WASHINGTON, Sept. 15.—“The United States Army is in first-class condition. It was never better trained, nor more able to handle an emergency.”
This was the statement made by Secretary of War Garrison on his return to-day from a tour of inspection of practically every army post in the country. The Secretary of War denied the report that he favored a one or two-years enlistment as opposed to the present system of four years' enlistment and three years' reserve.

SLAYER OF GIRL CALLED INSANE BY GERMAN

N. Y. STIRRED BY CRIME REGITAL

Priest Tells How He Slew Girl, Dismembered Body and Threw Pieces Into Hudson River.

NEW YORK, Sept. 15.—Hans Schmidt, aged 32, who officiated as a priest at St. Joseph's Catholic Church, in Harlem, who is held in the Tombs following his confession that he had killed Anna Amuller, the victim in the Hudson River mystery, was declared insane by the courts in Germany, according to a cablegram received to-day from Mainz, Germany.

NEW YORK, Sept. 15.—Hans Schmidt, aged 32, who officiated as a priest at St. Joseph's Catholic Church, in Harlem, who is held in the Tombs following his confession that he had killed Anna Amuller, the victim in the Hudson River mystery, was declared insane by the courts in Germany, according to a cablegram received to-day from Mainz, Germany.

While Schmidt sits calmly in his cell, announcing in a matter of fact way that he is ready to pay the penalty for his crime, the distinguished members of the Catholic clergy here, piecing together Schmidt's rather disconnected story of his past, are making efforts to lift the hidden pages of Schmidt's early history in an effort to prove that not only is the man insane, but that he was thrown into jail in Europe as an impostor and that he never was ordained as a priest.

Through as clever a bit of detective work as the police department here has ever experienced, suspicion finally directed itself upon Schmidt. The officers could hardly credit their conclusions and were placed in a delicate position as to how to approach the priest. Finally, however, they went to the rectory after midnight Sunday, summoned the priest from his room where he was preparing to retire and got him down to the reception room.

Hardly had the priest stepped into the room when Inspector Faurer, waving the picture of the murdered girl before the priest's eyes, demanded: “Where is that girl?”

Schmidt gave one quick glance at the picture, staggered and almost fell. Then he said: “I killed her; I killed her because I loved her. Then I drank her blood.”

Schmidt was ordered to dress and accompany the officers to the station. He wanted to go alone to his room, but the detectives insisted upon accompanying him. Schmidt asked permission then to go to the bathroom, but he was searched first and a razor was found on his person.

“What were you going to do with that—kill yourself?” Schmidt was asked.

“Yes,” he answered calmly. “I made up my mind to kill myself if I ever was arrested. But I never thought I would be.”

Schmidt after being taken to the police station, made a confession that covered about 40 pages. He said that he met Anna Amuller about two years before, when he was connected with the St. Boniface Church where Miss Amuller was employed as a servant.

“I became infatuated with her,” declared Schmidt, “and decided to rent a flat for her.”

He rented a tiny place at No. 68 Broadway avenue, paid a month's rent in advance, bought a few dollars

W. T. Brewster, son of Colonel P. H. Brewster, a member of the law firm of Dorsey, Brewster, Howell & Heyman, forfeited $10,775 collateral when he failed to appear before Judge Broyles Monday afternoon to answer a charge of assault brought by Alexander Fieschner, a merchant at 220 Marietta street. Fieschner declared that Brewster had attacked him Saturday night after a dispute between them over a pair of unsatisfactory shoes purchased by Brewster's cook. The merchant said he would swear out a warrant for the lawyer's son.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 15.—The House Banking and Currency Committee adopted an amendment to the Glass currency bill to-day prohibiting Federal reserve banks from lending on personal security and stock exchange collateral.

GALESBURG, ILL., Sept. 15.—Max Lillie, an aviator, was killed here this afternoon while making a flight at the Galesburg Fair Grounds. He fell 100 feet. The machine fell on him, crushing his head and chest. He died within ten minutes after the accident.

CHATTANOOGA, Sept. 15.—The fight for the next experiment of the G. A. R. opened briskly this afternoon with Detroit, Houston and Mobile actively in the race.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 15.—Along with the announcement to-day by Speaker Clark that the conference report on the tariff bill will be ready for consideration Friday came satisfactory assurances that Senator Hoke Smith's plan for regulating the cotton exchange will be accepted by the conferees, in lieu of the Clarke amendment. It is understood that the House conferees headed by Underwood are committed to the Smith scheme, and it is confidently believed that the Senate conferees will accept it.

SEA GIRT, N. J., Sept. 15.—A world's rifle record for bulls-eyes on a 500-yard range with 16-inch targets was established here this afternoon by Captain W. H. Richards, of Ohio. He hit the mark 23 times in a row without a miss.

GA. BASEBALL CHAMPIONS FAVORITES GO UP; BISLAND

Crackers' Star Shortstop Drafted by St. Louis Browns—Sought by Twelve Clubs.

Savannah, Augusta, Albany and Rome Players Drafted by Major Leagues

CINCINNATI, Sept. 15.—Numerous Southern baseball players were drafted to the majors at the draft meeting here to-day. The names of the drafted players from the larger leagues were not given out, such as the American Association, International League, Pacific and Southern. The White Sox got one from Toledo and the Cubs got one from Toledo and one from Toronto. It looks as if Niehoff, the third baseman for whom eleven clubs, so it was said, put in a draft claim, would go to Cincinnati.

The small fry were allotted from A. to Z. as follows:

Cincinnati—Adams, Augusta, Ga.; Barham, of Victoria; Brown, Seattle; Douglass, of Spokane; East, of Rome, Ga.

Chicago Cubs—Nobody.

Chicago White Sox—Ashley, Ludington, Mich.

Pirates—Baley, Huntington, W. Va.; Glants—Duchene, Pittsfield; Dyer, Decatur.

Philadelphia Americans—Baker, Albany, Ga.; Cruthers, Raleigh, N. C.; Boardman, Waterbury.

St. Louis Americans—Beeker, Kalamazoo; Black, Huntington, W. Va.; Cador, Wilkesbarre; Clark, Trenton; Clark, York, Pa.; Corcoran, Rome, Ga.; Coles, Elmira.

Boston Americans—Coombes, Utica.

The next flock of drafts ran: Cincinnati—Gipe, pitcher of Seattle; Marvin, Galveston; Holmes, Morristown; Leary, Utica; Narveson, pitcher, Victoria.

Chicago Nationals—Mollwitz, of Green Bay.

Chicago Americans—Graham, Appleton; Hulstein, Lowell; Magee, Lowell; Pope, Infield, New Haven; Reisburg, Ogden; Shorten, Worcester; and Shovelin, infielder, Chillicothe, formerly with Pittsburg.

Philadelphia Americans—Gervil, Savannah; Pfeiffer, Wilkesbarre; Rhoades, Houston; Tompson, Durham; Wiley, Beaumont, formerly with St. Louis Cardinals.

EXPRESS THEFT ARREST DUE BY NIGHTFALL

Detectives Work on Theory That Guilty Man Will Squander $72,000 Booty.

HUERTA HONORS BRITISH ENVOY; SNUBBED LIND

Retiring Minister Stronge Travels in President's Private Car, Banked With Flowers.

Detective Harry Scott, Atlanta agent of the Pinkertons, said Monday that the hunt for the daring robber who looted the Southern or the Adams Express Company of $72,000 in transit from New York to Savannah and South Georgia banks had narrowed down to two or three express employees, who were being kept under special surveillance. He anticipated an arrest during the day.

The centering of suspicion on particular employes has not caused the detectives to relax their vigilance. On the contrary, the closest sort of a watch is being kept on every employee of both companies who by the most remote possibility might have been connected with the hold theft.

The instant one of these men emerges into the "white lights" and begins spending money freely he will be arrested as the man who stole the $72,000, according to Special Agent Weaver, of the Southern Express, who returned to Savannah Monday from a trip to Florence.

"We expect to make an arrest any time now," said Weaver. "Every man who could have possibly been connected with the robbery is under surveillance. Every other man is eliminated. It rests with two or three."

"We are just waiting for him to show up, and then we will get him. He can't hold out much longer. There is either a man back of it or the lure of the white lights. It is always that way. He will remain under cover for a little while, but he will soon show his hand. It is human nature for a man with that much money to put some of it into circulation, particularly with the kind of man who would come by it in that way."

At every point along the line to-day special agents are either riding or lounging around boarding houses and little depot hotels where the messengers hang out. Sleepy-eyed agents as they come in from their runs are taken to the office of General Manager Hockaday and closely interrogated. The search has not relinquished one bit, although the principal activity is at the New York end of the line.

The remote possibility, as the officials term it, of any messenger having secured the money, at first overlooked, is being thoroughly gone into. Could anyone have duplicate seals to fasten the wire into the little lead pellets, the combination to the safe in the express car, a duplicate of the key kept by the agent at the destination, and a duplicate of the key that unlocks the second lid of the trunk, this key being kept under the first lid in a sealed envelope, the robbery might have been made in transit. The officials regard this as highly improbable, but they are investigating such a possibility fully.

Washington, Again Astir Over Mexico.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 15.—Important developments in the Mexican situation are expected this week. It is because of this that President Wilson did not wish to prolong his visit at Cornish, N. H., but to return to Washington to-morrow.

Secretary of War Garrison to-day sent an inquiry to Brigadier General Bliss, commanding the Texas division of the army, asking for a detailed statement of the position of his troops, accompanied by a warning to watch the border closely. Secretary of the Navy Daniels also was in communication with the Atlantic fleet.

No confirmation has been received at the State Department of the reported capture by the rebels of 100 American refugees fleeing from Torreon.

The rumor that Morris F. Root, nephew of Senator Root, of New York, had been shot by the rebels has not been confirmed.

Rich Man Is Victim Of Woman Assassin

LEXINGTON, Sept. 13.—J. H. Birchfield, aged 39, a prominent lumberman, was fatally shot by an unidentified assassin, said to be a woman, concealed in a house on Quick-sand Creek, Breathitt County. Birchfield was brought to the hospital here.

$100,000 Voted for Americans in Mexico.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 15.—The Senate to-day passed, without reference to a committee, an emergency bill appropriating $100,000 to pay the expenses of transporting Americans from Mexico.

The House had passed the bill.

Third of Futrelle Family Dies Since Titanic Disaster

Charles H. Copeland, well-known newspaper man, the news of whose death in Scituate, Mass., reached Atlanta Monday, was the third in the Futrelle family to die since the Titanic disaster last April when Jacques Futrelle, his brother-in-law, was drowned in midocean.

A telegram to W. H. H. Copeland, the father-in-law of Mr. Futrelle, apprised Atlanta relatives of his death. He died Sunday from appendicitis.

Mrs. W. H. H. Futrelle, mother of Jacques Futrelle, died July 28 from grief over her son's tragic end.

Mr. Copeland was 40 years old and well known in Atlanta. He was proprietor of the press gallery of the Massachusetts Legislature several years ago and held a franchise for the publication of official news of the State Assembly. He is survived by a wife, who was Miss Alberta Futrelle, of Atlanta, and a daughter, Dorothy.

Copper Plant Given 3 Years to Harness Crop-Killing Fumes

Governor Slaton Monday signed an order extending the time in which the Tennessee Copper Company, of Ducktown, may remedy the damaging status of its plant, as provided in the Legislative act passed in August.

Under the provisions of this order the company has three years in which to adjust complaints made against it by North Georgia farmers, and to arrange for the future disposition of its sulphurous fumes that they will cause no damage to surrounding vegetation.

In the meantime, however, the company must deposit with the State $15,000 annually for three years, to take care of such damages as may accrue in the meantime.

PRIEST TELLS OF SLAYING GIRL HE WOOD

Confession of Dismemberment of Body and Attempts to Hide Crime Stir New York.

worth of furniture and established the girl there.

His Story of Slaying. Schmidt's confession, in concrete form, follows:

"I met Anna Amuller two years ago at the parish house of St. Boniface Church. She was employed as a servant there. I was attracted to her by her beauty. I became infatuated with her. I loved her.

"I killed her because I loved her so much. She was so beautiful. I could not let her live without me. I made up my mind that she and I could not live together. I was a priest and must remain with my church. So I opened the door of the flat. She was asleep in the room. I awakened her and told her I had come to fulfill my threat. Then I slew her with a knife.

"I cut the body into six pieces. I made trips to the Fort Lee ferry each time with part of the body. When the middle of the stream I would throw a piece into the water. When the boat reached the other side of the water I would return, go back to the flat and get another piece of her body. I think I burnt about five or six such trips.

"After I had disposed of the body I wanted to destroy all evidence of the crime. I took the mattress on which I had slain her and carried it to a vacant lot. There I buried it.

"I am guilty and that is all I can say. I must pay for my crime. I loved Anna Amuller. She wanted me to marry her because she was so beautiful. So I procured a marriage license. She trusted me.

"I am a priest and ordained to perform the marriage ceremony. So when I married her, I was doing it for my own sake. I had called in another person with authority to perform the marriage ceremony. She was my wife.

"After the murder Schmidt continued to officiate as assistant priest at St. Joseph's Church and even baptized a baby.

"Schmidt, when asked to give concerning his past, gave somewhat incoherent answers. At first he declared that he was ordained by a European bishop named Kierstein. Later he declared that St. Elizabeth, whom he calls his patron saint, had ordained him.

"Asked for letters such as are given by different bishops when one priest is transferred from one diocese to another, Schmidt declared he had none bearing such signatures, but that he had a number of letters which St. Elizabeth had given him.

"Schmidt had a number of letters bearing the seals of different churches in the United States and Europe, but none of them, it is declared, fully established his identity or were couched in the form of credentials.

"The Rev. Luke J. Evers, Catholic chaplain in the Tombs, secured today from Schmidt the admission that in Munich Schmidt had been arrested as an impostor.

"To most of my questions relating to his past, Schmidt answered that everything he has done has been dictated by St. Elizabeth, he said. He told me that St.

SHERMAN'S MEN AGAIN INVADE CITY; GREETED THIS TIME BY HANDCLASPS

Union veterans in Atlanta on their way to the G. A. R. encampment at Chattanooga. On the left is John J. Curran, of Bridgeport, Conn., and his niece, Miss Florence Wendling. Mr. Ward was the man who pulled down the Confederate flag and hoisted the Stars and Stripes on the Atlanta Courthouse.

