preliminary guys. Who muss each other's features up and black each other's eyes. But when the prima donna fight they loaf ten rounds or so. And never muss each other's hair or hit a healthy blow.

They still around and capture all the coin there is in sight. And leave it to the poor pretims to show the crowd a fight.

Few changes will be made in either of the St. Louis teams this winter. They are in good shape aside from pitchers and catchers and infielders and outfielders.

SAVED. We love Charley Murphy—In fact, always have. He hasn't an equal. At spreading the salt.

Oh, how could the verster Exist without Chas? This column would wither. And so would the grass.

Jimmy Sheppard's dope reveals the fact that in addition to the other National League teams, Joe Tinker had to play against the Reds and Garry Herrmann.

Reports from Boston indicate that Old Battling Redeye won a decision over Joe Walcott.

We are astounded at Mr. Murphy's complaint that the hotels in Ireland were cold. We thought there was always hot air in Charley's immediate vicinity.

The report that Jack Johnson's skull was injured in a motor accident leads one to believe that it was a terrific bump.

As we understand it, Ad Wolgast is the world's champion claimant to the world's lightweight championship.

NAMES. He is known as Wildcat Murphy when the papers print his name. And you'd think he was a lad of warlike habit. But when a fellow fighter lands upon his manly frame. He is scarcely as ferocious as a rabbit.

He is known as Wildcat Murphy in the world of jistic strife. But the Wildcat and the Murphy both are phoney. For when he quits the ringside and returns to private life. He bears a name that sounds like macaroni.

Tommy Murphy is another ambitious athlete who claims Ritchie's title. It is said that his claim is taken seriously by his manager and himself.

TRADES. Behold the baseball magnates as they make their winter trades; They hang around a gilded bar long after daylight fades. They trade a lot of stories and they trade a lot of jokes; They trade a lot of repartee and they trade a lot of smokes; They trade a lot of ancient tales that give a man the blues, And then they trade a bank note for another round of booze.

WOMEN'S NEWS THE SOCIAL WORLD

MRS. R. L. COONEY HOSTESS AT BRILLIANT RECEPTION

Mrs. Robert L. Cooney was hostess Tuesday afternoon at the most brilliant reception of the week, when she introduced her debutante daughter, Laura Lee Cooney, to her friends among the married women of Atlanta.

The affair took place at the Piedmont Club, where an elaborate decoration prevailed. In the reception rooms Lady Hillington roses were mingled with palms in making a pleasing setting for the hostess and the guest of honor to receive the guests.

The large dining room was made into a bower of roses and there the tea table, about which the women gathered to chat, held a graceful basket of Maryland roses, the same delicate shade of pink being carried out in the details. The candle shades were shell pink and the banisters were festooned with little French flowers in pink, blue and green. Killarney and Richmond roses were used in decorating the punch bowl, and the richness of the darker flower blended well with the lighter pink Killarney. Parnassia ferns completed the decoration.

Mrs. Cooney was assisted in entertaining by her sister, Mrs. Inman Gray, Mrs. James R. Gray and Mrs. Charles S. Sisson. Mrs. Cooney was gowned in black charmeuse with a tunic of net embroidered in old blue, and Miss Cooney was handsome in seafoam blue chiffon, the draperies of brocade velvet, with lace to form the bodice.

Miss Mary Flinn, of Pittsburg, and Miss Princeton, of Nashville, came especially for this occasion and are the guests of Mrs. Cooney.

Tuesday evening Mr. and Mrs. Cooney will give a 9 o'clock ball, when all the dancing set will be entertained.

For Mrs. Percy Taylor.

Mrs. Howard Muse will give an informal bridge party of four tables Wednesday afternoon for Mrs. Percy Taylor, the guests to include only Mrs. Taylor's close friends, Mrs. Robert G. Jones, Mrs. Ernest Duncan, Mrs. William Arnaud, Mrs. Frank Cundell, Mrs. John Gilmore, Mrs. Irving Gresham, Mrs. George Muse, Mrs. Martin Dunbar, Mrs. Edgar Dunlap, Mrs. J. R. Watts, Mrs. Louis Mosckel, Mrs. Alvin Steele, Miss Margaret Hallman, Miss Emma Taylor, Miss Helen Taylor, Miss Lelia Neer and Miss Edith Watts.

