Pistol Failure Saves Life of Manager in Coal Yard Robbery

One Safe of Randall Bros. Blown Open and Robbed. Burglar Makes Attempt on Other Plant

NEGRO CAPTURED AFTER BATTLE WITH EMPLOYEES

Attempts to Kill Chandler, but Revolver Was a Strange Weapon and Wouldn't Shoot. Man Held by Police

Because his revolver happened to be jammed with the safety catch, Charlie Stephens, a negro burglar, was prevented from doing much on Monday morning, and three men in a fight with him might otherwise have been dead.

Striking the revolver from a table near J. L. Chandler, manager of the Randall Bros. coal yard at 41 Krog street, had him picked up by telephone to call the police. The burglar aimed at Mr. Chandler and pulled the trigger. He had knocked the revolver from the hand of Frank Moss, a negro driver for the company, when Mr. Chandler fired at him. He covered Frank with the revolver and pulled the trigger several times with the muzzle aimed at that negro.

All this happened in three or four seconds. At the juncture when the burglar was backing away from his captives Jackson Tapp, another driver for the company, entered the office, saw himself upon the intruder, exclaiming "Hell get me, too, before they get you."

The two captives, and Frank Moss, stood them, the two drivers overhauling the burglar after a moment and holding him for the police, while Mr. Chandler now called without interrupting the burglar after a moment.

When Mr. Chandler entered the office, the yard at 5 o'clock Monday morning he heard a noise which he at once investigating, he discovered some barrels and a cap on the floor. He thought one had dropped them and he went to investigate. He found a strange revolver in a box, but when Mr. Chandler aimed the weapon at him, and Moss took the revolver and pointed it at that moment, the two of them fled to the rear of the building.

In recorder's court, less than three hours later, Charles Stephens was found guilty of the higher counts for which he was arrested with intent to murder.

During Monday night another of the Randall yards, that at the corner of Krog and 11th streets, was robbed, the safe being blown open by force. The burglar was seen and locked in the doors of the office. No one heard the explosion. All the valuable contents of the safe were lost. The loss had not been estimated at 10 o'clock.

SYLVIA PANKHURST TRIES TO SLEEP FOR A CHANGE

Suffragette Walks Awe and Night to Keep Awake and Gain Freedom

LONDON, Dec. 15.—Miss Sylvia Pankhurst, militant suffragette agitator, since her arrest in London has adopted the more drastic method of sleeping on the floor, and "hunger and thirst strike" in order to bring the British government to realize her demands. She accompanied this walk-out by a fast, and her friends expect her release shortly.

The police, however, plan to keep both Miss Pankhurst and her mother in jail until after today's weekly meeting of Women's Social and Political Union.

The militants continue their violent tactics. The arson squad had nearly burned down an empty mansion near Brompton. Another party broke every window in the Richmond police station.

Great Crowds Fight To Obtain View of Famous "Mona Lisa"

FLORENCE, Italy, Dec. 15.—So great is the crowd striving to obtain a view of the famous picture, "Mona Lisa," that the authorities have been obliged to remove many of the busts and statues from the Uffizi gallery to prevent them being broken in the struggle to get near the picture.

In four hours more than 30,000 people were allowed to view the picture. When order was nearly restored 123 people were arrested for disorderly conduct.

The picture was originally presented in many quarters at the action of the Italian government in returning the picture to its original home.

President Believes Advanced Age Does Not Hamper Interstate Commerce Com'r

WASHINGTON, Dec. 15.—President Wilson practically has decided to reappoint Judson C. Clements of Georgia, a member of the interstate commerce commission. He will soon announce the names of those to succeed the late John H. Marble and Charles A. Prentiss. The latter will become director of physical valuation of railroad property.

Persons close to the White House say the president not only did not wish to interfere with the composition of the interstate commerce commission, which is hearing the application of the eastern railroads for a 5 per cent increase in freight rates, but notwithstanding the fact that Clements advanced age, believes him eminently qualified to continue in office.