Elizabeth enabled him to secure an assistant pastorate at Louisville, Ky., and Trenton, N. J., before he came to New York. When I asked him if he had secured dismissal paper from those two cities he said he had not received any from the bishops but that St. Elizabeth had given them to him.

"Schmidt told me he came to New York and secured an introduction to Father Braun, of St. Boniface Parish. He presented some letters which he said were from the bishops but that St. Elizabeth had given them to him. It is believed to-day that the letters which Schmidt presented to Father Braun were clever forgeries.

"Pillow Slip Trapped Him. "Mr. Schmidt is insane," declared Father Evers. "He does not seem to realize the enormity of his crime and is about the only answers I can get to questions as to why he killed the girl. That St. Elizabeth told him he had to make a pillow slip."

"With a pillow slip in view, the detectives solved the mystery of the murder. They discovered that the pillow slip found around one section of the torso was purchased in the neighborhood of Seventh and Fourteenth streets. Then they sought a man who purchased the pillow slip at a second-hand store in the neighborhood. Finally they located the flat at Bradhurst avenue. For two days and nights a detective lingered outside the place. Saturday night Inspector Joseph Faurat decided to break into the flat.

"I felt we were on the right trail, and I took a chance," said Faurat. "I guess the results warranted it."

"The flat was found blood stained. A knife and saw were found. The bed minus its mattress, but with blood spots on the posts, showed the detectives where the murder had been committed.

"The officers found a picture of the murdered girl and some papers. A note signed by "Schmidty" gave the police the address of the flat. The detectives then went to St. Boniface Church and asked for Schmidt. They were told that he had resigned and he became associated with St. Joseph's Parish. They got a description of Schmidt, which tallied with that of John Schmidt, who had rented the flat. Then followed the arrest and confession.

"Slayer Now Defiant. Schmidt in his cell to-day was calm and defiant. He refused to see reporters, and when one of them sent a note to him requesting an interview, Schmidt sent back the following written reply:

"I do not think you will understand me. There is no use talking about it."

"An examination of Schmidt's mental condition was made to-day by the Tombs physician. Other examinations will follow, as it is believed that Schmidt is mentally unbalanced.

Acting District Attorney Scott to-day said that any effort to prove that Schmidt was insane when he killed the girl will be combated vigorously. Not declared that the man was sane, but that the motive for his act can be shown without a doubt.

Alfonse J. Koebler, who has known Schmidt for two years, visited him in his cell to-day.

"Declares He Is Not Crazy. "He seemed unconcerned," Koebler said after his visit with Schmidt. "He said that the motive for his act was for any penalty that may be meted out to him. When I asked him if I could do anything for him he replied, 'No, God and Abraham alone are able to clear up this matter.' I then asked him if he thought he was insane, or whether there had been insanity in his family," said Koebler.

"He said, 'No, I am not insane and there has been no insanity in my family. All great men who do act

Stir Marks Transfer of Atlanta Postmastership—Doubt About New Appointees.

Postoffice inspectors Monday morning were busily engaged effecting the transfer of the postmastership of the local postoffice. Bulling H. Jones, newly appointed postmaster under the present administration, gave Hugh L. McKee, Tarl appointee, who has all but completed his four-year term, receipts certifying the presence of funds and stock.

"Mr. McKee, in his shirt sleeves, was at work, assisted by his office help, in vacating the premises while Bulling H. Jones, also in his shirt sleeves, was moving in. Mr. Jones hung his commission on the wall at about the same identical spot where the former postmaster proudly hung his.

"As yet Mr. Jones has not announced any contemplated exchanges in the office force. It is, however, understood that Mr. Jones will for the most part act as postmaster of Atlanta for four years ago.

Aged Veterans, Headed Way to G. A. R. Meet, Recall Thrilling Battle Scenes.

Recalling the stirring scenes of half a century ago when Sherman descended upon Atlanta, more than 500 grizzled veterans of the Grand Army of the Republic passed through this city Monday in special cars en route to the reunion of the G. A. R. at Chattanooga.

"Despite their age, the old men, many of them gray and bearing the scars of battle, carried themselves with marked agility.

"At the Union Station, where they laid over for an hour, they were met by members of the U. C. V. and those among them who were present at the battle of Atlanta retold the story of Sherman's devastation here.

"The operations of the gang of automobile thieves that has been infesting Atlanta for the past two weeks were checked early Monday morning when Boyd Perry, No. 589 N. Boulevard, general agent of the National Surety Company, opened fire with a revolver on a burglar who was trying to run his automobile out of the garage. The bullet missed the intruder, and put a hole in the gasoline tank of the automobile, but it did the work.

"The attempt made to steal Mr. Perry's car was one of the boldest the gang has made. Mr. Perry was awakened shortly after midnight by a noise in his garage, and looking out of a window saw a man trying to force open the door. Falling in that the burglar went to the door and opened it, and then opened the door and rushed in. As he entered the man scrambled through the window and escaped.

"Call Officers Anderson and Watson made an investigation, but failed to find any trace of the burglar. The police think the man is a member of the gang that has been stealing automobiles from garages and from front of office buildings for several weeks.

CASE LIKE THAT THAW IS HAPPY OF GRACE STIRS IN CUSTODY OF SAVANNAH U. S. MARSHAL

Man Shot by Wife Is Near Death With Bullet Against Spine. Self-Defense Her Plea.

SAVANNAH, Sept. 15.—With her husband's life in the balance as the result of a bullet wound inflicted by her two months ago, pretty Mrs. Eva Dare obtained a preliminary hearing this morning on her plea to be released on bond until the wounded man recovers or dies, and the charge upon which she is to be tried in the higher court determined.

In many respects the case resembles the Grace episode. There are no eye witnesses, no one heard the shots, no one suspected the couple was not happy until the young woman notified the police she had shot her husband and asked them to send the ambulance to take him to the hospital.

"I shot in self-defense," was the first word she spoke to the officers when they came to her house. "He threatened and abused me and when I became convinced he would carry out his threats unless I protected myself I shot, and I shot to kill. I don't care whether he lives or dies—just get him away from here."

Since that time her attitude has changed. She wants to be with her husband.

The bullet pierced Dare's left lung and lodged in the first backbone. Several operations have failed to relieve him. He may live several years or only a few weeks, his physicians say, but he never will completely recover.

It is expected that Marshal Niles will take Thaw to Littleton, N. H., as the writ is returnable there in United States Court Tuesday morning at 11 o'clock.

It was reported that Lawyer Moses H. Grossman of New York would ask Judge Aldrich for an adjournment of the habeas corpus pending the hearing by Governor Folger on Wednesday of the extradition proceedings.

Ex-Atlantan, Thaw Aides, Scores Canadian Law.

That revealed the weakness of the Canadian immigration laws was the declaration of Samson Selig, a former Atlantan and now member of the law firm of House, Grossman & Vorhaus, of New York, upon his return from Chattanooga, according to reports with interest by his uncle, Sigmund Selig.

Selig, who was a member of Thaw's legal army in Canada, is well known in Atlanta, having been in school here up until 1911. In his discussion of the Thaw case Selig wrote:

"Concerning the strategic position of Thaw in New Hampshire as compared with Canada, I think the chances for ultimately winning are better in the United States than in the Dominion. If Thaw is insane he can not be extradited from New Hampshire, because, if insane, he can not be guilty of an extraditable offense in New York.

"They will try to get him back, I expect, on the ground that he has committed a crime here, but in that case they must abandon the assumption that he is insane. The only trouble and danger is that the courts might uphold writs of extradition on the ground that one State owes that courtesy to another.

"The extradition of Thaw is a matter which the Canadian courts will be asked to bring him into court and put the immigration laws to a test."

"CASCARETS" FIX SOUR STOMACHS. Sluggish Bowels Cause Gases, Indigestion and Food Fermentation.

Get a 10-cent box now. That awful sourness, belching of acid and foul gases; that pain in the pit of the stomach, the heartburn, nervousness, nausea, bloating after eating, the dizziness and sick headache, means a disordered stomach, which can not be regulated until you remove the cause. It isn't your stomach's fault. Your stomach is as good as any.

Try Cascarets; they immediately cleanse the stomach, remove the sour, undigested and fermenting food and foul gases; take the excess bile from the liver and carry off the constipated waste matter from your system. Cascarets, too, your stomach trouble is ended. A Cascarets-to-night will straighten you out by morning—a 10-cent box from any drug store will keep your stomach sweet, liver and bowels regular for months. Don't forget the children—their little insides need a good, gentle cleaning, too.

Taken on Tour of City. The Northern veterans were taken on an automobile tour of the city during the morning with their local comrades and the Confederate veterans acting as guides and escorts. They were shown the old battlefields near Atlanta, where many of them had fought and bled, the Gordon monument, the Confederate Soldiers Home and other points of interest. Several hours were spent at the battlefields, and many of the men from the North walked for the first time since the war, in the places which they

They were met by a wing of the Confederate Army several miles distant from Atlanta and at Peachtree Creek. I believe they call it a most bloody battle took place. The men on both sides fought bravely, especially did the Confederates, who always displayed more grit and daring than our army.

"We outnumbered the Confederate forces, and after several hours' fighting, they were driven back to the Potomac and fought with Grant.

"I was a sharpshooter and was doing lookout duty at the time, and consequently was near the front of the ranks. A Confederate flag flaunted in the breeze from the top of the old courthouse then standing. I made for it, snatching a Union flag from one of the color bearers as I ran.

"I climbed to the old tower and cut the Confederate flag from its fastenings and with my sheath knife I drove the Stars and Stripes to the shaft.

"Glad it's All Over. "A cry of victory went up from our men and the city of Atlanta was ours. I was proud of the victory then, but now—well, thank God, it is a thing of the past.

"While climbing to the old courthouse tower I was hit in the eye by a piece of scattering shell. You see my left eye is gone.

"During the period spent in the bombardment of Atlanta, some two weeks, our army was encamped two miles or more from the city. At this time I was impressed into the foraging party. Twice a week our entire wagon train, over a mile and a half long in procession, would set out for Egypt, as we called it in those days, in search of corn. Egypt was the fertile country surrounding Stone Mountain, and there was always an abundance of corn to be had by mere going after it. The corn was necessary for our horses and mules. We did not need it to keep from starving, for we had plenty of good rations. In fact, we fared better at this time than at any other period during the war.

"I did not see Atlanta burned. The burning of the city, if it were done, occurred after I had left. When we

BANK MEET FOR CITY DEPENDS ON HOTELS

National Association Secretary Is Here to See if Atlanta Can Furnish Adequate Quarters.

Fred E. Farnsworth, secretary of the American Bankers' Association for the past six years, is in Atlanta to determine whether the city's hotels can give adequate accommodations to the National Bankers' Convention in the autumn of 1914.

"There is no doubt that Atlanta can do everything else handsomely in the way of entertainment," says Mr. Farnsworth. "We know all about Southern hospitality and we know the Atlanta bankers. But Atlanta is growing so rapidly that its hotels are busy all the while. The question is, can all other business be turned away to take care of the 3,000 or more bankers?"

Bankers Want the Best.
 "You know bankers want the best of everything. They won't take rooms without baths, and they positively will not 'double up.'"

Mr. Farnsworth is just from Washington, where he has been working hard to assist the bankers in getting what they regard as vital amendments to the Owen-Glass currency bill.

"I do not believe the Administration currency reform plan will pass in its present form," he says. "It will pass the House practically as it stands, but in my belief, it will be amended considerably in the Senate. The temper of the Senate is shown by the fact that while the bankers were to have had a six-hour hearing before the committee, they were kept four and a half days by the eager questioning of the committeemen, which covered not only the currency bill but all manner of subjects directly and indirectly connected with finance."

Bill To Be Debated.
 "The currency bill undoubtedly will be the leading topic of discussion at the Boston convention which opens October 6. The currency committee of the association will make a report, and general debate will follow. Southern members of this commission are Joseph McCord, of Atlanta, and Sol Wexler, of New Orleans.

"The bankers' objection to the plan as outlined are fourfold: Governmental control, governmental issue of bank notes, the disposition of reserves and disposition of the 2 per cent Government bonds."

Mr. Farnsworth sees good times ahead.

"Autumn has not developed the expected stringency of money," he says. "The crops are moving without undue strain, and prospects are for healthy conditions to follow. The South in particular seems to be in good shape."

Dinner is Planned.
 J. K. Otley, of the Fourth National Bank; Haynes McPhadden, secretary of the Georgia Bankers' Association, and Fred Houser, secretary of the Atlanta Convention Bureau met Mr. Farnsworth at the Terminal Station Monday morning at 11:15 o'clock. Mr. Farnsworth was taken to the Piedmont Hotel. Monday night there will be a dinner in his honor at the Ansley Hotel. He remains until Tuesday afternoon.

The convention bureau has secured pledges of 1,751 rooms which will be set aside for the use of the Bankers' Convention in the Atlanta hotels. It is believed this pledge will be satisfactory.

"I think the association will take kindly to the idea of coming to Atlanta, as it did in 1895," says Mr. Farnsworth. "The only question is one of accommodations."

WILSON PUTS BAN ON AIDS OF HOBSON

WASHINGTON, Sept. 15.—President Wilson has vetoed the "big stick" of Miss Julia Lathrop, head of the children's bureau of the Department of Labor, and four employees of the Department of Commerce, who are alleged to have been stumpers in Alabama in the interest of Representative Richmond Pearson Hobson, candidate for Senator.

All have been recalled from that State as a result of protests made by friends of Representative Clayton, recently appointed by Governor O'Neal of Alabama to succeed the late Senator Johnston.

It is understood that the protests charged that these Government employees had violated the executive order against "pernicious political activity." If the charges are substantiated they undoubtedly will be reprimanded by the President.

FATHER PURSUES RUNAWAY GIRL

Miss Thelma Freeman, the pretty 15-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. M. Freeman, of Atlanta, is back at the home of her parents after figuring in a runaway that had them nearly distracted with anxiety.

The young girl disappeared from home Saturday. Her father and mother instituted an immediate search. They thought she might have accompanied a friend from Montgomery back to the Alabama city. They wired the Montgomery police. Detectives Payne and Cloud visited the home of the young woman, who had just returned from Atlanta, and confirmed the suspicions of Mr. and Mrs. Freeman by discovering little Miss Freeman comfortably ensconced there and not at all willing to return home.

Mr. Freeman was notified and arrived at Montgomery at 10:50 Sunday. His daughter meanwhile was taken to the police station. She met him with a storm of protestations against coming back to Atlanta, scolding him severely for following her to Montgomery.