Miss Jones Entertains.

The luncheon which Miss Lulu Dean Jones gave Monday at the Piedmont Driving Club was one of a number of parties tendered her guest, Miss Mary Scott Ferguson, of Roanoke, Va. Luncheon was served in the rose room, where the beautifully appointed table had for a centerpiece a large silver vase of pink roses and narcissi, surrounded by smaller vases of the same flowers. The place cards bore hand-painted cupids, and during luncheon telegrams bearing amusing personal messages for each guest were brought in and read aloud, creating much merriment.

The hostess and honor guest were beautifully gowned, Miss Jones wearing brown velvet, with hat of brown velvet adorned with fur, and Miss Ferguson wearing sapphire blue charmeuse, with tunic of black chiffon. Her hat of black velvet was adorned with plumes, and her corsage bouquet was of pink roses and valley lilies.

Mrs. Harrison Jones wore black velvet with hat of the same wreathed in paradise feathers. The guests included only a few close friends.

Miss Ruby Ray was honored by Mrs. Shepherd W. Foster, State regent D. A. R., yesterday at the meeting of the Piedmont Continental Chapter, D. A. R., who presented her with the first copy of the Revolutionary Reader issued from the press. The book, a tiny little volume bound in red and gold, was photographed by the compiler, Mrs. Foster, and was given to Miss Ray as a testimonial of the valuable assistance of the lady, Mrs. Foster, in locating the unrecorded stories of the Revolution in this and other States. The work has been compiled by Mrs. Foster with the idea of establishing it in the schools as a historical work of value.

The Philharmonic Orchestra of the Atlanta Musical Association will make its initial evening appearance at the Atlanta Theater Tuesday night, the concerta heretofore having been held in the afternoon. Taking part will be a group of well-known Atlanta singers, and the orchestra will include, for the first time, a number of woman performers, thus following the lead of great orchestras the world over, which are everywhere beginning to include women.

The program, which is wide in its appeal to lovers of the most severely classical as well as the lighter descriptions of music, is as follows:

Two movements from Symphony No. 1, Beethoven.

Norwegian Dances, Nos. 2 and 3, Grieg.

Aria from "Figaro," Mozart; "Evening Star" from "Tannhauser," Wagner; aria from "Falstaff," Verdi—Mr. Wilford Watters.

Country Dance and Romance, Wilson.

Three Dances from "Henry VIII," Gounod.

Overture to "Oberon," Weber.

Tickets to the concert are on sale all day at the office of the Atlanta Musical Association, No. 80 North Pryor street, Tuesday night at the box office of the Atlanta Theater.

For Miss Mary Gude.

Miss Mary Gude, whose marriage to Algerian Coleman of the University of Chicago, takes place next Wednesday, was honor guest at the informal party given by Miss Nita Black Tuesday afternoon. Thirty-five guests were delightfully entertained at Miss Black's home on Spring street and carise geraniums and narcissi were decorations in the drawing room, where the guests were received.

A prettily appointed tea table had for a centerpiece a crystal vase of sunburst roses, and the crystal candelabra trip this year, and music-lovers will be treated to an unusually good concert, which will be given at the Grand Opera House December 25, at 8:15 p. m.

There will be all the dash and swing which characterizes the Yale organization, and to this will be added some selections of high musical merit.

On account of the popularity of Yale in Atlanta and the South and the prominence of many of its local alumni, a large and fashionable audience will witness the concert.

After the performance the college men will be guests at a dance at the Piedmont Driving Club.

Mrs. Westmoreland Entertains.