Several Hundred Refugees on American Ships—Water Supply Cut Off City

WASHINGTON, Dec. 15.—Latest messages from Admiral Fletcher concerning the Tampico situation were summarized in the following statement by the navy department: "A dispatch from Admiral Fletcher on board the Tacoma dated 3 p. m., Saturday, December 13, advised that the constitutionalists have shut off the water supply of the city."

"At 10 p. m. he advised that H. M. S. Hermosa was in the river carrying the flag of Rear Admiral Cradock. "Writing at noon on Sunday, December 14, Admiral Fletcher advised that conditions have not changed and that the Ward liner Morro Castle has arrived. There is a north wind blowing and the weather moderates it will not be possible to transfer refugees to the steamers. He advises that the constitutionalists have withdrawn from the immediate vicinity of Tampico."

"At 1 p. m., December 15, Admiral Fletcher advised that conditions have not changed since his last dispatch. "Firing had ceased this morning in the vicinity of Tampico, the rebels having retired extensively to the west. The cannons of the federal gunboats, says the report sent to York, had been taken today from Rear Admiral Frank F. Fletcher. The distance to which the rebels had withdrawn was not stated. Military men regard it as probable that the rebels discontinued firing on the skirts of Tampico pending the arrival of artillery from Victoria."

The only foreigners mentioned in Rear Admiral Fletcher's report as having been injured is Edward Finlay, who was shot in the leg and is being cared for in the hospital in Tampico, and is reported to be doing well. Practically all the foreigners were out in the harbor several miles from the scene of the fighting, some aboard the German and English ships, but the greatest number on the American battleships Rhode Island, Virginia and New Jersey. The American army transport Sumner and the American liner Morro Castle were due to arrive at Tampico today, to take away any refugees who desired to go. The official number of refugees aboard the American battleships will be given at the navy department tonight as 192 men and 146 women and 116 children.

Americans Kept Back in Fear of Border Engagement

CHICAGO, Dec. 15.—(Special Dispatch.)—Americans with special passes were permitted to cross into Mexico today because of the closing in of the rebel forces and the threat of a border engagement. General Merced's 4,800 federal troops crossed here in the opinion of military men, is virtually impregnable. The town about which the federal forces hold strong fortifications, is on top of a plateau which rises abruptly from the surrounding ground. The river forms a half circle around the town, east and north, while on the south rises a series of hills, all of which may be commanded by artillery located on the plateau. From an attack coming from two of these are so difficult to maneuver cavalry across the mountainous country as the rebels will rely mainly on spears for an attack would be along the river bank. The importance of the ultimate result here lies in the fact that should the federalists win they then would be in position to attempt to recapture Juarez opposite El Paso. If the rebels win General Merced's forces either would have to surrender or cross into the United States.

ODDS SEEM TO FAVOR REPUBLICAN CONVENTION

G. O. P. Leaders Assemble to Discuss Reorganization of Their Party

(By Associated Press.) WASHINGTON, Dec. 15.—Such members of the Republican national committee as had arrived here today indicated almost an even division of sentiment on the question of party reorganization which is to be taken up in conference beginning tomorrow. Forces opposed to an extraordinary convention were lining up against the proposed reduction in southern representation. Some committeemen regarded it as probable that before the actual work of the committee begins tomorrow there will be three divisions of opinion.

In the first will be found the national committeemen who favor the reorganization immediately; in the second will be those opposed to any convention at all, and in the third will be others who are willing to have a national convention but do not see any pressing need for it. The first and third groups are expected to join against the second and the odds are thought to be in favor of a convention.