The father argued and remonstrated with her and finally persuaded her that the strictness with which she was treated by her mother at home was in reality for her own good. A reconciliation was effected and father and daughter left the station together. They returned to Atlanta on the evening train over the Atlanta and West Point Railroad.

North Avenue Belle Enlists Her Friends in Cause of "500,000 by 1920."

With the advent of the new booster buttons bearing the picture of one of Atlanta's prettiest society girls, "boosting for Atlanta" promises to become as great a fad as the tango, the turkey trot and the hundred and one other things with which society whistles away its time.

Hundreds of Atlanta society persons have taken to wearing the buttons, and they have developed into enthusiastic boosters for the Gate City.

Miss Frances Williams, of No. 35 West North Avenue, one of Atlanta's prettiest girls, was one of the first to take up the new fad. She obtained a button shortly after they were received at The Georgian office and has worn it proudly and enthusiastically ever since.

She has enlisted many of her friends in the cause of "500,000 people for Atlanta," and as a result of her efforts the booster button adorning the girls of Atlanta has become one of the common spectacles of Peachtree street.

Almost as many girls as men are wearing them now, and they are as enthusiastic as their brothers and sweethearts over the new movement.

Thousands of the buttons have been given out to firms and business men, but there are still plenty left for distribution. Organizations, firms and others who desire to get some of the buttons and aid in the good work of boosting Atlanta can have them by writing to The Georgian or Hearst's Sunday American and telling how many they need. They will be sent at once to any address.

Striker Prefers Jail Sentence to $10 Fine

MOBILE, Sept. 15.—A. C. Smith, a striking boilermaker who violated an injunction recently issued against him and other members of his union by going on the property of the Gulf City Boiler Works and interfering with strike-breakers, was fined $10 or 24 hours in jail.

Smith went to jail. A motion to dissolve the injunction now in force was refused.

MAYOR SCORES COLLAPSE OF CREMATORY

Councilman Ashley, After Inspection, Criticises Carrier System at Disposal Plant.

Atlanta's new crematory is practically out of operation and Monday the carts were turned to the old dumping grounds with their loads of garbage. This was the report made to Mayor Woodward by Councilman Claude Ashley Monday, following a visit by him to the crematory, and criticism of the plant's collapse was widespread.

In his talk with the Mayor, Mr. Ashley severely criticized the arrangements by which the garbage is transported from the pit to the furnaces, and offered the suggestion that traveling cranes be substituted for the present system.

"The system of handling the garbage in use now keeps one spot in the pit clean, but fails to properly remove the garbage along the sides of the pit," he said.

Double Strain on Motors.
 "A great many cables have been broken on the buckets used, while the heavy strain burns out the motors rapidly. The system in use is similar to the trap-stick system, having a bucket on each end. The buckets are swung out, and at times are at a great angle, making a double strain on the motors."

"They are three months behind on their promise, and the plant is practically at a standstill," said the Mayor, sarcastically. "Why, they said they would have one unit of the plant ready by June 1 and the entire plant completed by June 15. Here it is three months after the time promised for completion and to-day they are not even working the one unit promised for June 1."

"Someone asked me the other day why we were raising so much of a row about the crematory. Well, I think when a thing costs a city $250,000 that we are entitled to raise a row if the thing is not what it should be."

Forfeit a Mere Bagatelle.
 If we can save the city $50,000 in the cost of this plant I think we will be doing well. And until this plant is in perfect working order we are going to continue to raise a row."

"The contract called for the turning over of the plant to the city August 15 and a forfeit of $25 a day for each day's delay. A month has passed since the final date and while we have a forfeit of $25 a day charged against the manufacturers the total sum of it but a drop in the bucket compared to what we expect to save the city on this plant."

Mayor Woodward some time ago appointed Frank Lederle as the engineer to represent the city in a test run of the plant. The plant has not yet been turned over to Lederle for the 30-day test.

Judge Russell to Head Appeals Court By Service Seniority

Judge Richard B. Russell will become Chief Judge of the Court of Appeals by right of seniority of service, and not by election, as has been the prevailing impression.

Judge Russell would have been Chief Judge in any event, but under the rules of the court the oldest judge in point of service becomes Chief Judge automatically, and therefore no election will be necessary in the case of Judge Russell. He is the senior member of the court, after Judge Hill, the present Chief Judge, appointed to the new Atlanta Court.

In order to permit Judge Hill to complete the work he now has in hand before leaving the Appellate bench, the Court of Appeals will hear no arguments between now and October 13.

It may be that Judge Hill will not leave the Appellate bench formally before that date.

American Miner Is Cruelly Slain by Bandits in Mexico

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 15.—News of the murder of Morris P. Root, American superintendent of the El Tigre mines at Tepic, Mexico, was brought here by the steamer Peru, which had almost 100 refugees aboard.

The mining engineer was intercepted by bandits on his way to join employees of the company preparing to defend the mine property. He was cut to pieces.

Root was 50 years old and had been in Mexico sixteen years.

Max Lambert, another American engineer who arrived on the Peru, was left for dead by bandits who attacked his home in the state of Tepic. Lambert's wife and child escaped by crawling through a rear window and he remained to greet the bandits, whose approach was noticed when they were a mile away. When they departed Mrs. Lambert returned and got aid.

Bleasé Wanted as Witness Against U. S. by Publisher

WILMINGTON, Sept. 15.—Cole L. Bleasé, Governor of South Carolina, is wanted in Elizabeth City as a witness for the defendant in the case of the United States against the publisher of "Down Homer," a free thought magazine, W. O. Saunders, who is to be tried October 14 on the charge of publishing in violation of the Federal statute, matter tending to incite murder and arson.

Saunders wrote and published an article in which he stated that "Cole Bleasé ought to be shot," and he hopes to prove by the Governor himself that he has not been murdered or incriminated as a result of anything he has written about him.

CROWDED COURT DELAYS BIG CASES

Frank Case and New Bench Appointments Cause Congestion in Court—100 Await Trial.

Solicitor General Dorsey is on a still hunt for a judge to conduct the large list of cases which have piled up since the June term of court. The Frank trial caused all other court business to accumulate, and the recent bench appointments still further have delayed the disposal of several scores of cases.

More than one hundred prisoners are in the county jail awaiting trial. Some of them have been there much longer than is usual to hold them before trial. The Solicitor wishes to have them placed on trial at the earliest possible moment and does not wish to wait until some time in October for Judge Ben H. Hill to take the new Atlanta circuit judgeship if he can avoid this delay.

An effort is being made to have one of the Superior Court Judges preside. If this fails, it is probable that a judge from an outside circuit will be brought in.

Conley One To Be Tried.

Jim Conley, self-confessed accessory after the fact in the murder of Mary O'Neil, will be one of those placed on trial. Nothing of the spectacular interest that obtained at the Frank trial will be shown when the negro is brought into court. It will be little more than a formality, Conley will plead guilty and will be sentenced. There will be no witnesses.

Judge Roan will hear the argument for a new trial of Frank October 4, but all the subsequent litigation in behalf of the convicted man will be heard by another judge.

Defense Urges Haste.

He was prepared to go ahead with the case until it became known that Governor Slaton had appointed him as the judge of the Stone Mountain Circuit, of which he now is prosecutor. This will make it necessary to select still another attorney to conduct the case against Mrs. Crawford and may result in a delay of several weeks more.

Burton Smith, one of her attorneys, said Monday that it was the desire of Mrs. Crawford's counsel to bring the accusations to an issue as soon as possible. He declared that if the members of the Grand Jury regarded the evidence against her sufficient to warrant an indictment, her lawyers were anxious that this be done at once so that Mrs. Crawford would have the opportunity to defend herself.

Misdemeanor Docket Being Cleared Rapidly.

Between 20 and 25 misdemeanor cases, including the case of Ike Jackson, negro, who was sentenced for a year for stabbing a negro woman, were disposed of in Judge Calhoun's division of the City Court Monday morning. More than 200 cases, the heaviest docket in years, probably will be completed this week.

Judge Calhoun's division was called Monday following adjournment of the criminal branch of the Superior Court, presided over by Judge Roan, who is holding court in the Stone Mountain Circuit.

Columbus to Vote in Three Elections

COLUMBUS, Sept. 15.—The city of Columbus has three registration books open at this time.

One is for the waterworks bond election, which takes place October 13, the other for the commission government election to be held December 10, while the third is for the general city election, which is to be held on the second Saturday in December, which is the 13th of the month.

Austria Likely to Have Fair Exhibit

MERCURY DROPS TO 56; DRIZZLE TO CONTINUE

Chilly Rain and Fall Weather Bring Out Overcoats and Start Grate Fires.

With the temperature in the fifties and a chilling, depressing rain spreading a mantle of gloom over the city, Atlanta Monday shivered in real fall weather.

Overcoats made their first appearance on the streets and brought envy to the hearts of those not so well prepared or not yet ready to admit that summer had gone. The Peachtree parade was a rather drab affair, lacking the usual gay coloring. The attractive had been momentarily laid aside for the comfortable.

Coal dealers said that the cool snap brought a lively awakening in their line, scores of housewives suddenly remembering that a cheery blaze at home would not be amiss.

The temperature at noon was 56, with little prospect of a change for the better, and the weather bureau announced that there would be more rain to-night and to-morrow.

Three Feet of Water in Mobile Streets.

MOBILE, Sept. 15.—A total of 11.61 inches of rain has fallen in Mobile within the past two days, going many thousands of dollars damage.

Streets of the business district were flooded three feet. In many places water backed up into several stories.

Asheville Dons Furs; Coal Dealers Rushed.

ASHEVILLE, Sept. 15.—Overcoats and furs to-day took the place of straw hats and summer suits, because of the sudden drop in the temperature followed by a 24-hour wintry rain. Every other person met on the streets wore an overcoat. The coal dealers of the city have been called upon to add extra equipment, so great was the demand for fuel. No crops will be damaged by the sudden drop.

Bryan Denies He's a "Peanut Secretary"

PHOENIXVILLE, PA., Sept. 15.—William J. Bryan denies he is a vaudeville or a "Peanut Secretary of State," or that he has made a travesty of diplomacy.

The Secretary of State has confided his views to persons with whom he has come in contact on the Chattanooga circuit. He asserted that he is a much-maligned individual. He said he objected to being called a mountebank or a trapeze performer.

GREAT WELCOME EXTENDED TO M'CONNELL

High and Laity Unite at Installation of the New Pastor of Baptist Tabernacle.

Before a congregation which filled the auditorium of the great Baptist Tabernacle, Dr. Lincoln McConnell, the new pastor, was formally installed Sunday afternoon at 3 o'clock. The installation services were especially notable in that prominent laymen, as well as ministers, of nearly every denomination in Atlanta added their words of welcome and paid glowing tributes to Dr. McConnell, his work for Christianity and his sterling character.

Promptly at 3 o'clock W. S. Witham, presiding officer, called the great meeting to order. A song service, led by Professor A. C. Boatman and L. C. Bible, assistant to the pastor, followed. Mr. Witham then announced that each speaker would be limited to three minutes.

Dr. Potest, First Speaker. Dr. E. M. Potest, president of Furman University, was then introduced. He expressed himself as being delighted to have the opportunity of participating in such a service, stating that as a former Georgian he felt assured that Dr. McConnell would have the hearty co-operation of all Christians in Atlanta. Following Dr. Potest, Dr. John E. White, pastor of the Second Baptist Church; Dr. Peter, pastor of the West End Baptist Church, and Dr. Charles Daniel, pastor of the First Baptist Church, were successively introduced and extended in behalf of the Atlanta Baptists a hearty welcome to the new pastor.

Dr. John Jenkins, representing the Methodists of the district, the next speaker, referred humorously to the manner in which he claimed Dr. McConnell became a Baptist. The new pastor had fallen into a creek one day, said Dr. Jenkins, and immediately he changed over from the Methodists to the Baptists.

Dr. Broughton Applauded. Following an address of welcome by City Attorney James Mayson, in which a high tribute was paid to the new pastor, Dr. Leo G. Broughton, of London, former pastor of the Tabernacle, was introduced amid tremendous applause.

"I don't think I need any introduction in this church," said Dr. Broughton, "and so let's drop the preliminaries and get down to business. You have called to your church the man whom in all the world I would rather see here than any other. He is a man who will found in the very front rank of those who are fighting vice and sin, a man whom Atlanta will be proud of for his sterling Christian citizenship."

When Dr. Broughton had finished speaking, Dr. McConnell was introduced to the congregation, which applauded again for at least five minutes. Dr. McConnell waited until the outburst had subsided somewhat and then he raised his hand and began his address.

Tells of Coming to Atlanta. "I can not begin to tell you," he said, "how deeply I feel your kindness, and if you will indulge me for a few moments I will tell you how I first came to your city. It was about 22 years ago that I started off on a Southern train about 2 o'clock in the morning. I thought I had a job, but found that I was mistaken.

"Finally, through my good friend Henry Durand, who is seated behind me, I was employed, as I thought, for about two weeks; but, as it turned out, for two years. Later I secured a place on the Atlanta police force through my friend James L. Beavers, who also sits on the rostrum with me."

In closing, Dr. McConnell pledged himself to give his very best efforts to the upbuilding of the church and the kingdom. He said he intended to jump right in without delay and fight for those things which are right.

You are invited to the Atlanta Theater, Tuesday night, September 16. Brilliant music and interesting exercises. Admission free Southern College of Pharmacy.

MAYOR PREPARES COOL REPLY TO M'CONNELL

Doesn't Think Attack on His Kissing Attitude Calls for Much of an Answer.

Declaring that he saw but little which was worth replying to in the attack upon him by the Rev. Lincoln McConnell at the Baptist Tabernacle Sunday night, Mayor Woodward declined to discuss the charges Monday morning. He will write McConnell a personal letter, however, and his words contained the intimation that this letter probably will be cool but very clear.

"I will write Mr. McConnell a personal letter, then possibly he will know more of what he is talking about," said the Mayor. "I may also make a statement for the papers later in the day, but right now I see but little worth replying to."

"The only criticism I had to make of the police methods in connection with the spooning cases was in the instance where a couple had been kept at the police station all night and then the case against them dismissed by Recorder Broyles. If Broyles turned them loose, then certainly they must have been as innocent as babes, for he is not in the habit of releasing people who are guilty of even the slightest wrongdoing."