The bridge tea given by Mrs. Willis Westmoreland Tuesday afternoon was one of a series of handsome parties tendered Miss Katherine Ellis since her debut. Mrs. Westmoreland's residence was elaborately decorated with red and white carnations, which filled silver bowls and vases in the drawing room, while in the sun parlor there were quantities of pink flowering begonias. In the hall were dozens of white carnations, and the beautifully appointed tea table was graced with Richmond roses, with blue and green. Killarney and Richmond roses were used in decorating the punch bowl, and the richness of the darker flower blended well with the lighter pink Killarney. Parnassia ferns completed the decoration.

How Would YOU Write This?

A Lesson in Expressing Ideas for Our Young People.

Copyright, 1913, by Star Company.

To write well is, first, to HAVE a good idea and then know how to get the idea from your head into another man's head, simply and easily, without waste of words and without effort on the part of the man who reads.

The art of making YOUR thought plain and clear to others is highly important—not only to the writer, but to every human being. The clerk is a good clerk when he can put his idea easily into the mind of a customer.

A good mother can get her thoughts, the goodness of her heart, easily into the minds of her children. The art of making yourself clear in speech or writing, and easily understood, is like every other art, ONE THAT MUST BE PRACTISED.

So here is a lesson to-day for the boys at high school and the older men who wish that they were at high school LEARNING.

We take an extract from an advertisement of the works of Rudyard Kipling. The extract was written by Edmund Gosse, a well-known writer. Here it is. Read it quickly, without stopping, and see if you understand immediately just what the writer meant.

"Not fewer distinguished men of letters profess to have 'discovered' Mr. Kipling than there were cities of old in which Homer was born. Yet, in fact, the discovery was not much more creditable to them than it would be, on a Summer night, to contrive to notice a comet flying across the sky."

That was intended as a very simple statement, one to be instantly absorbed by the reading mind. But IS it such a statement?

Take your pencil and paper and see for yourself just how much better, how much more simply, how much more briefly, YOU can express the thought that Edmund Gosse tried to get from his mind into your mind.

This is a good chance for readers to practise the art of expressing a simple thought simply. For the idea is to make a simple striking COMPARISON.

Imagination that invents or spontaneously expresses thought in apt comparison is the good imagination.

The writing quoted above is bad, because it begins with the word "NOT." You will feel instinctively that to begin by saying NOT is something like harnessing a horse with his nose against the dashboard.

You will also see that the dragging in of a number of cities in which Homer was supposed to have been born checks the thought that the writer wanted to express and makes the reader stumble and hesitate, instead of getting the idea into his mind IMMEDIATELY.

We give you this quotation from the Rudyard Kipling advertisement not in a spirit of silly criticism, but with a desire to have a good many young men PRACTISE THOUGHT and expression.

Write out for yourself the best way in which YOU could express the idea that Edmund Gosse wishes to convey.

He might have said, for example: "The critics who say they 'discovered' Kipling are as ridiculous as the hoptoad on the railroad track who said he discovered the approaching locomotive headlight."

Or he might say: "When the lighthouse keeper sends the light across the water the little fish says, 'I have discovered the lighthouse.' That fish is the critic who said, 'I have discovered Kipling.'"

Or you could compare the little unimportant critic who 'discovers' the great writer to be beetles, moths and other tiny flying creatures of the night that flock to and discover the electric arc light. Except for that light THEY would be invisible. And except for the light of that which they criticise, the critics as a rule would be invisible.

Many a critic who 'discovers' a great man is simply an obscure little fluttering moth, lighted up for a moment, made visible by the light that the great man casts upon him.

The human race has practised almost everything EXCEPT THINKING.

Thinking and writing or speaking must go together. There is no real thought that is not expressed in words. You cannot think EXCEPT IN WORDS. Try it.

The animals cannot THINK, they can only feel, because they possess no language with which to express and formulate thought. Men deal with each other, convince each other, by thought and through the expression of thought in words.

The man who can think well and express his thoughts well and simply and find a SHORT, EASY ROAD TO THE MIND OF THE OTHER MAN is the man who succeeds.