BIG GUNS TO PANAMA; WILL GUARD GATEWAY

Steamer Leaves With First of Mortars, Which Will Be Mounted Soon

NEW YORK, Dec. 15.—The steamer Christoph, operated by a government steamship company between New York and Panama, left port today heavily laden with the first of the big guns to be sent to the isthmus for fortification of the canal. She carried fourteen large mortars, whose carriages are already in place at the Atlantic and Pacific entrances of the canal. Within two weeks the guns will be mounted and ready for use. A detachment of coast artillerymen sailed with the guns today.

The largest gun in the Panama fortifications will be a sixteen-inch one, which will be carried by the Christoph on her next trip, about the middle of January. In addition to the forts at the entrance of the canal, inland defenses will be constructed along the shores of the canal. The headquarters of the army, navy, and marine corps on the isthmus will be at the Pacific entrance of the canal, but several posts will be maintained elsewhere, including the Atlantic entrance, the locks, probably at some point along Culebra cut and at Gatun dam.

IMMIGRATION MEASURE IS REPORTED FAVORABLY

House Committee Recommends Passage of Bill Including Literary Test

(By Associated Press.) WASHINGTON, Dec. 15.—With an overwhelming majority in its favor, the Burnett immigration bill, including a literacy test such as was voted by President Taft, was ordered reported today by the house immigration committee. The committee cleared up its differences relating to militant suffragists, advocates of sabotage and forms of violence, by adopting an amendment which provides for the deportation of "any alien who at any time within three years after entry shall be found in the United States advocating or teaching the unlawful destruction of property or advocating or teaching the overthrow of organized government or the assassination of any public official."

That it was agreed, would include militant suffragists, advocates of sabotage or militant suffragists who might advocate destruction of property.

NEGROES RAISE $5,377 FOR Y. M. C. A. BUILDING

Big Mass Meeting at Auditorium Sunday Night Proves Wonderful Success

Over $5,000 was donated by the negroes of Atlanta to the colored Y. M. C. A. building fund Sunday night at the big mass meeting at the auditorium. Seven thousand and more negroes attended the rally, and the contributions were rapidly announced until the sum of $5,377 had been raised, of this $5,000 was in cash and the remainder in checks and pledges.

The gathering at the auditorium was most interesting. In the first place, the colored churches of the city, and the contributions toward it in a better way, banners marked the places occupied by the different churches, some of whom sent as many as 100 members.

Governor John Marshall Slaton addressed the gathering and he was received with prolonged applause. He, like most of the white men on the program, spoke of the value of the Y. M. C. A. as an instrument with which to fight crime and with which to uplift the moral and civic standing of the negro.

Judge Briles' SPEAKS Judge Briles was also one of the speakers. As he stood up he remarked to the audience that he "knew many familiar faces before him" at which the whole assembly cheered and clapped. But the recorder did not speak humorously after that, going seriously into the importance of successfully completing the movement begun a year or two ago.

Marion Jackson, president of the white Y. M. C. A., was the first speaker. He discussed the usefulness of the proposed building and commented incidentally on the interest and enthusiasm with which W. Woods White has entered into the movement to benefit the colored people of the city by giving Atlanta an assembly building.

John Temple Graves also addressed the negroes telling them he wished to help them in any way possible in the good movement. W. Woods White was the last speaker and he delivered a splendid address on the "Larger Vision of the Work of the Colored Y. M. C. A. in Accomplishing."

Several colored pastors spoke during the evening, among them being H. H. Crocker, of the Congregational church; J. P. O'Connell, of Morris Theological Seminary; P. P. Brown and W. W. Fountain, president of Gordon Brown college, who also spoke.

Music by the student choir of Morris Brown and Morehouse college added to the program.

PRISONERS REARRESTED LEAVING U. S. The men were sent to the penitentiary at Joplin, Mo., where they are being confined on the charge that they robbed a postoffice.

Policy Holders Must Pay for Privilege of Being Sued in Court

It is bad enough to be defendants in a suit wherein the petitioner declares that they are jointly and severally liable for the sum of $48,000 or thereabout, but when you have to pay the cost of serving the papers in the case yourself, the situation becomes unique; but that is what has virtually happened in the suit recently filed by Attorney Watkins & Latimer and Burton Smith in the case of W. A. Wright, insurance commissioner, against the American Life and Annuity company and others.