"I also remarked in regard to the case of where a young man claimed that he had been unjustly fined in a spooning case, that I thought money derived from this case by the city was dirty money and should be returned to the young man. I made this remark to Mr. Colcord."

"I do not think Mr. McConnell's attack can be highly regarded in view of the public knowledge of the way the police have acted in these spooning cases."

McConnell expressed the opinion that the Mayor must be a fool to make the remarks accredited to him by the newspapers on the spooning arrests by the police department.

"I was utterly astounded when I read of the Mayor criticizing the police department for the spooning arrests, said McConnell. "Either he is very foolish or incompetent and too ignorant to properly take care of the office held by him."

"I want to put myself on record as favoring the vigorous prosecution of all such offenders as the couple which caused all the furor. Take it home to yourselves and see if you would like for your daughter to be caught in a compromising position with a man in a public place."

"The winds of dissension and crime in Atlanta are being rapidly blown. Unless an immediate stop is put to the whiffing of the police in this city will most surely reap one great whirlwind of vice and crime."

Women Pick Hobson For Hefin Debate

WASHINGTON, Sept. 15.—A challenge issued by Congressman Thomas J. Hefin, of Alabama, to debate the subject of equal suffrage with any Representative whom the women of the country might select, met with immediate acceptance to-day.

Miss Alice Paul, in charge of the suffrage headquarters here, designated Congressman Richmond Pearson Hobson, also of Alabama, as the women's champion. She said, however, she was not sure Mr. Hobson would undertake the task.

The body of Herschell Leathers, who died late Sunday night at a local hospital, is at Patterson's Chapel, pending funeral arrangements. He was 21 years old and lived at No. 45 English avenue.

The remains of Richard G. McLendon, who died Sunday night at the residence, No. 293 North Boulevard, were taken Monday to Concord, Ga., for funeral and interment. He was 22 years old and is survived by his wife, two brothers and two sisters.

Cow That Barked Is Put to Death

BOSTON, Sept. 15.—Emmeline had to be killed. Although a cow, she wagged her tail and barked, which was a sign of rabies, and led to her death sentence and execution in Quincy.

Emmeline belonged to Morris Gordon, of that town, and she was bitten by a St. Bernard dog, which, six weeks ago, terrorized the place.

AUTO SHOW TO BE BIG AD FOR CITY

"Gasoline Week" Will Be Inaugurated in November as Annual Event—Sousa To Be Here.

Atlanta's annual Gasoline Week promises to be as big an advertisement for the city every autumn as grand opera week is in the spring. It will be inaugurated in November with the automobile show and the motor races at the new autodrome out Peachtree road.

Now that the Chamber of Commerce has endorsed the motor show and races and is lending its support to both, the committees of the automobile association are working to make the show the best ever. Space has been taken by all the leading manufacturers, and practically every car made in America will be represented.

One of the features this year will be the music. Sousa's Band has been engaged for the week. Sousa was the grand hit of the Atlanta Exposition years ago, and when he brought his band for a short stay at the Grand Hotel seasons past he drew two big audiences.

Special rates have been granted on all the railroads running into Atlanta, and the auto association members expect more visitors than ever before. Dealers and agents will see the new 1914 models for the first time at the show, and owners and prospective purchasers may look over competing lines, study the "works" and make up their minds where to put their money.

Wiley West, one of the leaders in the association, will leave soon for Detroit as a delegate to the National Good Roads Convention, with the determination to land next year's meeting for Atlanta. If the convention is won, it probably will be held simultaneously with the 1914 auto show and motordrome races.

Gaines, arrives Wednesday to visit Misses Sarah and Laura Cowles on her way to enter Notre Dame College, Baltimore.

Mrs. Fannie Jones Quillian has returned, after a month's visit in Rome, Cartersville and Opelika, Ala. She was the guest of her cousin, Mayor Palmer, in Opelika.

Miss Ruth Stallings, Miss Marlon Goldsmith, Miss Caroline Muse, Miss Isabel Kuhr and Miss Mary Butler, who are visiting in High-ams, N. C., will return October 1. They are being chaperoned by Mrs. C. H. C. G. Hube, of Nashville, Tenn., and have been accorded much social attention.

Mrs. Emlay A. Boyd, of Griffin, is visiting her daughter, Mrs. John W. Mangham, No. 645 West Peachtree.

Miss May O'Brien has returned from Jacksonville, where she spent a week with her sister, Mrs. Harry Haasen.

FRANK'S TRIAL NOT FAIR, SAYS PASTOR

The Rev. A. R. Holderby Blames Popular Prejudice and Clamor for Vengeance.

The Rev. A. R. Holderby, pastor of the Moore Memorial Church, declared from the pulpit in his Sunday sermon that Leo M. Frank, convicted of the murder of Mary Phagan in the South's most notable criminal case, was the victim of an unfair trial.

The minister described the popular prejudice and the clamor for vengeance following the crime and asserted that the conditions forbade a fair trial of the accused man.

He did not attempt to pass on Frank's guilt or innocence, nor did he go into the merits of the case itself, contenting himself with the declaration that, regardless of Frank's innocence or guilt, he was entitled to a fair and impartial trial and failed to get it.

Public Mind Was Influenced.
"If the trial were conducted without vindictiveness and prejudice and the testimony were sufficient to convict, then the verdict was just," he said. "But if, on the other hand, there were prejudice and a clamor for vengeance, then the trial was not fair and impartial."

"When the State hangs a man innocent of a crime it is guilty of judicial murder. No man's life or liberty are safe when either can be taken away merely upon circumstantial evidence or because public sentiment demands vengeance. Jesus Christ was crucified under just such conditions."

RENAMED GAME WARDEN.
FORSYTH, Sept. 15.—C. M. Hooks, of this county, has been reappointed Game Warden for the county of Monroe by State Game Warden J. R. Mercer.

Mrs. Pearson's Voice Charms Audiences

Mrs. Frank Pearson, the best-known singer in Atlanta, will sing this evening at the banquet to be given in the Ansley Hotel, in honor of Mr. Fred E. Farnsworth.

Later in the evening Mrs. Pearson will entertain the guests of the hotel with her wonderful voice.

Sunday night Mrs. Pearson drew a very large audience and sang beautifully at the Ansley Hotel. Her selections were excellent. Her voice was clear and melodious. She was loudly applauded.

Kaiser Will Prolong Crown Prince's Exile

BERLIN, Sept. 15.—In court circles it is reported that the Kaiser has ordered that the Crown Prince's exile at Dantzig, which was to terminate next month, shall be extended over another year. It is said that in addition to friction between the Kaiser and his son there is a dispute between the Emperor and the Crown Prince. The Kaiser, who holds severe views, dislikes the Princess's flightiness, also her Parisian gowns.

Secretary of State Phil Cook has prepared for distribution a complete and comprehensive booklet setting forth the exact provisions of the new automobile law.

The new law provides that every automobile, old or new, must be registered with the State and re-registered immediately and annually hereafter.

The law also provides that cities may require all automobiles to register their State numbers with municipal clerks, if they so elect.

Under the operation of the old law many automobile numbers became extinct, and many automobiles were transferred to new owners without proper notice to the State. In these cases it is almost impossible to trace the ownership and responsibility for cars.

ATLANTA NEW YORK PARIS

A Season of Beautiful Hats

Charming, smart hats, like other successes, seldom "just happen," they are "premeditated." They are to be found in greatest numbers where greatest and most thorough preparations have been made.

We could have gone on selling millinery as most stores do to-day and would have met with the success that our limited efforts would have justified. But such a method would not have been in keeping with the Chamberlin-Johnson-DuBose Company policies. So we set about to make this millinery store stand at "the top of the heap"—to put it in the way of success.

It was done when we opened the shop of Estelle Mershon at 20 E. 46th St., New York, which sends its emissaries into Paris with the seasons, who, seeing and studying and gathering up the notablest creations that the world's notablest milliners evolve, return to America's fashion center armed with the ideas and native ability to produce hats of distinctive beauty and charm.

And these are the hats that Atlanta women see here, and here only, hats that we hold it not to be odious to compare with those you find not only in Atlanta, but in America.

And these first days of the season are fine days for choosing. The style points are well defined and the variety is huge and obliging—a becoming hat at every turn.

Dress Forms That Make Dress-Making Easier

We have gone into the Dress Form business in a fashion worthy of its importance to women who make dresses—as a profession or for themselves. Many kinds of dress forms clutter the market—some with more demerits than merits—we set about to differentiate, to choose those we could recommend as of greatest worth to our customers. And so, after the process of elimination, there remain the Acme Automatic Dress Form (several styles) at $2.00 to $14.00, and the Pneu Form at $14.00. Both have distinctive features. Both may be adjusted to reproduce accurately any number of figures.

The Acme is a substantial steel mounted form that is adjusted mechanically, the Pneu Form is a pneumatic form that is adjusted by means of a lining that is made to fit your figure.

See them both in the Pattern Department. A demonstrator will show you how simply and truly they do their work. With these are skirt markers at $3.50 to $7.50.

BACKACHE IS A DANGER SIGNAL

Kidney Troubles, Bladder Disorders, Rheumatism, and Serious Diseases Follow.

There are other symptoms, such as pains in the region of the kidneys, nervousness, dizziness, tired and without feeling, weak bladder, or urinary troubles, which are just as dangerous, for the slightest kidney derangement if neglected may develop into the deadly Bright's disease, dropsy or diabetes.

It is not only dangerous, but needless, for you to suffer and endure the tortures of these troubles, for Croxone promptly ends all such misery.

There is no more effective remedy for kidney, bladder trouble and rheumatism than Croxone, because it reaches the cause. It soaks right into the kidneys through the walls and linings, cleans out the clogged up pores, neutralizes and dissolves the poisonous uric acid and waste matter that lodge in the joints and muscles and cause those terrible rheumatic pains, and makes the kidneys filter the poison from the blood and drives it out of the system.

Three doses of Croxone a day for a few days is often all that is ever needed to relieve the worst backache or overcome disagreeable urinary disorders.

You will find Croxone different from other remedies. It is so prepared that it is practically impossible to take it without results. An original package of Croxone costs but a trifle, and all druggists are authorized to return the purchase price if it should fail in a single case.

A Bachelor's Diary

By MAX.

AUGUST 28.—(Being in the form of a supposititious dialogue between Sally Spencer and myself. She is away off in Paris, absorbed in the vanities of this world, and I am a helpless invalid, confined to a cottage in the northernmost woods of this country, with much time to reflect on the probabilities of my rewards or punishments about next. The imaginary Sally is sitting in the little low rocker that sways empty with the wind, back and forth, on the porch beside me in that tantalizingly suggestive way that empty rockers have.)

SALLY: "I can stay only a short time, Max. I have to wait a few minutes in the Bon Marche for a fitting and thought I would make a mental visit with you while waiting. How are you, my dear? You look like a mummy with all those blankets and rugs around you, but not as sick as I had expected. Perhaps that pretty nurse you have written so much about is prolonging your illness with a motive."

MAX: "It is possible that the motive is on my side."

It Stops.

SALLY: "You don't mean to say, Max, that you have become such an imbecile that you condemn yourself to cushions and calomel and alabaster for the pleasure you get in having some ally girl wiggle your face and hands and look soothfully when you sigh and comb your hair and tell you what a fine-shaped head you have and hold your hands every time you have an imaginary pain? Max, I am ashamed of you!"

MAX: "You are losing your tact. The right way to talk to a man when he is sick is to call him a martyr and a hero instead of an imbecile."

SALLY: "I suppose that's the sort of soothing syrup that nurse hands you? I see it is time I came home from Paris and took you in charge. How many, many times are you going to make it necessary for me to save you from other women?"

MAX: "Save me for whom?"

(The rocker, which had swayed rapidly when the imaginary Sally was scolding me, stopped short. There is a silence. Then it begins to sway again, but the imaginary Sally has turned her head so that I can not see her face, and she changes the subject when she begins talking.)

SALLY: "I suppose you know that Jack is with me in Paris. That means I have something more to do than to match ribbons and laces. The widow is there, too."

MAX: "You did not say for whom you want to save me?"

SALLY: "I am most cordial with her. So cordial and so delighted when I hear Jack is with her that he is growing suspicious. He asked me this morning when dressing for breakfast if I was growing tired of him and wanted to get rid of him."

