It Won't Be Too Late to Shop Here Until Six o'Clock Tomorrow Evening

Stocks have been brought forward, everything is ready for the last day. Make what demands upon us you will tomorrow, we've a six hundred man and woman power machine to do your bidding—a machine with trained intelligence that knows how to get things done.

It must have struck you this Christmas how comfortable and easy it is to shop in this store—the broad aisles, with no encumbering tables, give you plenty of "eibow room," the high ceilings make the air fresh and pure, the alert salespeople know how to serve you quickly and courteously.

We believe we are making many friends through superior service this Christmas

But the merchandise!

That's the nub of the whole business.

Givable gifts at fair prices—nothing tawdry, nothing cheap, but worthy merchandise, whether it be a dime handkerchief or a fur coat worth twenty-five hundred dimes.

New Neckwear Arrived This Morning

The neckwear Section looks as if the Christmas shopping were just about to begin!

Fresh, new recruits came by today's express. New bows, new tabs, new fur fixings, new fichus, new collar and cuff sets, maline ruffs. No one will be disappointed who has planned to give a dainty neckfixing.

All boxed in Christmas boxes.

It Is Children's Day Above All

The whole of Christmas reverts to children; it has been so from the first. In recapitulating now are the children properly remembered?

If not, with the aid of this new Toy Store, it is not too late.

Toys that are genuine still in ample variety to assure a merry day for those who will get them.

If anyone should ask us what to give the woman whose crowning characteristic is the love of her home, our first thought would be one of these elegant silk or satin comfortables, perhaps the richest and most elegant that ever came to Atlanta. They are priced from $10 to $45.

Our next thought would be a linen set, Madeira embroidered or trimmed with Cluny lace, sets up to $150.

The Development of Atlanta Parks.

The Development of Atlanta Parks.

Atlanta has good reason to be proud of the development of its parks. Figures compiled by Manager Carey show that within the year owe ending this portion of the public property has increased in value more than half a million dollars. The City now has intrivy-tee parks, comprising a total of eight hundred and thirty-shee acres, which are in the aggregate, worth a million, eight hundred and forty-drour thousand, six hundred and twenty-five dollars. The buildings, equipment and such accessories as fountains, monuments, animals and flowers bring the total valuation of the park property up to two million, sixty-two thousand, six hundred and forty-three dollars. That represents an increase of six hundred and fifty-nine thousand, six hundred and seventy-six dollars your the inventory of 1912.

It should be noted that by far the greater portion of this value lies in the land itself. The improvements dwindle to a meager fraction when compared with natural wealth in which they are set. This is only to be expected. Let the City acquire park lands while it may—enough lands to meet future needand improvements will come in time. But it is mone the less important that each park should be developed as rapidly and as generously as the City's income will permit. Manager Carey and his associates in office health and the provided for by the incoming Council.

Significant and Cheering Words.

Significant and Cheering Words.

I gain the impression more and more from week to week that the business men of the country are sincept destroys of conforming with the law, and it is very gratifying indeed to have occasion, as in this instance, to deal with them in complete frankness and to be able to above that all we desire is an opportunity to co-operate with them. So long as we are dealt with in this spirit we can help to build up the business of the gountry upon sound and permanent lines. These significant and cheering words are from the President's note to Attorney General McReynolds concrining the agreement of a great telephone and telegraph company to dissolve their present combination and to comply with the spirit as well as the letter of the anti-trust law, volutarily without forcing the Government to prosecution.

It is an admirable thing for leaders of big business to assume this attitude toward the country's laws; it is to their interest as well as to common interests that they should do so.

It is equally admirable that the leader of the people, that is to say the President of the United States, should meet such an advance in a spirit of constructive co-operation. That is what might have been expected of Mr. Wilson.

Legitimate business has never had anything to fear from this Administration; on the contrary, it has had everything to hope. The New York Times apily remarks that "the man of affairs who does not see in present events and tendencies causes for profound satisfaction, for cheer and for confidence ought without delay sak his family dector to examine the state of his digestion.

Fewer But Better Schools of Medicine.

There are fourteen fewer medical colleges in the United States today than a year ago. There are twelve hundred fewer medical students, and the number of medical graduates in 1913 showed a decrease of five hundred.