The suit, which is in the name of J. H. Porter, seeks to make the policyholders of the defunct company liable for the certificate notes which were issued by the company. One hundred and thirty-eight of the defendant policyholders live outside of Fulton county, and it therefore costs $2 each to serve them with the papers in the case—a total of $754.

Insurance Commissioner Wright, who has all the funds of the company in his hands, will pay the costs of service; that is, he will take the $754 out of the assets of the company in which the policyholders have made payments by the suit; and thereby the policyholders will pay the cost of their own being sued.

ATLANTIC FLEET RETURNS FROM MEDITERRANEAN

Battleships Reach New York Harbor Monday to Spend Christmas Holidays

NEW YORK, Dec. 12.—The end of the Mediterranean cruise of the United States battleships brought to New York today nearly 5,000 officers and men glad to be home again with a pay day in sight and a chance to spend the Christmas holidays ashore.

The superdreadnaught Wyoming, flagship of Rear Admiral Charles J. Badger, command-in-chief of the Atlantic fleet, and the battleships Akamas, Utah and Florida, were the stunning ships awaited here by the deadweight North Dakota, also of the fleet division. The arrival of the Wyoming attracted more than ordinary interest among naval men because it may be the last time the superdreadnaught will fly the flag of Admiral Badger as commander-in-chief. The commander is to retire early in the coming year and the navy is already speculating as to his successor in the most important command of the navy.

After receiving the delegation, Mayor Woodward said he would be glad if the city could make the appropriation, but doubted if it could spare so much as $500.

Tomorrow There Will Be a Chamberlin-Johnson-DuBose Co. CLEARAWAY SALE OF SUITS

Does the simple announcement suffice? Perhaps so to those who know the Chamberlin-Johnson-DuBose Co. methods of conducting suit sales when their object is to clear away stocks.

If you who are reading this should happen to be one who does not know our other decisive methods at such times, read below with the confidence that the prices stand for facts just as they are.

Forty-Five Suits That Were $10.00
$21.75, $25.00 and $29.75 Are

Eighty Suits That $14.75
Were $29.75, $35 to $40 Are

Thirty-five Suits $19.75
That Were $37.50, $50 to $55 Are

The price-cuts are a bit unusual, are they not? And the suits, we might best tell you what they are by telling you what they are not. They are not a maker's odds and ends, thrown together for sales' purposes--such suits do not enter here!

They are suits that our buyer selected.

Smart styles, tailored to perfection, of materials and in colors that need no argument in their favor--such suits as we have been making an enviable reputation on, such as you will be very proud to own.

Are you in need of a suit? Christmas shopping gives place momentarily to such an event, unless it includes a suit as a gift.

Note the number of suits involved in this sale--one hundred and sixty in all. The smart thing to do would be to get a very early start. The store opens at eight o'clock.

In Mexico it will be a new year revolution.

For a man without credit, Huerta manages pretty well to stave off the collectors.

We should say that no ambitious war correspondent need go without work with the opportunities here in Mexico.

The Worst Boy in School.

His teacher said that at the age of eleven he was the worst child in her experience of many a playground in learning nothing and thwarting all her efforts. His only physical defect noticed was that he held print unusually close to his eyes.

This is the case of a San Francisco urban reported in the Journal of the American Medical Association; it could doubtless be paralleled in scores of schools the country over; it is, indeed, a typical case of the backward or incorrigible child who a generation or two ago would have been given up as a victim of "original sin."

The explanation of this metamorphosis is simple and natural. The child was more than three-fourths blind and no one had known it. He could not learn because he could not see, and his eyes had been unduly pained when straining to see. His incorrigent and absurd answers made the other pupils laugh at and gibe him, so he hated everything connected with the school, and in playing truant he met the worst possible associates and learned from them his notable array of vicious habits.