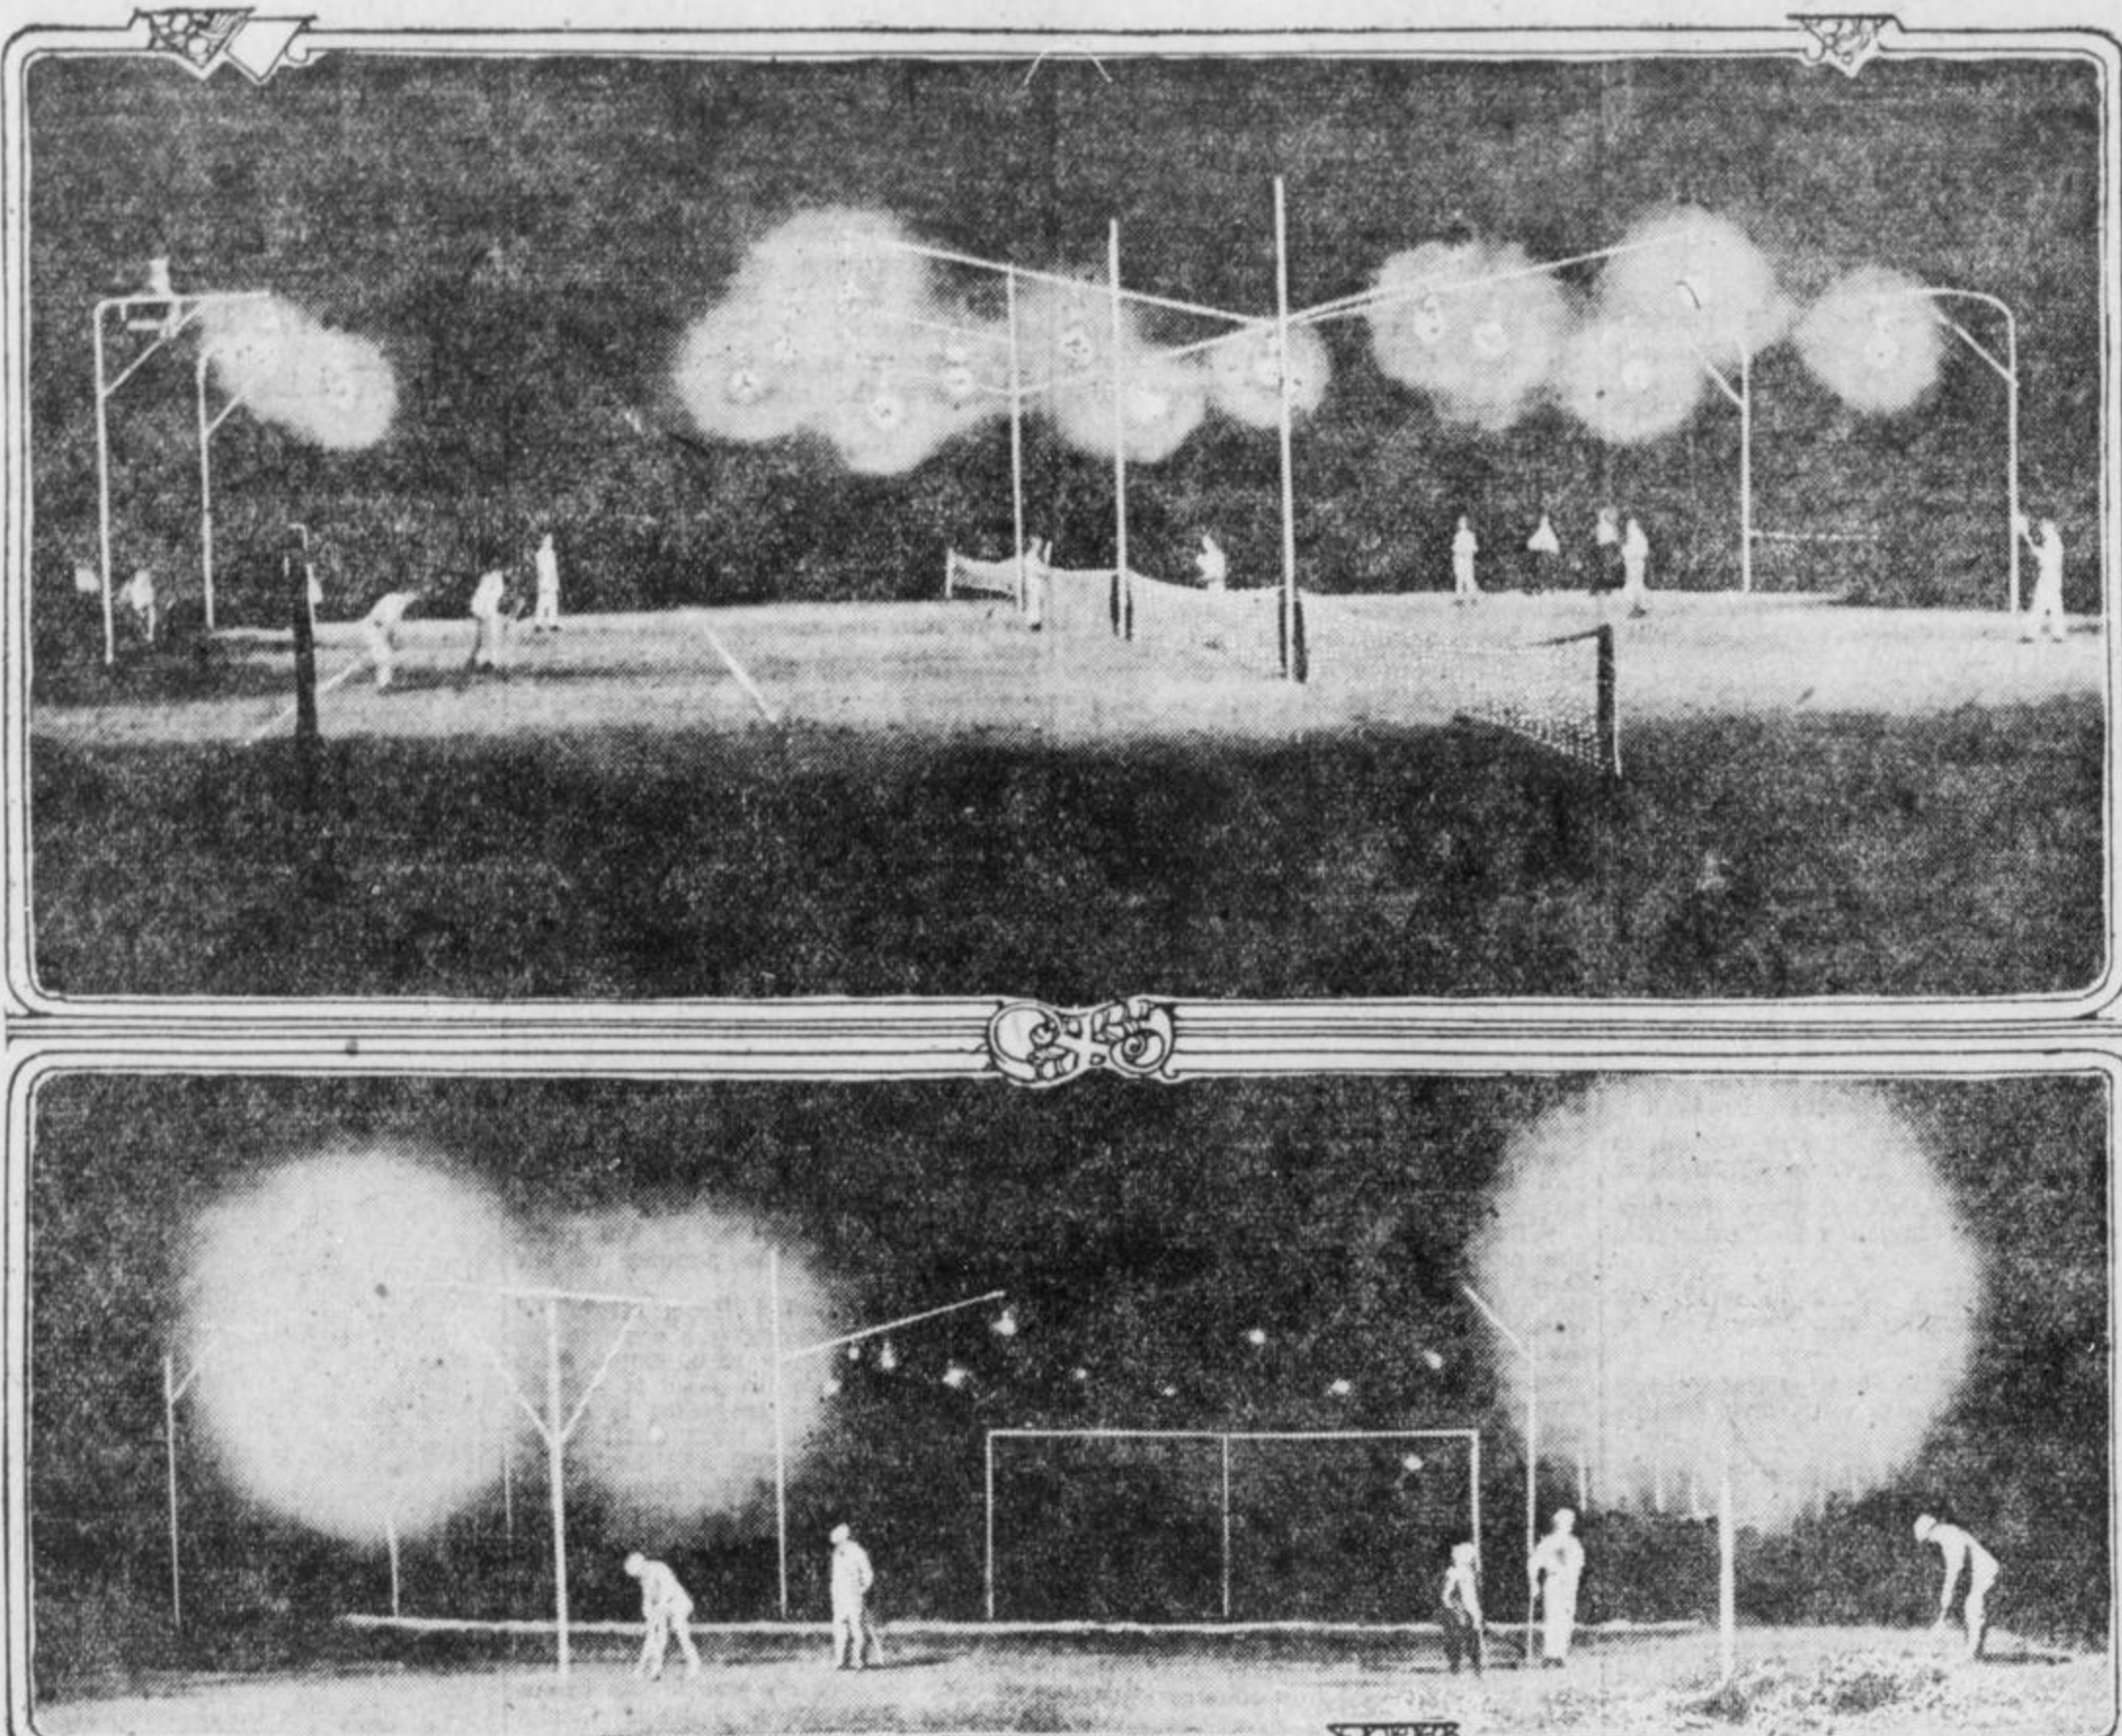

MAX: "Do you?"

SALLY: "I hope you will be satisfied with the answer I gave her. I told her that I had never loved her before, but the child is no longer a baby to be confined to the company of her nurse and governess and I dress better. You will laugh when I tell you there is a party dress—"

MAX: "I don't care what you bought. I never care. It doesn't interest me and never has, and you know I never look at the bills. The nurse says—"

SALLY: "And I don't care what

Tennis and Golf by Night—An Autumn Fad

The tennis court and golf links at night.

No longer are the wilfully unathletic to have the excuse that they cannot play outside games because of the pressure of business. Artificially lit lawn courts and a golf links have come into being, as these photographs bear witness. The courts and the "course" in question are at the Woodbury Country Club, at Woodbury, N. J., and were designed and installed by Thomas J. Little, Jr. The light is applied by the latest type of incandescent glass lamps, which, it is claimed, are better for the purpose than electric lights. There are four lawn tennis courts. The golf "course"—for putting only—is 80 feet long by 40 feet wide, and has nine holes.

The Roses

A TRAGEDY IN RUSSIAN LIFE

THE season of the rose-sellers is now at its highest in the topsy-turvy ancient City of Moscow, which, in spite of its massive German buildings and miniature skyscrapers, still seems to reach the East at every corner of its tortuous streets.

Even the rose-sellers here are different from the pale-faced, tired-looking men and women who ply the same trade in the great cities of Western Europe. Every morning when the dawn is just beginning to break, and the sun, like a great ball of fire, is forcing its way up into the silver-gray sky, they take their stand—a ragged, barefooted band of smilingurchins—on the new bridge beside the Brest station.

This bridge is one of the finest structures in Moscow. At one end is the Arc De Triomphe, guarding the way to the Tverskaja, the Piccadilly of Moscow. At the other is the boulevard which twines its way through the great beeches and sycamores of the Petrovsky Park, in which are situated Yar, Strelna, Marfata and the other bourgeois pleasure gardens of Moscow nightlife.

The bridge is thus the boundary between the prosaic, businesslike Teutonic Moscow of the daytime and the extravagantly riotous, nocturnal Moscow of the Slav. On its friendly parapet the little rose-sellers take their seats, dangling their half-naked legs against the stone, singing snatches of Russian folk songs, and waiting patiently for the return of the belated pleasure-seekers to their daily task.

Suddenly a "lekchatch"—a swift victoria with large rubber tires—or a motor car is heard afar off in the silent stillness of the early morning. Some twelve or thirteen ragamuffins spring from their places and race to the middle of the street. There is a quiet patter of naked feet on the rough, jagged cobblestones. For a moment the little band keeps close with the passing vehicle in their eagerness, and with little regard for their own safety snatch a perilous foothold on the splashboard. And all the while a fire of pleading requests is kept up incessantly.

"Buy a rose, master! Buy a rose, master!"

"Fresh roses, my lady? A double for six?"

"See, master, I am hungry. I have eaten nothing since yesterday morning. Buy a rose, radeo Christa."

He Buys.

And if the fat, pleasure-sated man in the carriage shows little sign of yielding to these entreaties, the tired painted woman on his side is more sympathetic and compels her companion to open his purse. Besides she wants the flowers.

They remind her of long-forgotten days and of the many things that might have been.

In this way does the little army exact its toll from the passing stream of carriages and cars.

Life is hard, and the bent, worn-out mother, who, as a "tender" in the cotton mills, keeps the family alive on the princely wage of thirteen rubles a month, has need of all the coopeks her fourteen-year-old son can collect.

Rivalry in her house is keen. In this children's trade, but on the whole there is no bullying, no jealousy, no ill feeling. Occasionally, however, in the race for first place, "desire outruns performance," and the movement of the thin, bony legs is unable to keep pace with the eagerness of the mind.

Motor cars are comparatively rare in Moscow, and the rose sellers have not yet learned to judge their deceptive pace with the same nicety as their London prototypes.

And so sometimes it happens that the bridge, with a witness of a little tragedy. Suddenly there is a startled shout of warning from the driver. The car takes a wide swerve to the side. A piercing shriek rings out in the cold morning air.

A sickening thud follows. The carriage, while a policeman comes forward with his notebook.

The little fellow is taken into the car and driven off to the nearest police station. In a few minutes the street resumes its normal appearance, and the ragged little sellers return to their work on the bridge. They are sorry, of course, as far as it lies in their power to be sorry, but the battle for bread knows no respite and the world of pleasure must still be fed.

The Other Side.

In a little by-street across the river, in the dirtiest part of the town, a frail, shrunken little woman is busily engaged in cleaning out her room. She swears gently to herself every few minutes. The samovar has been ready for over an hour and her brat of a boy has not yet come home.

Most likely he has gone off with the other lads to play pitch and toss. She is still meditating on the punishment she will certainly mete out to him when a knock at the door disturbs her, and the great, gruff voice of the door-keeper rings out:

"Marfa Vasilyevna! Marfa Vasilyevna! You are wanted at the police station at once."

