(By Ralph Smith.)
WASHINGTON, Aug. 22.—The million United States treasury dollars to be distributed to the banks of Georgia, Alabama, Mississippi and Louisiana, and to the banks of Florida, to facilitate the movement of the cotton crop, the money will be distributed among the cities of Savannah, Macon and Augusta on a basis of national banking capital.

It is believed that upwards of $750,000 will be deposited in the banks of Atlanta, but the exact figures are not known definitely.

A formal statement will be issued by the United States treasury department, to facilitate the movement of the cotton crop, the money will be distributed among the cities of Savannah, Macon and Augusta on a basis of national banking capital.

The facts in the above dispatch are approximately correct, Atlanta banks will receive approximately $750,000, Macon a little more, but not much. This money will be distributed among the cities of Savannah, Macon and Augusta on a basis of national banking capital.

The local banks will receive the money in the form of checks, which will be sent this time, and the balance of the money will be sent in quarterly payments, beginning December 1, and ending March 1, next.

It is not possible to learn how the total amount will be divided among the banks of the state, but it is probable that Macon will receive $500,000, Savannah and Augusta will probably get $250,000 each. That Macon gets as much as Savannah and Augusta combined can be explained by the fact that Macon has more than any other national bank in the state on these Georgia cities, however, are not authoritative, but are fairly accurate estimates.

The local clearing house has received a letter from the treasury department outlining the various conditions of the currency advance, most of which are already familiar.

(By Associated Press.)
WASHINGTON, Aug. 22.—Foreign governments, some of which have recognized the Huerta government in Mexico, are exerting such pressure upon the United States as to yield to the demands of the United States for extradition of Francisco Huerta. President Wilson to defer the reading of his message to congress on Tuesday.

Administrative action would be taken today. Dispatches from John Lind describe the position on the part of the officials as a result of the acute debate on Thursday in which President Wilson was announced to have ordered in his efforts to bring about peace.

President Wilson's insistence upon the original proposals, including the facility of sending an envoy, either Emilio Rabasa or Frederico Gamboa, to discuss the situation with President Wilson. The United States has informed Huerta that unless he has brought a favorable answer to the original proposals, his mission would be fruitless. No envoy is now expected, but the president is expected to bring about important details.

President Wilson's message practically contained his message to congress and read it over to the Senate on Tuesday.

Direct advice from Mexico City that Provisional President Huerta might wish to reconsider his rejection of the American proposals before President Wilson revealed the negotiations to congress, have changed the situation and today's prospects appear to be bright.

Mr. Wilson's interest in his message long enough today to get a few hours' rest at night.

HUERTA WANTS DELAY.

Suggestions have been made to the Washington government since the exchange of notes which indicate a tendency on the part of the Huerta officials to delay the issue. The publication of reports in Mexico City that Emilio Rabasa would be sent to Washington by Huerta as a condition precedent to a plan to send an envoy to the United States, has been believed, however, President Wilson just as Mr. Lind did not believe in the possibility of a mission that Frederico Gamboa, minister of foreign affairs in Mexico City, has indicated by Huerta for the mission if such is intended.

The American government, however, would not be eliminated as the United States is known as yet, but as according to a desire to reconsider the first rejection of the American proposals, the mission is regarded as of much significance.

That the American government, however, would not be eliminated as the United States is known as yet, but as according to a desire to reconsider the first rejection of the American proposals, the mission is regarded as of much significance.

Something definite, however, is being awaited by the United States, and it is unlikely that this government will wait beyond Monday for tangible evidence on the part of the Huerta government to proceed from its position.

The present intention is to have President Wilson proclaim in the message to congress on Tuesday the policies the United States will pursue and which the nation of the world, it is expected, will firmly support.

ARMS SHIPMENTS ALLOWED.

President Wilson has granted permission for the exportation of 2,000 rifles and 300,000 cartridges to the Huerta government. All but 1,000 rifles and 100,000 cartridges will be shipped from Vera Cruz via Vera Cruz.

Some of the latter vessels have gone through it since the first permission granted since June 25, and many applications have been made.