How can we reckon the value of intelligent attention to this defective child, the value to the community as well as to himself? Had he gone on from year to year sullen and stupid, callous to moral suasion, ignored as "invisible" by his parents and branded with an name by his neighborhood, it is not probable that he would have developed into a dangerous enemy of society?

What was accomplished for this one child by a teacher's kindness and common sense can be accomplished for the masses of children by systems of medical inspection in public schools. There are comparatively few cases so acute as that we have described but there are thousands of children suffering from physical defects which impair their efficiency and which, if neglected, may deepen into life-long ills.

There is talk about mending the Republican party, but the public had about forgotten that such a thing existed.

The Decisive Stage Of the Currency Bill.

The promise of an early vote on the banking and currency bill comes like a shaft of cheering sunlight to the country's business interests. Suspense over this measure has been heavier and more disquieting than in the case of the tariff; there has been little apprehension as to what might be done, but a deal of restlessness in the fear that nothing might be done and that an issue which touches all business at vital points might be indefinitely postponed.

Indications now are, however, that the debate in the Senate will end the latter part of the current week and that a final vote will be taken Saturday. In that event, it is believed, the differences between the two Houses can be adjusted speedily and the bill sent to the President for his signature before Christmas.

This hope ought to be realized. There are no fundamental clashes of opinion to be reconciled, in the branch of the Senate committee and that from the Republican branch were in agreement. To be sure, there was a desire on the part of some Republicans to provide for a central federal bank but the advocates of this plan have realized that it is a political impossibility. The points on which members of both parties agree are far more numerous and more important than those on which they differ.

If, then, there is no effort to delay simply for the sake of delay, the bill can be perfected in short order. Democratic Senators have shouldered their party's responsibility and are determined to bring the measure to a decisive vote in the immediate future. In this purpose, they seem to have the support of several leading Republican Senators.

When the bill is passed, the country will settle into normal financial tempo again and business in every field will move confidently forward.

It is easier to induce a man to accept a favor than to take a joke.

Most of your friends will stand by you as long as you have a dollar.

The Adventure of Chang.

It is not surprising to learn that China is again threatened with revolution. The remarkable fact is that the Republic's experimental days have been so free from violence. A country, whose millions of people are divided by sharp boundaries of nature, by speech and custom and tradition cannot, be brought into political accord except through long decades of trial and patient leadership. Indeed, there are observers who doubt that the problem of China will ever be solved until the vast empire is broken into several states, each with a government adapted to its peculiar needs.

The latest disturbance, however, is ascribed, not to old sectional animosities, but to the adventurous spirit of one Chang Hsin, a general of courage and shrewdness, who cares nothing for politics but everything for war. "The Revolution of 1911," the New York Herald interestingly relates, "he established himself with a force of about eight thousand soldiers, on line of Tientsin-Pukow railway, the main line of communication between Peking and Nanking, then capital of the revolutionists. Both sides made overtures to him and at first he declared himself opposed to both because both were against the Manchus, and the only politics he knew was to be loyal to his emperor. For a time it looked as if he were in a position to turn the scale one way or the other. General Chang was the proud owner of a singing girl famous for her beauty. In an unlucky hour this fair one fell into the hands of the southern revolutionaries who sold her at public auction at Nanking. This episode cleared away the mist of doubt in the mind of General Chang. He definitely cast his lot with Yuan Shih-kai, and the possibility of marching to Peking was removed. It was General Chang who crushed the second revolution. He drove Huang Hsing and his army out of Nanking, recaptured his lady-love and now threatens to create there a little empire of his own."

Reports indicate that President Yuan has no little anxiety over this new menace to the integrity of the republic and to his own supremacy. But Yuan has proved himself wonderfully resourceful in problems far more tangled than this one. His rather autocratic methods have provoked enmity in some lesser leaders, but the force of popular influence is apparently behind him. He will doubtless bring the government safely through this attack.