A policeman pushes his way into the room. Wonderingly she wraps a shawl about her head and totters out into the

He Wonders

SALLY: "I won't give you up! I kept the widow from marrying you, and I warn you I will keep the pretty nurse from getting into it if I have to go to the limit. I want you for myself. I have wanted you for years. Every hour of the day and night I have thought of you. I love you, and I love you. I deceived even you! I haven't been good in my thoughts, but no woman who doesn't love her husband is good in her thoughts. It is impossible, Max! I don't love my husband, and I do love you, and I know!"

A clock in Mrs. Allen's dining room strikes, and even when a woman is making love to a man she can't keep a dressmaker waiting. Evidently it reminds her of a dream visitor of the Bon Marche, for before it had ceased striking the hour Sally was gone.

He wonders what she is that kind of a Sally in her thoughts.

Leather chairs often become greasy where the arms and head rest on the leather. To remove these marks try linned oil. Boil half a pint of oil and let it stand until nearly cold, then pour in half a pint of vinegar. Stir till it is well mixed, and bottle, when it is ready for use. Put a few drops on a flannel and polish with soft duster. This will thoroughly renovate all leather.

In cases of emergency a kettle or sauceman can be heated over a candle by the following means. Stand two chairs (with rungs) fairly near together. Place a lighted candle on the floor between the two. Then lay a pair of fire-tongs across the rungs of the two chairs and on the tongue place a small kettle or sauceman immediately over the candle. The water does not take long to boil.

In this quiet, remote village, Milada grew up. When his father, Lubja, descended into the valley to fight the Turks he was still a baby, and when he grew into a tall and powerful young man, and earned his living herding the cattle of the rich peasant, Arsen, did not remember a single feature of his father's. But when he looked at the old rusty arms on the walls in the miserable hut he had inherited from his mother, or when he listened to old blind Jezdimir's tales of the feats of his ancestors, the cruelties of the enemy and the desperate fights he saw before his inner eye an image of father, as a tall, broad-shouldered warrior, thirsting for adventure and revenge, and often while he was herding his cattle near the river he dreamed of himself fighting the Turks and returning home as a hero covered with glory. He saw Arsen running to meet him, embracing him and crying: "You are a brave fellow, Miladen, and as a reward, I am happy to accept you as my daughter Milada's husband."

Miladen loved Miliza, though she did not know it. How should Miliza, the richest girl in the village, about whom all the young men were fighting, have suspected that her father's humblest hireling dared raise his eyes to her?

His Secret.

Miladen kept the secret of his love to himself, and did not even mention it to his mother, or when he listened to the wonderful thing happened. One wintry day, when a terrible blizzard was raging in the mountains and Vardjak was entirely cut off from the world, a stranger arrived in the village. He went straight to the rich Arsen's farm and said that he was Sergeant Janjuk Vlutin, and that the King of Belgrade had declared war against Bulgaria and now called all men to the colors. Every man capable of bearing arms must meet at Zajecar within 24 hours.

This was the message of the King, and when Miladen heard it his heart began beating wildly and he began to think of all the stories Jezdimir had told him of wild, cruel-looking men swinging their bloody scimitars

Do You Know--

A novel use of compressed air is made by railway companies in the Southern States of America. When the loads of cotton are being taken to the coast there is always danger of their becoming damaged through sparks from the locomotives. To prevent this, the locomotive boilers are filled with compressed air. A trainload of several thousand bales of cotton can be hauled by these locomotives at a rate of twelve miles an hour, although no fire is used in working them.

Following the proposal for a tax on bachelors in France, the society "La Race Francaise" suggests that every male citizen alive or who has not reached three children under 18, should be taxed $5.50 to the age of each child below the number of three. This would apply to both bachelors and married men. Such tax, it is estimated, would produce about $108,000,000 a year.

Doubtless the most unique spot in Europe is the little village of Altenberg, on whose border three countries meet. It is ruled by no monarch, has no soldiers, no police, and no taxes. Its inhabitants speak a curious jargon of French and German combined, and spend their days in cultivating the land or working in the valuable calamine mine of which the village boasts.

Clocks are now made to run five years with one winding up. In 1891 the Belgian Government placed one of these in a railway station and sealed it. It has kept capital time, having been stricken only in 1884, 1891, 1898, 1901, 1905 and 1911; and there is a clock in the Church of St. Quentin, in Mayence, which has only stopped once during a period of 500 years.

"Aladdin's lamp, in good working order, price $50.00 per pound," is the inscription on a card attached to a curious-looking lamp exposed for sale in the shop-window of a Kingston antique dealer.

A pen-rib is a little thing, yet there is more steel used in the manufacture of nibs than in all the sword and gun factories in the world. A ton of steel produces about 1,500,000 pens.

The cost of the navies of the world last year aggregated $75,000,000.

Figures compiled by the Department of Island Revenue at Ottawa show that the people of Canada last year smoked 975,325,501 cigarettes, an increase of nearly 200,000,000 over the figures for 1911.

Poor Mrs. Craig

MISS BELINDA dropped with a tired sigh into a seat on her own porch and her brother Ben frowned at her with disapproval.

"Look here, young woman," he began sternly, "how long are you going to keep this thing up? First thing you know I'll have to send for a trained nurse for you and ask you to get off to a rest cure at safe distance from the Craig's."

"Nonsense, Ben, I'm all right. You greatly exaggerate what I do for poor Mrs. Craig."

"Well, I don't exaggerate when I tell you that you have passed forty-two hours with poor Mrs. Craig in the last week. I have kept time on you."

"How ridiculous to do that! I'd no idea, though, that I'd been at the farm so much. Still, it would be simply brutal not to do what I can for Mrs. Craig when she is ill, and there's no one but the boys to stay on here or do anything about the house. The boys are very busy in the fields just now, too."

"Why in the name of all that's sensible doesn't she keep a girl?"

"I think she would if she could find one. Girls are scarce in this neighborhood."

"What's the matter with that little Molly Johnson you sometimes have to help Norah? Why couldn't she work for Mrs. Craig?"

"Well," Miss Belinda laughed, "the matter with Molly is that her eyes are much too blue and her cheeks quite too pink. Do you imagine Mrs. Craig is keen on offering that particular kind of temptation to her bachelor sons?"

Not to Rest.

"It's an outrage that she should depend upon her neighbors to take care of her and run her house. I hope you'll have sense enough to stay at home this afternoon and rest."

"I shall stay at home."

"Well, part of the time, perhaps; but now I must make a cake."

"Why not let Norah make the cake? If she can't we can easily go without it."

"Oh, this cake isn't for us. To-morrow is Jimmie Craig's birthday and poor Mrs. Craig is terribly disappointed because she isn't able to make angel's food for him. It seems that that great six-footer, who looks as if he had never tasted anything less substantial than pork and beans, quite dotes on angel's food."

"You little woolly lamb! So you promised to make him one. Why don't you crochets him a necktie, too?"

"In order to reststate myself in your good opinion let me tell you that I have persuaded Mrs. Craig to get a woman with a child, who will be glad to have a country home. I know there are plenty of them and I've written to Fannie Dayton to find one through her settlement work."

But there was no return to the old apathy. He felt the foil of a live opponent now and suspected that this opponent was the tall, fair-haired girl. He could not read her plans or aims, but he felt that a contest was still on—and for a tremendous prize. So he was not usefully surprised when Miss Lloyd appeared in his office at Tunnel City one day, smiling and cordial. He had not seen her for weeks.

"I'm sure I could," he returned. "It isn't the dread of the music that would make me hesitate. But I might say further that while there's hope there's work." She pouted ever so little. "Oh, surely, Mr. Allan, the work can get along without you for a few hours."

Alban had considerable pride of his own. He had determined that he would not appeal to Lloyd again excepting as an absolutely last resort—and then only when convinced that there was no further prospect of advances from that side. He had one more desperate card to play—an appeal to the Federal Government.

HER STATEMENTS DESERVE NOTICE

Mrs. Walls Makes Public Some Interesting Facts Which Should Interest All Women.

Leinarts, Tenn.—Mrs. Martha Walls, of this town, makes the following statements for publication: "I feel it my duty to tell you what your medicine, Cardui, the woman's tonic, has done for me."

"For four (4) years, I suffered terribly with womanly troubles, and I found no relief in different medicines which I took. Finally, I began to take Cardui, the woman's tonic, and after taking six bottles I am completely cured. I feel like a different person altogether. All the pains are gone, and I am in better health than I have been in for four years. Have gained a great deal in weight."

"I still take Cardui as a tonic. My husband, as well as myself, can not praise it too highly. I hope this letter will induce other poor, suffering women to try Cardui, for it is the best medicine in the world for women."

If you suffer from any of the numerous ailments so common to all women, why not take this lady's advice, and try Cardui? It has helped her, as well as a million other women in the past half century. Why shouldn't it do the same for you? We feel sure it will.

Reading of Mrs. Walls' helpful experience should encourage you to try this medicine will do for you. Get a bottle of Cardui from your druggist to-day. You won't regret it. X. Up-to-the-Minute Jokes

"Man overboard!" shouted an excited passenger on an Atlantic liner, as he hastily left his place at the dinner table and scrambled up the companion way.

A keen-eyed but obviously poorly educated settler in a colony in his pioneer stage took his overgrown son to a country school.

"Where is he?" Who is he?" they demanded, and the originator of the scare laid his hand upon his breast and said, with melodramatic air: "Here he is! I am the man overboard. I have been compelled to sit four days at the same table with three men who can't talk about anything but golf. I want my place changed, or I'll get out and walk!"

While on the Pacific Coast read the San Francisco Examiner

CHAPTER XXXVI.

MARY FLETCHER tried to conceal her pained surprise when she saw her mother-in-law's home and the street into which the elderly woman had moved. For Mrs. Fletcher senior's new quarters were in a building of very cheap flats, or tenements. This building was on an avenue through which an elevated road runs and the proximity to Twenty-third street made the place easy of access, a fact for which Mary was grateful when she, with her baby and large suit case, left the ferry on the afternoon of her arrival in New York.

Her mother-in-law was on the watch for her and met her at the foot of the stairs leading to the third floor on which were the humble rooms. "I guess you're surprised to see me in this common part of town, ain't you?" she queried when she had deposited the baby on her bed, having insisted on carrying him upstairs herself. "But while I don't think I ever had much pride, the little I did have has had a fall. I'll tell you all about it later. First of all, let me hear you and the child off with your things."

Bert's mother's bed was in the only bedroom in the small flat, but in the parlor was a couch on which Mary was to sleep, and by that was a small camp cot that the grandmother had bought expressly for the baby. "It was real cheap," she said, "only a dollar. But we can make it soft by folding comforters and putting them on it, and he ain't such an active child as to roll off easy. One side of the cot can be against your couch, and we'll fence him in on the other side with chairs. I ain't got a very fine place here, Mary, but there's room in it for you."

"For the first time since she had met her husband's mother, Mary kissed her. "Thank you," she said, sincerely, "you are very kind, and baby and I appreciate it."

"I suppose you'll think I've been a foolish old woman," she said, "to do all I've done. I know I told you once, I know you've managed men, and I always thought I'd hold out against any attempt that Bert might make to get money out of me. But, Lord! I guess mothers are all alike when the pinch comes. And when he told me that a few thousand would just tie him over a bad place in his business, and that the lack of it would ruin him, I let him have the money. And then he come and told me that he found he'd need another thousand to make the matter

BEEF ON TECH LINE ADDS HOPE TO JACKET CLAN

By Fullback. THE thing that has handicapped the Tech team for the past three years is now a thing of the past and Coach Heisman has men who will stack up with the best of them in weight.

Beef in the line especially, has been the crying need as the backs never had a chance to make any headway with a line in front of them that would cave in before they got started being outweighed from 20 to 25 pounds to the man.

At center are the scrappy Al Loeb, who is heavier than last year and can hold his own with most any of them; Patterson, the Chattanooga High School man, and Trawick, a big 200-pounder from last year's scrubs.

Big Ed Means will be on one guard, while Morrison, Merrill and Goldman will mix it for the other. The team will be well fortified at tackles by Rainey, a hefty sub of last year; Johnson, the Chattanooga crack; Spence, a big 200-pounder, and Mallory, the Louisville High School star.

Many Out for Ends. The ends will be taken care of by Cashman, the Chattanooga speed merchant; Lane, last year's Moore; a last year's scrub; Beard and Reisdler, who is a good dropkicker, and will be a valuable man for that reason.

In the backfield Captain Cook will take a half. Big Gene Patton, the famous East Tennessee halfback, will be at full, while the other half lies between Tommy Hancock, a last year's scrub; McDonald, a varsity man of last year; Gardner, a scrub; and Murphey, another Louisville star who is leading the punters shooting his pretty spirals 45 and 50 yards down the field.

With Patton to do the line plugging and Captain Cook and the other half with the speed to circle the ends the team will have the wanted driving power which has been lacking so long.

The quarterback position is uncertain as yet. There are several good men out for the place, but most of them are too light. The tackling dummy has been in use for two days now and the men are getting their muscles in shape for the harder work. Charging practice and falling on the ball have been going on every day and with a few days of scrimmaging, beginning next week, they will be in tip-top shape for the first game, September 27, with the Seventeenth Infantry at Grant Field.

Golf Tournament for Hammond Trophy Is Last of A.A.C. Season

That brief, crisp season that exists betwixt the ending of Southern baseball and the beginning of football is to be tied over in Atlanta by the final golf tournament of the year— that put on by the Atlanta Athletic Club at East Lake for the T. A. Hammond trophy.

The tourney is a handicap affair, players qualifying according to net scores in a round played next Saturday. The first and second rounds of match play are scheduled to be finished by September 25, the third round by September 27, and the final on September 28. Match play will be at 18 holes in all rounds except the final in the first round, which will be 36 holes.

The Hammond tourney will round out the most popular and successful golfing season the Athletic Club has enjoyed, both in general interest and in the quality of the average play. The final tournament is attracting much attention, both by reason of the handsome trophy and because it is the last of the season.

Pelky Now Retracts Burns Confession

CALGARY, ALBERTA, Sept. 15.—Arthur Pelky, the heavyweight pugilist, to-day retracted the "confession" which he signed about a week ago in which he accused Tommy Burns of forcing him to make in the Burns-Pelky match last spring.

Want Ritchie-Cross Bout in Gay Gotham

NEW YORK, Sept. 15.—Efforts were made here to-day to match Willie Ritchie, the lightweight champion, and Leach Cross, the New York aspirant for the crown, for a ten-round bout in this city during September.