It is pointed out that the neutrality proclamation between the United States and the United States is not opposed to having the United States supply arms to the Huerta government. Neither is this government opposed to seeing arms shipped from Vera Cruz and Mexico City, and it is understood that the Huerta government has not precipitated an open break, but it is understood that on the absence of any definite advice from the Huerta government, they were making time and waiting patiently to have their hands washed.

His lawyers conferred with him all afternoon, but with what result was not known. Roger O'Mara, of Pittsburgh, reported that he was here to "sit on the lot" for the Huerta family. There was still the dominant head of the proceedings.

In the court, the status of his lawyers has not precipitated an open break, but it is understood that on the absence of any definite advice from the Huerta government, they were making time and waiting patiently to have their hands washed.

FRANK'S TIME ALIBI ATTACKED BY SOLICITOR THROUGH FRANK'S OWN STATEMENT TO POLICE

Dorsey Declares Frank First Told Police He Did Not Leave Factory Until 1:10 and That He Could Not Have Been Seen on Whitehall at That Hour—Case of Defense Assailed at Every Point—Here Is Speech in Full

So eloquent did Solicitor Dorsey become in his argument Saturday afternoon that Mrs. J. W. Coleman, mother of Mary Phagan, the little girl for whose murder Leo M. Frank is on trial, became hysterical and uttered several piercing cries, interrupting the solicitor's argument for several minutes.

The plainly apparent anguish of Mrs. Coleman had its effect upon Frank's mother and wife, and they covered their faces with their hands, while the crowd looked on with interest and sympathy.

Mrs. Coleman was overcome with emotion when Solicitor Dorsey, pointing his finger at the defendant, said: "Mary Phagan sacrificed her life to protect her honor. Mr. Dorsey spoke with tenderness of the little girl, but he history arraigned Frank, pointing him out as the man whose evil passions had driven him to commit a heinous murder."

Mr. Dorsey adjourned at 1:40 until 9 o'clock Monday morning. Mr. Dorsey had concluded his argument although he had spoken for six hours and ten minutes.

Solicitor Dorsey's speech was a masterly presentation of the state's case, and was unusually eloquent and well characterized so much by orator as it was by a logical analysis of the evidence.

Section by section the solicitor read the statement made by the defendant and section by section he pointed out the errors in this statement was a most exhaustive one. He has, so far, dwelt on no portion of Jim Conley's testimony, that is corroborated by the testimony of the witnesses for the defense as well as the defendant's own statements.

The solicitor's speech made a great impression upon the spectators in the court room and when court adjourned he was warmly congratulated. The crowds on the street in front of the court house cheered him as he left the building.

Taking up the charge of the defense that perjury had figured largely in the evidence of the state Solicitor Dorsey cited, one after another, the name and testimony of witnesses for the defense, and attacked the truth of their evidence. He also called the attention of the jury to the fact that many of the defense witnesses—employees of the pencil factory—had been given raises in their pay since the murder of Mary Phagan.

And the raises did not stop at the "pencil factory," said he, "Minola McKNIGHT, cook at Frank's home, also got a raise."

Two of the witnesses for the defense—Mrs. Carson and Mrs. Small—declared Mr. Dorsey had corroborated Jim Conley's statement to the effect that he and Frank were on the fourth floor of the factory on Monday afternoon for the murder. Conley swore in his affidavit to the police, that he met Frank in the fourth room and the latter, while passing him, had whispered to him and told him to "be a good boy."

A vigorous and detailed attack was made by Solicitor Dorsey upon the time chart alibi, offered by Frank's attorneys, Leo M. Frank and upon which they are largely depending to establish his innocence of the murder of Mary Phagan.

Mr. Dorsey contrasted this time chart with affidavits made by Frank and other witnesses as to the time certain incidents occurred on the day of the murder. He called attention to the fact that the time chart says Frank left the factory to go to lunch at 1 o'clock, but that in his affidavit to the detective Frank says he left the factory at 1:10.

"This chart," said Mr. Dorsey, "states Mary Phagan arrive at the factory at 12:12, when Frank has taken his case ten or fifteen minutes earlier, while Frank and Mrs. Freeman and Mrs. Small, who says Lemmie Quinn came to the factory between 12:20 and 12:25, the exact testimony of Mrs. Freeman and Miss Hill indicate he arrived before 12."

"Shelley, Aloize Mann and Irby say Frank arrived at the factory at 1:10, the same time that Frank himself says 8:30 and Jim Conley says 8:30."