The Chinese republic has been thus far one of the most interesting and amazing experiments in political history. So numerous and far-flung were the difficulties besetting its establishment that had it fallen in the first few months there would have been no occasion for wonder. Yet, it has moved steadily and, for the most part, prosperously forward. Does not this reveal an unsuspected genius in the Chinese people?

The Panama canal has at last reached that distinguished point where a girl is trying to swim through it.

The leader of the Ecclesiastical party in the Mexican Congress must be a newcomer, for, expressing himself on the subject of Gen. Huerta's claims, he said: "I believe the conditions in Mexico are such as to demand a dictator, but the provision should be made definitely cast his lot with Yuan Shih-kai."

Almost any old settler having a long acquaintance with Mexican rulers will tell the gentleman that a dictator whose powers are defined is no dictator at all—New York World.

But solitary, especially the sport that is called "Solitaire," is a most profitable and profitable game. It is not so apt to cause one's brain to suffer. As playing other things considered "games."

To Jack, and all others who consider solitary an utter waste of time, we commend the chapter on solitary in "The Book of Little Arcady," Harry Leon Wilson's best and best popular book.

It is a picture drama as I have knowledge of drama writing and my idea is a story old. It would be a say lack for a composer to make this idea into a play. It might not be very thought of again in years to come. As the story is old and read by young and old I see of know reason why it would be a taking topic. I shall look to hear from you in the near future in my favor."

A great crowd followed a man on Fifth avenue yesterday afternoon, believing they were in the wake of President Wilson. The Last of the Great Cambridge Group

In Norton I long saw the last of the great group of Cambridge men whom I was to know almost in their prime, or a little past it when humanity is in its autumnal richness and ripeness. In my mid-western remoteness I knew them only very dimly before it was my good fortune to be among them, as I never could be of them, but I did not realize that there, qualitatively or quantitatively, or scarcely afterward in my Venetian remoteness. The man whom I was so destined to see survive them all was, as I have owned, not of my surprise even when I had come to live in New York and we had had his untimely death. He lived that beautiful and righteous world in long-fellow; after they were gone he grew into contact and companionship with them, and then into a seniority which could judge them, as the present can always judge the past.

I suppose most people would not call him an optimist or me a pessimist, but I can testify that he liked more of the recent change than I did, and though he was ten years older than I, he was, by his birthright, from that ever-youthful New England of his nativity, a younger man. We talked that afternoon in the cool slough of the vernal or autumnal day, with the fire on his hearth paling under it, and I should like to leave him in it there, among his pictures and his books, the equal of all the beautiful of William Dean Howells, in the December North American Review.

Quips and Quiddities

Not long ago a cub reporter on one of the large dailies was assigned by the city editor to cover a meeting of the board of trustees of a public library.

At a late hour that night, this story not being forthcoming, the youngster was sent for. "How about that story of the board of trustees?" "I ain't finished yet. You told me to make 400 words of it. So far I have managed to get only 360."

"What did the board do?" "They called the roll, and adjourned until 'Tuesday evening.'" "Lippincott's."

"No, my man, this is not mine. It is a twenty-dollar bill I lost."

"Oh, sure, so the owner could conveniently reward me for it." "Puck."

MEXICO

VI.—THE PRESENT SITUATION. BY FREDERICK J. HASKIN.

An international explosion was narrowly averted when oil came to the surface of the Mexican situation. We have seen the situation advanced from the to worse until President Huerta announced that a general election for a president, vice president and a new congress would be held in October 26. But no mention has yet been made of the fact that the most acute international interest around the world, all fields of Mexico which were being successfully developed by Lord Cowdray, head of the British firm of S. Pearson & Son.