PRACTISE THOUGHT AND THE WRITING AND SPEAKING OF YOUR THOUGHT.

The Easiest Way

Only a few days till Christmas. While there are persons who would go the society for the suppression of useless giving one better and start an organization of vigilantes for the purpose of catching and lynching Santa Claus, the fleeting desire to do so generally is born of the knowledge that there is too little to do all we wish. A good way to get the Christmas business over is to sit down quietly and read the advertisements. Then with a list of those you are to remember, decide what you want for them. Shop early and have it over. Then after that, picking up the presents for those you forgot will be easier.

THE CRUISE OF THE "PIFFLE"

Copyright, 1913, International News Service.

"Hooray!" "Avast!" "Hip, hip!" "Oh, you Juice!" "Shiver my binnacle lights!" This outburst of sailor-like expressions was uttered by the gallant crew of the peace ship "Piffle." The occasion was the annual banquet of the "Society for the Prevention of Hurting the Feelings of Mexicans!"

"Way down in distant Mexico they're having quite a time. With murder-fests and arson-fests, and other brands of crime! But it can't go on forever, and we'll give a joyful whoop When the frost is on Carranza and Huerta's in the soup!"

Mince Pie Time

The First Woman Doctor

By REV. THOMAS B. GREGORY

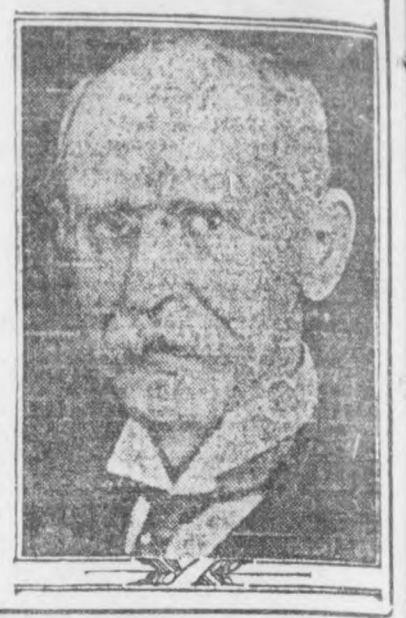

It was 64 years ago that Elizabeth Blackwell, a young Englishwoman who had made America her home, resolved that she would enter college with a view of studying medicine and surgery.

In addition to all this was the very much more serious obstacle of prejudice among the medical school people. Where would she find a medical college that would admit a woman to its lecture rooms and laboratories? The young woman applied to more than a dozen of the leading medical schools of the country and was invariably turned down. They had no use for her. They greeted her appeal with the most derisive laughter. Finally, however, she received word from a small college in Geneva, N. Y., announcing that her application had been favorably considered, and that she would be admitted as a student whenever she should present herself. The students treated Miss Blackwell with kindness and respect, but the women of Geneva were "shocked." They "stared at her as though she had been a curious animal," and declared she was "either a bad woman whose designs would gradually become evident, or that, being crazy, an outbreak of insanity would soon manifest itself." Graduating at the head of her class, Miss Blackwell, after studying in the hospitals of Europe, returned to New York and began the practice of medicine—the first woman doctor in the United States. As a practitioner she was a marked success, and hers is the honor of having founded the institution out of which grew the present "New York Infirmary and the College for Women."

MYSTERIES OF SCIENCE AND NATURE

Question Again Arises Whether the Pithecanthropus of Java Was a Man or a Monkey, or a Being Intermediate Between Them.

By GARRETT P. SERVISS

THE problem of the famous ape-man of Java, the "Pithecanthropus erectus," is again under discussion by the paleontologists (students of ancient life), and they still are unable to agree whether this mysterious creature was a kind of primitive human being or only an extraordinary specimen of the ape tribe who happened to be born with a big head.

A French writer has put the actual situation among the learned men in a few words: "For some the pithecanthropus is a man; for others he is a monkey; for others still he is an animal intermediary between man and monkey."