Mr. Dorsey declared Mr. Dorsey, shows that Frank had left the factory at 10 o'clock, but that in his statement Frank swore he was at Montags at 10. Mattie Smith says she left the factory on her first afternoon while Frank and Mrs. Freeman and Mrs. Small, who says Lemmie Quinn came to the factory between 12:20 and 12:25, the exact testimony of Mrs. Freeman and Miss Hill indicate he arrived before 12."

Before taking up the time chart alibi Mr. Dorsey cited many cases in which the jury where men of presumably good character had committed heinous crimes. Among them was Abe Ruef, of San Francisco; Oscar Wilde, Benedict Arnold; Mayor McGuire, of Charlottesville, Va.; Frederick Richardson, of Boston, and Henry Clay Beattie, of Richmond.

At 5:45 o'clock Saturday, expected to be the final day of the Frank trial, the first man took the stand facing the closed doors of the court room and began his case.

Half an hour later thirty men were sworn in the line numbered hundreds of men and women.

At 8:45 o'clock when the doors were opened, the line numbered hundreds of men and women.

More women attended the trial than any previous session has ever seen. The majority of them were seated when the doors were opened and the court officers took their stations to admit the jury.

"May it please your honor and gentlemen of the jury, I had just completed the matter of character when we adjourned yesterday. And I think I had demonstrated to the satisfaction of any fair-minded man that this defendant has not shown character. There is a cause counsel for this defendant did not wish to cross-examine."

"You tell me that because these good people from Washington street think that Mary has a good character, that he character is good? But many a man has gone through life without his wife or his best friend knowing his true character. There is an old saying that it takes a man's valet to know his real self, and that is largely true."

He is telling these unprotected working girls who are not now under the influence of the Montags and the Phagans, that he is a good character, who has a wife and children and that he knows Leo M. Frank better, than do the rabble of his church and than do his friends.

"I have had a good character, who has a wife and children and that he knows Leo M. Frank better, than do the rabble of his church and than do his friends."

Young's death under technical rules of the prize fight, which when the contest was under way, was declared by the referee immediately after Young's victory over Willard.

GAYNOR RUNS AS INDEPENDENT AGAINST TAMMANY AND FUSIONIST CANDIDATES

After Judge Scored Jurors for Mistrial, Defendant Voluntarily Admitted Guilt

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.) MONTGOMERY, Ala., Aug. 22.—One of the most startling rebukes of a jury ever heard in the south was given by Federal Judge William B. Sheppard here this morning when the jury reported a mistrial after two days in the case of Walter Sealey, a prominent Bradley county planter, accused of holding W. W. Taylor, a negro, in bondage.

"This is a travesty on justice," Judge Sheppard said. "I do not see how any intelligent man, hearing the evidence as it was presented, could agree to such a verdict. While we hear much of corrupt justice on every hand, do you not think it is time that we should consider any case brought before us with an impartial light and to render its verdict to the best of his ability, extending the functions God gave him?"

"The man who is guilty of a crime, down in your hearts you are certain of this fact, but you bring in a verdict to the effect that he is innocent." This was the second mistrial of Sealey on the same charge, Judge Sheppard's district is in Pensacola, Fla. but he has been holding court here for Judge Jones.

MRS. SARAH C. WILLINGHAM, Mrs. Sealey's wife, fifty-four, aged 27 years, died at the residence, 22 South Simpson street, Birmingham, Ala., on August 21, 1913. She was buried in the city of Birmingham, Ala., on August 22, 1913.

Government Jobs Go Begging.

Despite the army of patriots who are willing and eager to serve their country in jobs that come as political appointments there are precious few it would seem, who give a thought to that wider and more important field of public service which is approached through competitive examinations.

The Beginning of Huerta's End.

President Wilson's forthcoming message in the Mexican situation will doubtless have a potent and reasonable effect not only in Congress, but on public sentiment as well, and on diplomatic thought the world around.

That the administration's Mexican policy thus far has the approval of the great majority of sober-minded citizens and of Congress, too, regardless of party alignments, can scarcely be doubted.

But Huerta would not listen to reason or justice. His insistence upon being recognized as the rightful president Mexico, when the whole world knows that his sole claim to the office rests upon lawlessness and bloodshed, is so, to be considered for a moment by the United States.