Mantell Loses to Gage on a Foul

EL PASO, TEXAS, Sept. 15.—Frank Gage, Los Angeles lightweight, won on a foul from Battling Mantell in the fourth round of their scheduled twenty-round bout at Juárez.

KLAUS STARTS WORK TO-DAY. CHICAGO, Sept. 15.—Frank Klaus, known to the ring as "The Pittsburgh Bear," is due here to-day. The Easterner was billed to meet Eddie McCreary in a middleweight championship battle at Milwaukee on September 22, but because of an injury to the boxing commission of that city, the date was changed to September 23. Klaus has arranged for quarters at O'Connell's gymnasium.

DOBBS TO PELS DEAL HATCHED IN NASHVILLE

NASHVILLE, TENN., Sept. 15.—Now that the chief topic of conversation in connection with Southern League baseball has grown to be a guessing contest as to what club Johnny Dobbs will head next season, Montgomery and Chattanooga having been eliminated by Johnny's own statement, considerable speculation is attached to a dark and mysterious conference held in Nashville between Dobbs and Barney Barnard, of the Cleveland Naps, while the Montgomery club was paying a final visit to the Vols.

Bill Schwartz and Barnard have for many years been very close friends, and the Cleveland mogul never fails to drop around to see the Vols' pilot whenever he happens to be in Nashville. That's what made it seem strange to the Boy Manager, when, one afternoon, during the last series with the Billikens he walked over to the visitors' bench to speak to Dobbs and, lo, and behold, there sat Barney engaged in a very earnest and long conversation.

Barnard looked a little sheepish, but never advanced any information as to the nature of his chin-fest with the Montgomery boss. And Schwartz, after he had passed the time of day, and pulling his sweater a little closer around him to protect himself from the chilly weather (?), beat it back to the Vols' dugout.

It didn't take Schwartz long to put two and two together, after Dobbs admitted that he and Barnard had been discussing some of the Pelican players in answer to a request from Bill as to Dobbs' opinion of Krafit, the New Orleans first-sacker, on whom the Vols' chief had gotten sweet. Barney told Dobbs, so Johnny gave it out, that Krafit was impossible as a fielder, the Naps having tried him for two years and found him not up to the mark for a first baseman. When they want to retain a ball player, how much fault they can find with his fielding, hitting and base-running, but when he is on the block, for sale, "phenom" makes the tall timbers sound like orchard grass.

Dobbs may not go to New Orleans but it is just possible that he and Barney framed up a deal that afternoon for a berth in Pellicantown.

SPORTING COMMENT

By Ed W. Smith.

WHY is it that the big men of the ring, the heavyweights, have been the pests that have stirred up trouble and more or less have always been the disturbing element in having the game stopped in various places? You've noticed, haven't you, that big fellows usually are concerned when trouble starts? This idea is suggested by the "confession" made by Arthur Pelky, the man who was in the ring with Luther McCarty when the latter dropped dead in a Calgary ring. Pelky says his battle with Tommy Burns, a six-round affair of last March, was a "frame" and that it was previously rehearsed several times. Burns later managed Pelky and a short time ago announced that he intended to take him to Europe and possibly get on a match with Jack Johnson.

FOLLOWING recent fatalities in the ring this "confession," even if it is afterwards found to have no foundation, is going to do a whole lot of harm. Unfortunately, the target of Pelky's remarks, who makes somewhat of a deal to the whole thing, has been mixed up in peculiar looking affairs before and instantly that old scandal out in Los Angeles between Tommy Burns and Jack O'Brien, of Philadelphia, is brought to mind when the former's connection with this latest off-color scandal is uncovered. Burns and O'Brien were matched out there and later developments were to the effect that Burns had agreed to let O'Brien stay the distance or let him win over something of the kind. As they were ready to start the contest Burns advised O'Brien that the battle would have to be on the level. O'Brien thereupon made a desperate effort to have the bets called off, but failed and the ring-side scandal that ensued is still being discussed out that way.

IT BEHOVES those Athletics to knock a little out. Mack's baseball team can not lose many more games, although they can continue to do so safely unless the Cleveland bunch braces and wins now and then with the Sox and a few other teams are taking vigorous wallops at the Philadelphia gang. The Naps certainly have wilted sadly under the present strain, worse even than did Mack's crew. They haven't shown a high degree of courage, that's sure.

SCANDAL has trailed Burns in other directions. There was a row when he failed to battle Bob Fitzsimmons at Essington, Pa., and there was much sour talk around here when Mike Schreck was battling at his best and Tommy refused to meet him. Nasty telegrams were produced to show that Burns wanted to "talk it over" with John Farland, Willie Ritchie, and dozens of others we could name, have always been content to stand on their own merits and fight their best, losing if they must, but always losing honorably.

THERE'S an old ringside saying that the "bigger they are the harder they fall." In the light of recent events we'll have to change that to read: "The bigger they are, the less courage they have." At least the assumption is that fixers are entirely lacking in courage or else they wouldn't want to fix. Good little men like Bat Nelson, Ad Wolcott, Freddie Welsh, Paddy McFarland, Willie Ritchie, and dozens of others we could name, have always been content to stand on their own merits and fight their best, losing if they must, but always losing honorably.

GREAT FALLS WINS RAG. GREEN, UTAH, Sept. 15.—The season of the Union association officially closed to-day here with games at Salt Lake, Great Falls and Helena. Great Falls takes the pennant with Salt Lake as the contender.

CLEMONSON SURE THEY'LL HAVE A GOOD ELEVEN

CLEMONSON COLLEGE, S. C., Sept. 15.—The fact that only the old students have as yet reported at Clemson makes it impossible to make a satisfactory prediction as to the make-up of the Tiger team. Coles, Kanister and Turbeville will not be back. Captain Ganley, nevertheless, is quite hopeful over the prospects for a winning team.

Coach Williams is here and he has already inspired the men with hope. The Tigers believe in Bob Williams, and they work for him as they will for no other coach. Coach Williams is among the silent men when it comes to giving out the dope, but there is no more faithful worker to be found on the gridiron.

The football field is full of candidates every afternoon. The men move around like veterans. There is plenty of material among the old men, and it is said that there are several promising men among the recruits who are to report next week.

Rip Major, the captain of last year's Auburn, is the assistant coach. He once wore a Clemson uniform and is familiar with the Tiger tactics. Major has started at nearly every position on a football team, and will render valuable service in whipping the Tigers into shape.

Clemson has a stiff schedule for this fall, as follows: October 4—Davidson at Clemson. October 11—Alabama in Tuscaloosa. October 18—Auburn at Clemson. October 25—South Carolina in Columbia.

November 1—Cittadel in Charleston. November 8—Georgia in Athens or Augusta. November 15—Mercer at Clemson. November 27—Georgia Tech in Atlanta.

Cotton States Titles Are Here Smith and Mansfield Win Doubles

ATLANTA tennis cracks made a clean sweep of the Cotton States championships, just finished on the courts of the Atlanta Athletic Club at East Lake, by taking the challenge match in doubles, Smith and Mansfield defeating Brooks and Bartlett, the Birmingham defenders, in a hard-fought match that had to be continued over from Saturday into this week.

Carlton Smith won the singles challenge match handsly Saturday morning, defeating Lee Allen Brooks, 6-0, 6-2, 6-2, in straight sets. The afternoon was set for the consolation match in singles and the challenge match in doubles. Harry Hallman won the consolation cup defeating T. M. Wilson in straight sets, 6-1, 6-2. The doubles match turned out to be a spectacular struggle and at dusk, when play ceased, the match stood two sets all, Smith and Mansfield having won the first and third, and Brooks and Bartlett the second and fourth.

The play-off was set for the following week, and a sharp and well-played final set went to Smith and Mansfield, 6-2, giving them the full and the championship. The full scores were, 11-9, 4-6, 9-7, 2-6, 6-2. The visiting players expressed themselves as delighted with the hospitality of the club and the social attentions shown them while guests in Atlanta. It is probable the Cotton States tourney will be played here next year.

ANOTHER LOCAL LADY WONDERFULLY BENEFITED

Lindsay street, has taken two and one-half bottles of the Quaker Herb Extract, and this has caused her to expel a female tumor or growth which she says positively weighed in the neighborhood of eight pounds. She said she tried every doctor of any repute, with the advice from each one that an operation would be necessary. She also states after this thing was removed she had to go to her family physician and have several applications made to overcome the irritation caused by this trouble. She could do walking of any kind and could remain up for just a few hours at the time. Suffered from shortness of breath. She was very weak for some time after this thing was expelled. Now, as I have just stated, there is no doubt but something was expelled, and no doubt she is sincere in her statement. She is very enthusiastic over the results obtained. If you suffer as did this woman, or with rheumatism, catarrh, liver, kidney, blood troubles, call to-day at Coursey & Munn's Drug Store, 29 Marquette street, and obtain Quaker Herb Extract, 6 bottles for $5.00 for $2.50, or $1 per bottle. Oil of Balm, 25c, or 5 for $1. We prepay express charges on all orders of $3 or over.

Figures Won't Lie, but They Will Lead You a Merry Dance in Baseball EVER CALCULATE HOW THEY DO WHEN THEY DON'T?

By O. B. Keeler. It has been a long time since somebody first came forward with that cheerful maxim to the effect that figures do not lie.

AND you can work up a similar row about the relative position of every team in the league, or in any league.

THAT dope sheet of Dick Jemison's is an interesting thing—and it does inspire one with a huge respect for the quaint and almost lawless workings of presumably cold and unsympathetic figures, when applied to the National Game.

OUR personal thanks to Mr. Jemison for his kind words and particularly for his sportsmanlike expression of the spirit existing among Atlanta baseball fans and Atlanta baseball writers.

ONE game of solitaire that beats Canfield is to take a set of baseball statistics and try to figure out from it why this team didn't, and so on.

Tremendous Driving Power Marks Play of Club's New Golfing Champion ADAIR DEFEATS BLANTON FOR A. A. C. TITLE

GEORGE W. ADAIR is the golfing champion of the Atlanta Athletic Club for the season of 1913—one of the best golfing seasons, by the way, the club ever has enjoyed.

ADAIR played brilliantly from the start, showed promise of some extraordinary driving, which was fully realized as the play progressed.

Blanton played brilliantly after a bad third shot, and still had a long chance when the pair drove off for the fourteenth. This hole Adair made in 4, however, and won the hole and the match—and the club championship.

CAPITAL MUST QUOTER THE MOB' SQUARE DEAL

Time Here for Employers to Take Heed of Voters They Are Making.

By B. C. FORBES. All progress is forced by the mob. That was the statement snarled at me by a workman.

The rich never budge until they are forced to, he added. "Universities don't advocate reforms until the people have clamored for them and are far on the road to getting them."

These blunt assertions are worth thinking over by the capitalistic classes in America, especially by those who are striving might and main to stem the tide of progress toward applied democracy. The "mob" sooner or later has its way. The more it is crushed, the longer it is unfairly treated, the more radical its revenge—recall the French Revolution, the overthrow of various dynasties in modern times, the social revolution now going on in Britain.

Reactionaries in this country should not shut their eyes to the handwriting on the wall. The farther the scale of justice is depressed on one side the greater its rebound.

Among those who specially need to consider their ways and readjust their attitude are:

Employers who pay starvation wages. Owners of sweatshops. Manufacturers who exploit child labor. Corporations who, through monopoly patents or other means, rob the public.

Financiers who rake in millions from railroad and other corporations which they control.

Directors who use their office to cheat other securities holders through speculation in the shares of their companies.

Bankers who are foolishly trying to stop the Federal Government from controlling the nation's currency system and who want to run things their own way.

Railroads which have been exploited for the pockets of a few insiders instead of being run for the service of the public.

Corporations which adhere to secrecy—no doubt for very potent reasons.

Politicians who aspire to ride above the wishes of the "common people" and who fear what they term "mob rule."

Judges and legislators of the stripe that fetter the bankrolls by heavy remittances from Standard Oil and other corporations.

Promoters who foist questionable and worthless securities on the public.

Bankers who are opposed to forming a proper system of credit for the nation's farmers.

The Coal Barons, who still do as they please.

The "mob" are bent upon reforms touching all these.

Many responsible financiers are beginning to see the straight. Others are still blind. Recent events have opened a few eyes. The once-arrogant house of Morgan & Co. has been brought to its knees over the New Haven scandal. The once-overbearing Standard Oil gang has been brought to its senses and is now spending sleepless nights over its sins—because found out. The latest wreckers who have had an almost comfortable time. Politicians of the "stand-pat" kind have been put to rout. Corporation managers who used to trample upon their workmen in the same way as the voluntarily sold upon, although many of them are still obstinate.

The vote of John D. Rockefeller, J. P. Morgan, and the late Jacob Schiff counts for no more than the vote of the workman with whom I talked. And there are more workmen than there are Rockefeller's, Morgans, Bakers and Schiffs.

Give the "mob" a square deal. Grant them reasonable concessions VOLUNTARILY. Do not wait until they FORCE fair play, for when they do they are more inclined to revenge for what they were unjustly deprived of.

Not long ago an interview with a milk-wagon driver was printed in this column. In it he pleaded for more humane treatment. I have since been in touch with the corporation employing him, and hope to be able to chronicle one gratifying case of concessions being granted voluntarily. The trouble with many companies is that they do not THINK enough about the kind of voters they are making of their men.

It is not time for employers to take stock of the kind of voters they are making of their men?

BURLESQUE THEATER Opening Postponed

The Columbia Theater, the home of burlesque in Atlanta, will not open to-night, as advertised. It has been found that the stage is too small to accommodate the large company, and carpenters are at work enlarging and rearranging for the opening, which takes place next Saturday afternoon at 3 o'clock and 9 o'clock at night.

CABLE NEWS

Important Events From All Over the Old World Told in a Few Short Lines.

Scandal in Italian Army. GENOVA, ITALY, Sept. 15.—Persistent rumors of irregularities led to the beginning of an investigation to-day into the administration of the army corps commander in the Italian army. Sensational revelations are expected.

Revolution in Turkey. CONSTANTINOPLE, Sept. 15.—Having passed through a long and bloody war, Turkey now has a revolution on her hands. Dispatches received here from Medina, Asiatic Turkey, state that three tribes have risen up in arms and are pressing upon the town.