This aggressive and tremendously wealthy English business man as Sir Westman Pearson built the East river tunnel at New York, and under an arrangement with the Mexican government constructed the Tehuantepec railway from Salina Cruz on the Pacific to Oaxaca on the Caribbean. He is a Liberal in British politics, having acted as a member of Parliament, and quite recently Lord Murray, formerly the Master of Elibank and Liberal whip in the house of commons, became a partner in Pearson's firm.

Gaining vast influence with the old Diaz government Lord Cowdray sought and obtained a concession for the Aguila Oil Company, in the oil fields of Chiconapa, Tabasco. This concession was made in the district of Tamulaplan. Also additional rights covering the lakes and lagoons of Vera Cruz.

Vast sums of money were expended before the largest well was struck, but the concessions had been proved enormously valuable by the time that naval evidence demonstrated the practicability of oil fuel and the British government was ready to grant the concession. There was scarcely enough oil (free from the political content of the concession) to supply the fuel needs of the navy in a time of war.

President Madero looked with suspicion upon the concession granted to the Pearson interests and Lord Cowdray was justly apprehensive of the attitude of Madero toward the concession, since the Diaz government. The Maderistas attributed to Lord Cowdray a large part of the responsibility for the constant difficulty plotting against the Madero government.

During the election campaign of 1911, General Madero wrote a letter stating that foreign capital would be subjected to no persecution in the event of his election. Immediately he took office he directed Jose Vasconcelos, an eminent lawyer, to investigate the Aguila concession and the result was a report which established the validity of the concession, the approval of the concession by congress notwithstanding. President Madero wrote that his predecessor's statement could not be construed to protect illegal concessions, but that, on the contrary, he had frankly declared his purpose to oppose the formation of all kinds of monopolies and combinations in restraint of competition. Although he placed the Aguila concession hold by the Pearson interests in this category, it was never actually cancelled and the exploitation of the fields was continued.

Hints of the part played by Mexican politics by the oil interests became more and more frequent as the election approached and it was even reported that the concession had been proposed to the new forces of Mexico and proposed their leasing to certain foreign interests.

Suddenly, on October 11, 1913, President Huerta arrived in Mexico City and the polling day arrived. The house of duties on charge of addition, the details of which never became clearly known in the United States, were that the concession was to be granted to Sir Lionel Carter, who had been appointed British minister to Mexico. He had been appointed British minister to Mexico. He had been appointed British minister to Mexico.

President Wilson protested that Huerta's lease of life as a dictator had been granted to a man who had been appointed British minister to Mexico. He had been appointed British minister to Mexico. He had been appointed British minister to Mexico.

THE MASTERSingers

BY FRANK CRANE. Copyright, 1913, by Frank Crane.

My Dear Caroline: You wrote me that Aunt Georgia is going to take you to hear "The Mastersingers" at Wagner and you want me to "tell about it" as you have never been able to get anything out of Wagner. Let me answer you by digging up an old letter, one I wrote you years ago, to your mother, in which I tell you the day after I had attended "The Mastersingers" at the Prinz Regent Theater at Munich. It is pretty humorous and amusing, but perhaps it will be an aside to the cold-point, supercilious stuff the boys of my generation would give you. Here it is:

"I have been to 'The Mastersingers.' I have discovered Wagner. I feel as Columbus must have felt when he discovered America, that the Titan has found the open door to my soul, he has swept through my mind, and I still live. I have had in music, as you have had in Wagner, a new world opened up to me, a new world of melody, white and black, and white and black, all bearing me away, whirling me round, and into some strange sea I had never sailed before. I have had in music, as you have had in Wagner, a new world opened up to me, a new world of melody, white and black, and white and black, all bearing me away, whirling me round, and into some strange sea I had never sailed before.

FIRST AID TO BUSY

AN INDEX TO A BIG

PLEASE Carry Small Parcels.
Keep to the Right in Aisles

Moments are weighted with busy-ness. Things must be done now or left undone this Christmas. Let's take things as they are, let's do a little thinking and see what we can accomplish.