All other countries realize that the President's only interest in Mexican affairs is that of one who would unselfishly aid Mexico in saving itself from anarchy and in rising to its responsibilities as a nation.

OUR DAILY BREAD

By Frederic J. Haskin

While the improved machinery and methods used in baking are responsible for the increased quantity as well as the improved quality of bread, a part of the miller must also be given to the miller who has called into being improved machinery as well as chemical science, in order to produce the baker with the quality of wheat flour.

The first thing for the miller to ascertain is the strength of the wheat he has purchased. The millage of a sufficient quantity to make a single loaf of bread is too troublesome a process to be gone through with for each lot of wheat purchased.

Gluten is the bread making quality in flour. The other cereals, barley, oats, maize and rice, will not make bread because they do not contain gluten.

The great lack now evident in the marketing of flour, to those who take them into bread, is that of a connection between the two trades as shown by some other factor.

Originally the baking and milling trades were combined and have been separated only by accident.

The flour prepared by the primitive hand required the grain between two stones. A little later they began to use a millstone, which was a large stone rounded to turn upon it, the hollowed out stone being kept stationary.

The first mechanical contrivance for milling flour was known to have been used in Egypt, and it is known that it did not interfere with the hand ground flour.

With the queen were introduced several different parts which were added to it by degree, including one for sifting the flour, thus separating the bran from the white part of the grain, and making possible the baking of white bread.

ADVOCATES OF PEACE

By Dr. Frank Crane

Who said anything about war? Who wants war? Why all this alarm when our statement are all for peace? Every nation says the same thing: all prices ministers cry out: "We're against it."

Chancellor Bethmann-Hollweg of the German empire, declares "No one could imagine what a frightful calamity a European war would be. No statement would dare to bring the light of war upon the nations."

The French minister responds with the same public note: "France has but one grand care: it is to prove to the world that its determination to be a great pacifier among nations. Our one dream and goal is peace."

It is not Germany's fault, says Bethmann-Hollweg, that the world is in a state of such nervousness. It is the term of compulsory military service is lengthened to three years—the longest of the most progressive nations of Europe.

The "Wilson Policy" Toward Mexico Is the American Policy. New York Herald.

General Huerta could not make a greater mistake than to assume, as City of Mexico dispatches state, that the United States is "partisan" in President Wilson's attitude toward Mexico.

There is no possible ground for complaint against President Wilson for not making known the details of the negotiations at the City of Mexico.

It is not merely a matter of expediency that the nature of these results. It knows the president will be sending out "his" policy. It is pretty well assuredly avoided. It knows, too, that President Wilson will not willingly pursue any policy that will result in the prolongation of the internal strife which the Mexican people are so grievously suffering.

 Every comets has his day;
 They're mountains ever may
 Draw its daily thrill and throbs,
 Only one thing sticks for aye--
 That is always on the job.*

*In the current's ebb and flow,
 One by one they make their play,
 Then the curtain falls, and so
 There is nothing left to say;
 Soon to vanish from the fray
 Every Wagner, every Cobb,
 One alone holds fate at bay--
 That is always on the job.*

*In the giddy whirl below

 Where, within the spotlight's glow
 Are the Phenoms cheered in May?
 Kings of drama, and then--hello--
 Lost within the Common Mob;
 Where the Front Page socks its prey
 That is always on the job.*

*Time alone the rest holds sway--
 Time and Fate is they hobnob;
 Both shall find, when and as they,
 That is still upon the job.*

If it is with deep regret that we send out additional tidings in reference to Hans Wagner's sentality (a much-extended reference though it be), in his stand against the Giants, the old man only initiated thirteen hits through the series, driving in eleven runs and preventing seven more by outbatted pressure on the pill. Requested in pace, six seamer, and the rest of it.

Hooted by his home fans, Wagner bette .000 in a series against the Giants, cheered in New York, where he still reigns a topheavy favorite, he batted .000.

Yet certain towns that insist upon panning the epicurean of the athlete in a slump wonder why they never gather in a pennant, absorb a consolation or attach a flag.