Five Killed at Bull Fight. MADRID, Sept. 15.—Five persons are dead and nearly 50 others lie wounded to-day in their homes or in hospitals as the result of a bull fight disaster at Ciudad Real yesterday. A sudden storm blew and the spectators rushed into the covered stand, which collapsed.

These blunt assertions are worth thinking over by the capitalistic classes in America, especially by those who are striving might and main to stem the tide of progress toward applied democracy. The "mob" sooner or later has its way. The more it is crushed, the longer it is unfairly treated, the more radical its revenge—recall the French Revolution, the overthrow of various dynasties in modern times, the social revolution now going on in Britain.

Cotton Forgeries Made Impossible

Charles S. Haight, representing the Liverpool Bill of Lading Conference Committee, announces that European cotton interests have taken final action toward the permanent organization of the Cotton Bills of Lading Central Bureau and the uniform and permanent use of that bureau for the protection of the cotton trade against forged documents.

"The practicability and the efficiency of the Central Bureau have been demonstrated during the past two years. The co-operation of the cotton carrying railroads has been unanimous, 116 roads having signed the agreement with the Liverpool Bill of Lading Committee and the American Bankers' Association.

BEST COUNCIL IN SEASON OF CHAMBER

Georgia Farmers Join Committee in Planning for Success of Atlanta Exhibition.

Arrangements for the annual Georgia Corn Show, under the auspices of the Atlanta Chamber of Commerce, will be discussed by the corn show committee of the chamber, of which H. G. Hastings is chairman, at a meeting to be held this week.

Responses which corn growers of Georgia are making to the appeals of the committee and the Chamber of Commerce indicate the show this year will eclipse any that has yet been held. Farmers are taking greater interest in the exhibition than ever before.

"The Georgia Farmers' Corn Show will be a success beyond all precedent. The demand for reservations in the college dormitories has been greater than in any former year.

Dr. Hall Delights Auditorium Audience

Atlanta music lovers heard one of the best programs of the year at the Auditorium Sunday afternoon when Frederick Hall, of Haddon Heights, N. J., gave an oration recital, one of the series under the auspices of the Atlanta Music Festival Association in its quest for a successor to Dr. Percy J. Starnes.

Two of his own compositions were played, "Rosen Reminiscence" and "The Gettysburg Reminiscence" and both were beautiful and magnificently rendered. One of the largest audiences of the year heard Mr. Hall.

COTTON GOSSIP

"Bullish crop conditions and trade conditions with demand for manufactured products in the face of small stocks of good is a bullish feature that can not be underestimated. Neither American nor foreign cotton buyers have started to buy their cotton in any quantity yet. They got left on this advance and lost the chance of buying cheap cotton this season. I believe in buying on every easy spot and expect to see 14-cent cotton before the end of the month."

Replies of a September 10 show a loss in condition during two weeks of 4.4 per cent, giving a percentage of 84.6 for that date for United States cotton, according to J. B. Turner, of Memphis.

The condition on September 25, last year, was 69.6 and the ten-year average for that date is 88.5. Rains since the date of the report have been of some benefit in the Mississippi valley and eastward and have probably arrested deterioration though it does not yet appear that there has been any restoration of losses. In Texas excessive precipitation has been productive of more damage to grade than addition to yield.

Condition by States follows: North Carolina, 70 against 78; South Carolina, 65 against 77; Georgia, 73 against 78; Alabama, 70 against 77; Mississippi, 66 against 69; Tennessee, 74 against 80; Arkansas, 65 against 72; Louisiana, 64 against 67; Oklahoma, 71 against 74; Texas, 68 against 66; United States, 63.8 against 68.2.

Spot people say no increase in orders from abroad. Good grades higher to buy on account of lowering of grades in London. Considerable hoarding of cotton in interior, owing to advance in futures supporting bullish views.

Cotton will probably continue in a trading position.—New York Financial Bureau.

NEW ORLEANS, Sept. 15.—Hayward & Clark: The weather map is very favorable, showing partly cloudy to fair in Texas and Oklahoma, but only rain or little at Fort Worth, sprinkle at Palestine and Oklahoma City. Cloudy over central and western States, with general rains, light to moderate, except in Mobile and New Orleans section, where heavy showers are expected in the western States. No storm anywhere in the belt.

Washington forecast for week: Rain Monday east of the Mississippi River and Tuesday in the South Atlantic States. Light rain west of the coast during the week and also east after Tuesday. Moderate temperatures.

NEW ORLEANS COTTON. Orleans, Sept. 15.—Weather developments over Sunday are as predicted and distinctly favorable. The map this morning shows part cloudy to rainy weather in the West, with a little precipitation at a few points. Generally cloudy in the central and eastern States, but with no rain in the Mobile district. There was no storm, merely a general moving from Texas eastward. Rains are needed in the Eastern States after ten days of hot weather. Indications are for generally fair weather in the Western States, except possibly a few light showers in Southeast Texas; cloudy unsettled and rainy weather in the eastern half of the belt.

Governor Slaton's Judicial Appointments Give Satisfaction

Able and Courageous Men Placed Where They Can Best Serve the People.

Governor Slaton's judicial appointments, just made public, prove that our able executive is not to be influenced by politicians or others in filling offices. The gentlemen named are well known. They are able, and have served the public well in the past.

Judge Hill, in accepting the appointment to the new Atlanta circuit, sets a fine example to other men in public places, for the position he gives up on the Appellate Court bench is ranked higher than the place to which he has been assigned.

Judge Hill undoubtedly considered it his duty to the public to make the change. He is the distinguished son of one of Georgia's intellectual giants. He has an enviable record as a lawyer. His knowledge of the law has given him a commanding position among able and thoughtful lawyers. His place in the legal history of our State is fixed and permanent.

And he possesses in a very marked degree one of the most important qualifications any judge can have—COURAGE! He knows the law. He is intensely human. He is unafraid. Mob clamor, trials by orators in and out of the pulpit and trials by newspapers of important cases do not influence him. He is a just judge, who tempers justice with mercy, but believes the laws of the Commonwealth must be enforced.

The other appointees, Judge Roan, Charles S. Reid and George M. Napier, are equally satisfactory.

This newspaper congratulates Governor Slaton upon the selections he has made.

Thaw's Persecution a Legal Farce

Harry Thaw is being hounded as relentlessly in Vermont and New Hampshire as he was in the Dominion of Canada. The story of Thaw's pursuit and prosecution, with Sheriffs, Constables, Immigration Officers and high-priced lawyers joining in, makes as disgraceful a chapter of the attempted administration of justice as could be supplied from the annals of the Middle Ages.

First, Thaw is seized illegally in Canada and held illegally till W. T. Jerome has an opportunity to get on the State payroll and hurry to Canada, there to continue the bedeviling of Thaw begun seven years ago.

Next, Jerome, holding a commission as a Deputy Attorney General of the State of New York, gets himself arrested as a common gambler and locked up in the cell that first held Thaw—a shameful performance. Once out of jail, he jumps into the automobile in which he had intended to rush Thaw through two States and hastens out of Canada despite the warning of the authorities that this would be jumping bail.

While Jerome was crossing and recrossing the border the Canadian immigration authorities took Thaw by force out of his prison and dragged him over the line. This was done despite a solemn writ from the King's bench ordering Thaw to be produced for a habeas corpus hearing in Montreal. Jerome's part in this high-handed proceeding was to be at the line waiting for Thaw when he was ejected from Canada. His own troubles, however, had mixed his plans and he was not present.

In spite of the flouting of the law by the Canadian immigration officials, inspired by Jerome, Thaw was out of Canada and once more free. There was no immediate necessity for his deportation. He was doing no harm in Coaticook and in a position to do no harm. He objected strenuously to being freed in such a manner, yet here he was, an American citizen, in his own country, convicted of no crime and beyond any recognized power of extradition.

You would imagine that he would have at least received fair treatment in his own country. But you would be wrong. In every part of Vermont and New Hampshire Deputy Sheriffs swarmed on Thaw's trail and within a few hours he was arrested without warrant or extradition papers and again held until the always tardy Jerome should appear and take charge of him.

Why were the Canadian immigration officials in such a hurry to deliver Thaw into the hands of Jerome that they rose superior to the courts of their country?

Why were the New England sheriffs obsessed with such a mad desire to lock up a man who had never violated a statute of their State and never, according to a jury, committed a crime in any other State?

Why have precedent and order and decency and law been calmly set aside in shameful pursuit of a citizen to whom the Constitution of the United States supposedly guarantees the rights and privileges of all citizens?

Why does the chase of one man, already punished by seven years of jail in a madhouse for ridding the world of a white slaver, cause authorities in two countries to abandon their regular duties as if an outlaw were devastating the countryside?

The Reason Why

Before the little fledglings leave their nest, the mother bird has taught them how to fly. With dancing feet that scarcely touch the sod—the maiden's joy of living sounds life's knell. But human mothers fail to meet this test, and so their daughters flutter—fall—and die. How shall she learn to follow paths untrod, unguided, helpless, under blindness' spell? While mothers teach that innocence is best, that life is fair and blue and sunlit sky! How can she guess the road that leads to God must bridge the grim abyss o'er man-made Hell? L. L.

Ella Wheeler Wilcox

Writes on

The Nation's Workers

Labor Unions Should Instill the Religion of Kindness Into the Daily Relation of Toilers.

Written for The Atlanta Georgian
By Ella Wheeler Wilcox
(Copyright, 1913.)

THE well-being of our whole nation depends upon working men and women. Without labor, capital would be useless; without labor, the home, society, ships, trains, pleasure, charity, duty, would all be words devoid of meaning.

Were all the idle rich of the earth to suddenly vanish, were all the geniuses and the society people and the kings and rulers and the pleasure makers to be swept away, the world could still go on, and there would be comfort and prosperity, and homes would still exist.

Men and women would be able to eat, drink and be merry; to marry, to rear children, to travel and to perform all the various offices of daily life. But were all these geniuses and money kings, and imperial rulers, and the pleasure makers and seekers, to remain, and the world's workers were to be swept away, what awful misery would prevail!

Religion Is of No Avail Unless Workers Aid One Another.

Trains and ships would cease to move; the home and the hotel would become desert places, and there would be no comfort and no pleasure on earth. Therefore it should be the aim and object of all leaders of religious thought to try and give such teachings and such prospects to this important part of our world as will awaken in each mind a truer ideal of brotherly love and human sympathy, and which will try to do away with the petty and quarrelsome and unworthy spirit which mars the ranks of labor to-day, and which interferes with the happiness and comfort of tens of thousands of human beings.

Unless the working men and women are showing one another courtesy, good will, and making an effort to do as they would be done by, of what use is their religion?

The fear of doing some duty which belongs to another, and the great desire to show a spirit of independence, rather than a spirit of helpfulness toward fellow workers, is everywhere prevalent today. The greater their privileges, given by the employers, the less kindness do they seem to feel toward one another. Even in the homes where but two maids are kept, one a working housekeeper and cook, the other waitress and chambermaid, discord often prevails, because the one is exacting or the other inconsiderate. And, just in proportion as the staff increases in numbers, so does the discord increase, because of this fear of being imposed upon or being asked to do some duty by a fellow toiler.

A man servant who has been, perhaps, years in some home will find a newcomer haughty and impertinent, when trying to portion out his duties, because the newcomer is filled with the modern idea of being "as good as the next," and imagines the head man is putting on airs. Often the head man is the offender. In every department of labor this unfortunate feeling is found, spoiling conditions even where employers have tried to make them ideal.

Kindness the Keynote of Harmony Among the World's Toilers.

It is all the result of LACK OF REAL RELIGIOUS PRINCIPLES. Clergymen and parents have failed to present A RELIGION OF HUMAN BROTHERHOOD to this great and important part of our republic—the laboring people—a religion which necessitates the daily and hourly practice of the common virtues of kindness, courtesy and good will toward one another.

All religions are represented among the working people of America. Protestants, Roman Catholics, Lutherans, members of the Greek Church, the Jewish Tabernacle, are all to be found among our daily toilers, in domestic service, in the shops and factories and hotels.

This article is an appeal to men who stand at the head of all those religious organizations to try to make the religion of their followers more practical and more useful in the world.

Much is said about the duty of employers to their helpers, and the duties of labor to capital, but one of the most needed reforms in the world of labor to-day is to BRING THE RELIGION OF KINDNESS INTO THE RELATION OF WORKER WITH WORKER; BETWEEN FIRST AND SECOND OVERSEER; BETWEEN BUTLER AND VALET; BETWEEN COOK AND SECOND GIRL, AND SO ON THROUGH ALL THE VARIOUS DEPARTMENTS OF LABOR.

It is doubtful if in any home in the land a mistress or master of a household can be found who is so inconsiderate, so thoughtless, so selfish, so anxious to be thought "better" and so afraid of doing one act not included in the contract, as are a large number of the maids and men who work in hotels, boarding houses or private homes, shops or factories in their relations with one another.

Capital can not misuse or maltreat labor as labor is mistreating labor every hour of the day, in every village, city and country place in America. Since it has become the custom to specialize work, and with the increase of wages and the decrease of working hours, the spirit of intolerance between working people in various departments seems to grow with astonishing rapidity.

Labor unions and the progressive spirit of the day have awakened the mind of the general public to the rights and the privileges of labor. And labor itself has grown to realize its necessity to give good work and good will in return for its shorter hours and larger wages.

Treat Your Co-Workers in the Same Way You Would Demand.

But it has utterly failed to grasp the meaning of Brotherhood in its hourly relations one with another.

It ought to be the effort of every religious teacher in America to awaken the hearts of the working people to a better understanding of this practical phase of spirituality. If you are a laboring man or woman, stop and ask yourself, are you treating your fellow workers, whether in factories, shops, hotels and homes, JUST AS YOU WOULD LIKE TO BE TREATED? Are you treating them as well as you treat your employers?

And do you not know of innumerable cases where labor is mistreating labor, if not in acts, then in selfish and jealous and envious thoughts and words?

The true religion lies in being kind.

DREAMS

By EDMUND LEAMY.

If you can fight, as I must fight,
The daily grinding toil:
Then you will know the after-glow,
The peace from out the moil.
If you are loved, as I am loved,
The earth's a Paradise:
And you will play the game away,
Nor care to win the prize.
If you can hope, as I may hope,
With faith that still endures,
Then you will win, through all the sin—
The world itself is yours.
And you will dream, as I can dream,
And dreams are fairer far
Than love, and gold, and earth so old,
Or other things that are.