The average reader may say to himself that he doesn't care what the pithecanthropus was. Both the pithecanthropus! But that would be a very unintelligent attitude to assume. We have arrived at a period of intellectual development when what is called prehistory has as great (if not greater) importance for us as history itself.

The Pithecanthropus, if in Ancestral Line, is Interesting.

If the pithecanthropus really belongs in our ancestral line he is as interesting a figure as the remote past contains. We see him, with his big bushy head, his crooked legs, his bent back, his long arms, away back there close to the point where the paths divided which led in one direction to the cities of men and the wonders of the mind, and in the other direction to the tropical forests and the haunts of climbing creatures to whom nature gave, as in mockery, human masks hiding only brute brains.

He stands there the most ancient, the most distant, of the creatures which felt the impulse of awakening humanity. He is almost at the bottom of the long hill. He is striking into the narrow path which leads continually upward. Around him are other beings to whom the same opportunity came, who were led to the beginning of the same straight, mounting way, but who turned aside, leaving him to pursue alone his pilgrimage.

It is a curious and significant fact that after the discovery of the remains of the pithecanthropus in 1892 an anthropologist undertook to reconstruct, upon anatomical principles, the missing jaw (for nothing of the head was found except the top of the skull and a few scattered teeth), and several years later there was discovered at Mauer, in Germany, a human jaw precisely corresponding with that which the anthropologist had attributed to the pithecanthropus.

To which must be added the fact that the best authorities assign to "the man of Mauer" an antiquity corresponding with that which has generally been assigned to the pithecanthropus.

At the same time there are authorities who deny to the pithecanthropus a place in the line of human descent. Among these is Professor Boule, of Paris, who thinks it probable that the pithecanthropus was a species of giant monkey, allied to the gibbons, and superior to its congeners not only in stature but also in size of skull, in which it approached the lower limit for man.

There may have been a group of these overgrown gibbons developed in Java, thinks Professor Boule, and they may have been driven into extinction by virtue of the very fact that they were not physically developed in accord with their environment.

Admits There Is a Great Resemblance to the Human Type.

Professor Boule himself admits that there are resemblances to the human type in the pithecanthropus, and that its skull seems to have been intermediate in form between that of the monkey and that of man, but he denies that such resemblances and correspondences necessarily prove a real ancestral relationship.

But even if this view of the Paris anthropologist be admitted as probably correct it hardly at all diminishes the interest of the pithecanthropus, because it only reveals in that creature a being which certainly made a start toward human evolution, though it may never have fairly entered upon the path.

Type Serves to Show How Difficult Was the Development.

It serves to show how difficult was the work of developing man out of a lower animal type. Nature had, apparently, to try again and again, with that patience, and that contempt of expense which she always exhibits, and at last she succeeded.

So whether the pithecanthropus was a primitive man, carrying locked up in him all the wonderful possibilities of evolution which that state of being would imply, or whether he was only an aspiring ape who could not make good his hold on a higher level of existence, we must read about him and the controversies he excites with equal interest.

Questions Answered

THE LOMBARDS.

F. O.—The Lombards were originally a Teutonic, or rather Scandinavian, folk. Gradually they worked their way southward from the land of Odin and the Faganism for the heterodox form of Christianity known as Arianism, and between 750 and 800 were conquered by Pepin and Charlemagne. For conquering the Lombards, Pepin was crowned King of France by the Pope, and Charlemagne, later on, was made Emperor. In return the Popes were given a big slice of territory around Rome.

THE EVERGLADES.

G. H. R.—The region down in Florida known as the "Everglades" is not as yet available for cultivation, although it is understood that an attempt is being made by the State to reclaim the territory. The region is 50 miles long and 60 wide, the water being from one to six feet deep, studded thickly with ridges, or islands, from one-fourth of an acre to hundreds of acres in extent. Out of the water grows a rank grass, vegetable deposits of the Everglades are enormous, and beyond a doubt the great swamp, when thoroughly drained, will produce amazing crops, especially of bananas and sugarcane and other subtropical fruits.