John McGraw announces that he doesn't care to have Cincinnati scribbles running his club after what they have done to the Reds. We don't know who did it to the Reds, but the doors thereof made a lovely little job of it, missing not even the scutlet angle.

Just as Chance received waivers upon one bunton he was hurried violently another in the possession of a Mr. McHate. Would it be out of gear to label his first year with the Yanks as "Bunton's Pilgrims Progress"? Oh, very well, quit cursing, we'll move on to the next paragraph.

Essentials Necessary GOLF to Constitute the Average

Golf clubs and golf courses are only made possible by the support of the average player and the diffuser. The scores made by all classes of golfers emanating in club competition for a number of weeks has been found to average 95. This average is unquestionably far below the average of all golf played on our golf courses and it would probably be fair to place the average player at rounds of 87 and 100.

Classes of players who make their rounds in the early eighties or better, and class B, who should just dodge under the ninety line, constitute a very small percentage in every club and do not need flattering and encouragement for if deprived of their golf links this class would play on our public streets, open lots, or front porches.

The clubs that grow fastest in membership are those in which the interests of the average player is carefully looked after, and where the diffusers have a living chance in enough conditions to stimulate better play.

Few men of the average business men class who make only occasional trips to their club links for a round will go over the 100 mark, or get seriously interested in the game, until the tournament committee through some sort of a competition gets them in a corner.

In this class of men who support the club and whose interest golf course architects should consider when they seek to devise fearful and wonderful tests for the experts.

It must be awfully disheartening for the diffuser to be called upon to play from long splash ahead of the tee unless he can carry some bunker, say 150 yards out. I cannot see but the bunker on either hand is just as desirable, even when the ball is found within the stipulated five minutes.

Course architects are nowadays giving more attention to this aspect of the case and making it possible for the short but sure player to make creditable scores with some hope of future improvement.

The average player is a good-natured soul, who takes his punishment with good grace, but he would get much encouragement if the course architects let him off for trifling irregularities when he can do so without interfering with the tests required to make the class player attend to his control of the ball over pitfalls, bunkers, etc.

STRAIGHT DRIVE.

OFFER NEW SUGGESTIONS FOR THE COMING OLYMPIC

BERLIN, Aug. 23.—The "International Athletic Federation" was formally organized here Thursday, the United States, Great Britain, Canada, Australia, South America, Egypt, Belgium, France, Norway, Sweden, Denmark, Finland, Germany, Hungary, Austria and Switzerland being the charter members.

J. S. Edstrom, of Sweden, is slated for the federation's presidency. The delegates adopted statutes which define the functions of the association as "the drafting of rules for international athletic competitions, the registering of world, Olympic and national records and the drafting of a common definition of an amateur."

The delegates also showed a desire to exercise an influence over future Olympic games by the appointment of a "committee on Olympic games," under the chairmanship of S. G. Moss.

The American delegates are President E. Sullivan, of the Amateur Athletic Union, Colonel Robert M. Thompson and Joseph B. McCabe. In the new federation Mr. Sullivan is chairman of the committee on rules, and Mr. Kirby is a member of the committee on the definition of an amateur, which is under the chairmanship of Franz Reichel, of France.

The federation will meet biennially, beginning with a congress to be held at Paris in 1914. It will be governed in the interim by a central committee of seven members elected for four years.

The deliberations thus far have been harmonious. Ticklish questions, such as penalties for false starts, the elimination of walking events and ambidextrous shot-putting, as well as the definition of the amateur status, have not yet been reached.

The proceedings are being conducted principally in English, the general international athletic language, and then translated into German for the benefit of the few delegates who do not understand the English language.

Dobbs Secures Young Hurler

ROME, Ga., Aug. 23.—Carl East, a big young right-hander, has been sold by the Rome Baseball association to the Montgomery club of the Southern League. East has been Rome's leading "twirler" during the season, having participated in twenty-four games with a record of fifteen won and nine lost. He is also an unusually good hitter, and has batted above the .300 mark. He has broken up several games when sent in as a pinch hitter.

East is a resident of Lindale, Ga., and has played amateur ball for the last four years. He was given a try-out in the Southeastern league last year, but did not stick. He has been rated as one of the best pitchers in the Appalachian league this year. He has plenty of speed and curves and with the training that he will get under Dobbs should make a valuable man. He is but nineteen years of age.