We have a big store here---it is crowded with Christmas gifts, those things that appeal in other seasons than the Christmas time to numberless people, and with these things distinctively Christmas-y. And every one of them has had to "pass inspection" before it was accepted. It represents our best effort. Under the most ordinary circumstances an ideal place for Christmas shopping, now it is made doubly so since time is so valuable and one may find under one roof presents of the right sort for all.

Read the list through. Its value lies in what it will suggest as a suitable thing for this one and that one. Once you have decided, then the fine varieties that you will find here will make the Christmas shopping a genuine joy.

ATTORNEYS MAKE FINAL FIGHT OVER LEO FRANK'S LIFE

lunch at 1 o'clock Monday afternoon. He had opened at 11:40 o'clock, and his first statement to the court was challenged by Mr. Arnold, of counsel for Frank.

Mr. Arnold's argument, declared the solicitor, "abounds in misquotations, and he doesn't stop there, but in their brief the defense resorted to glaring misstatements of fact, and your honors must go to the trial record for the truth."

Attorney Arnold was on his feet an instant with the declaration that the solicitor was misconstrued the defense's brief for ten days and had uttered no word of protest or criticism during this time.

Ignoring the statement of Arnold, Lacey declared that the state would ask permission of the court to file a supplemental brief at a later date, calling attention to the inaccuracies and misstatements in the brief of the defense.

Passing on Solicitor Dorsey's synopsis of the life of the defendant, declaring that Frank has a highly nervous temperament and that, judged by his statement to the jury, a man of intellect. He asserted that his character in relation to women had never been shown to be bad, and that this trait lies at the bottom of the crime of which Frank was convicted.

FRANK WITNESSES FRIENDS. The character witnesses for the defense, Lacey asserted, were the business associate, personal friends and employees of the factory of which Frank was superintendent, while the character witnesses put on the stand by the prosecution were employers and former employees of the factory.

"The factory," declared Dorsey, "the factory—that is, the place where this crime was committed, where Frank's character was manifested."

The solicitor painted a dark background of character for Frank, and stated that the testimony put him had recoded for perversion.

Solicitor Dorsey contended that the state had established the fact that Mary Phagan arrived at the cannal factory between 12:05 and 12:07 o'clock. He said it had shown by Dr. Harris that the cabbage the girl had eaten for dinner had not been in her stomach more than thirty minutes when the functions of digestion was stopped. The test that the girl had suffered some kind of money of Dr. Harris, Dr. Hurt and Dr. Pank, said the solicitor, "This is not true. It was taken by the detectives at police headquarters."

Leo Frank never gave Mary Phagan any envelope to her when she was preparing to take it out of the safe when Mrs. White called and surprised him."

Attention was called by the solicitor to the fact that at the request Frank had testified that he went to the cannal on the day of the tragedy to go to lunch about 1:10 o'clock, but that on his statement at the trial he had placed the time he left the factory before 1 o'clock.

"MRS. KERN MISTAKEN." Discussing the evidence of Mrs. Kern, who testified she saw Frank at the corner of Alabama and Whitehall streets between 1 and 1:10 o'clock, Mr. Dorsey declared the young lady barely knew Frank by sight and that it was entirely probable that she was in error as to the time she saw him.

"Albert McKnight, the negro husband of Minnie McKnight, cook at the Belle home where Frank lived," said the solicitor, "testified that Frank did not reach home until 1:30, that he did not get with any of the other members of the family, and within about ten minutes after his arrival at home he had started on his way back to the factory."

"The defense charges me with having intimidated Minnie McKnight out of a confession. This isn't true. If I could do anything to help ferret out the crime I didn't intend to throw any obstacles in the way of the city detectives. They are so obsessed with the idea that they set down in bold print in the trial record an argument statement that Minnie McKnight's second affidavit was after his arrival at home he had started on his way back to the factory. It was taken by the detectives at police headquarters."