In his place Rome will use "Pop" Eyer, a veteran Southern leaguer, who is popular with the local club and now resides in Rome. He has worked in only two games this season.

All Football Changes Are Purely Technical

Player Can Now Be Returned to Game at Any Time During Last Period

NEW YORK, Aug. 16.—The football code for the season of 1913 shows few changes from that of last year. The rules changes are purely technical and will have little effect on the game.

The most important change is that which permits the kicker to stand five yards from the line of scrimmage when kicking instead of ten yards in the rear of the scrimmage line. Under the new regulation post along the goal line. If the punter is expected that quick kicking from ten yards behind the forward will be a feature of the play during the coming season.

Water Camp in outlining the work of the rules committee in connection with the revision of the playing code says: "One alteration was brought about in the fact that the player could not be returned to the game after he has been taken out except at the beginning of a period. It was supposed that an unexpected substitution was necessary in the fourth quarter was not to be a reason why an alteration should not be made in this respect, but the rules forbade it. Hence we were altered this year to have a player may be returned once at the beginning of any period, or at any time during the fourth or last period."

"A relic of the old time when the hands had been eliminated. The rule which read, 'By one quick continuous motion of the hands or of the feet' has been shortened by cutting out the words 'or of the feet.' The rule relating to a forward pass or a kick made from behind the goal line together with the rule relating to dropping the ball has also been rendered clearer by changes in the wording.

"A specific penalty has been imposed upon advancing beyond the line in case of a punt out. The penalty now consists of players after a forward pass or after a kick in the rear of the line. The referee is not to permit him to touch the ball until the opponents have had time to return behind their restraining line. In the rules regarding the conduct of players after a forward pass or after a kick in the rear of the line, the referee has been moved five yards away from the nearest goal post after the pass has been made. This makes a deliberate attempt by a player to touch the ball after the referee is not to permit him to touch the ball until the opponents have had time to return behind their restraining line. In the rules regarding the conduct of players after a forward pass or after a kick in the rear of the line, the referee has been moved five yards away from the nearest goal post after the pass has been made. This makes it clear that players may be returned to the game after the pass is actually made."

Rath to Minors
 CHICAGO, Aug. 23.—Morris Rath, second baseman of the Chicago American league club, was released yesterday to be added to the roster of the Baltimore club. Rath was drafted from the Baltimore club in 1911.

OLD CUB MACHINE BEST DECLARES A VETERAN PLAYER

If the widely scattered members of the Cubs "old guard," which won four pennants and two world's series before it began to lose its speed, could be gathered together, they would make under Frank Chance, they would be able to defeat any team in the country, according to the opinion of Artie Hoffman, one of the Volunteers.

"The old Cubs were the best ever brought together," Chance says declared recently, "and they are not too far gone to put up a creditable showing now, although Charley Murphy has been drafted out of them out of Chicago. With Chance, Evers, Tinker and Zimmerman in the infield; Shoemaker, Schulte and myself in the outfield; King and Archer and Brown doing the pitching, I believe we could beat the best in the business.

Stenfeldt is not able to play, or I would have suggested him, third, as he was the most brilliant third sacker I have ever seen when we were winning pennants."

The fact that Murphy has been drafted out of Chance is no reason that they are through as great players. Mizer Brown has licked the Cubs nearly every time he pitched against them this year. Shoemaker is still one of the best outfielders in the business. Tinker and Evers are in their prime. Schulte has remained that home run habit that made him famous, and both King and Archer are exciting brilliantly. Some people think I'm all in, but I'm not one of that number. Of course I'm no spring chicken, but there's lots of baseball in my system yet, if my legs hold out.

POULTRY, PIGEONS AND LIVE STOCK

The Small Poultry Shows and What They Stand for

PERHAPS the expression most often heard at the poultry shows is, "I have birds just as good as these." The speaker does not stop to consider what this expression really means to the poultry industry. If they really have what they believe to be better birds it is their duty to their breeders...

Nearly every one of these old and experienced breeders had their beginning in the small shows by constantly keeping at it, never giving up...

Now let the small exhibitor come out with his birds and patronize the local poultry show. If you do not win, the judge, whoever he will, will take pleasure in showing you where your mistakes are and how many days that you would in many years working alone.