These facts, recently announced in a bulletin from of two hundred. These facts, recently announced in a bulletin from the federal Bureau of Education, are distinct omens of progress. They indicate a weeding-out of those inefficient schools and helter-skelter methods of training which have been so grave a menne to the American public. There are fewer colleges simply because, in one State after another, higher standards are being set up: and for the same reason there are fewer students and graduates. The institutions that survive in the midst of these vigorous reforms do so by virtue of their inherent worth and their ideals. The students that are enrolled are, for the most part, seriously best, while these who are graduated are certainly better equipped.

A decade so the legal requirement of medical schools were disgracefully low. There were, to be sure, high-minded institutions that voluntarily measured up to creditable standards, but there was sure, high-minded institutions that voluntarily measured up to creditable standards, but there was liftle or no restraint for those which were less honorable or less intelligent. In recent years, however, under the spur and guidance of representative physicians the country over, popular and legislative thought have made cheering progress in this important field of the people's interest.

thought have made cheering progress in this impor-tant field of the people's interest.

It is good to know that the Legislature of Georgia, at its last session, enacted a law elevating the stand-ard of medical education in this State and fixing surer safeguards for the integrity of the profession.

At no point, is the public more vitally in need, of protection than where builth and life are concerned. protection than where health and life are concerned.
The long crusade of sincere and competent physicians is beginning to tell, as the report of the Bureau of Education so strikingly shows.

We always feel sorry for an heiress; she simply has to marry in self-defense.

Editorials in Brief

The object of the currency bill, stated in non-tech nical language, is to make it easier for men engaged in current business to get the legitimate accommoda tions necessary for their business. "NO ROOM"?

---Luke 2:7

A woman tired and sick.

Doors were closed in her face.

At the Inn, they said:

"No room."

Generous men?

In her condition-could she sleep by the roadside?

They let her into the stable with the beasts.

There Christ was born that Christmas so long ago.

Would it be different? Is it otherwise this week? Weary women are here. Underpaid girls are striving for life.

"They have bread and meat?"

They need more than food for a day. A CHRISTMAS DINNER-CAST OFF CLOTHES-

Will you stop with giving these to those who lack a living wage?

Three hundred and sixty-five days are in a year.

"No room?"

Christmas Eve-laughter gladdens your home.

Maybe an empty chair causes a heartache—but you hide it. You" join the romping children. They are hanging their stockings.

Your boy-your daughter-they are there. Your sister and brother

But your prisoners—yes, yours. You are a citizen. You cannot shift your responsibility for Georgia's shame. In part yours is the blame for the man who lately hung himself after being beaten—for the man shot down for revolting against the lash.'

Your prisoners—thousands of men and boys—while you and your children laugh and play on Christmas Eve, these lie chained to one an-other and to bunk-house walls in convict camps throughout the state.

This night-God's holy night-

They seek rest.

They turn in their beds. Chains clank. Neighbor drags neighbor.

Vainly they try to sleep.

Shackles bite the skin. As they twist and toss the clinking of steel runs shudderingly along the chain that binds them leg to leg from bunk to bunk and to the wall, this Christmas Eve, this Night before the birthday of our Lord.

HELL CAN BE NO WORSE

Women and children are in their homes.

They love their own.

They think of these.

Their empty chairs mean worse than death.

"No room?"

Ere the New Year dawns you will send others to join these wretched throngs who night after night lie down to sleep chained by you to one another and to walls as you would not chain a crowd of dogs—

In your locker clubs and open bars men are dishing out the poison that will bring them there.

You sing-

"Eggnog, 'simmon beer,

"Christmas comes but once a year,

"And when it comes, it brings good cheer."

Yule logs-fires blaze in your home.

IN YONDER ALLEYS ARE EMPTY GRATES.

"Ouick, a scuttle of coal?" It will not suffice.

"A basket of food?"

Not enough.

Only sickly sentimentality-

Or a liquor soaked soul can salve a conscience with a Christmas dinner and a scuttle of coal.

Christ comes to you, as He has ever done in the woman who works. This Christmas day, He is in your convict camps, where you are brutalizing boys and $\mbox{\it men}.$

In each home where there is want, Christ comes to you.

"Awake, thou that sleepest-

"And Christ shall give you light."

"The Lord is at hand."

Yea, but there is in your home, you heart and life. Christ has come. Let Him in!

OUR ASTROLOGER

Journal advertisements are regular bulletins of "Joy Town" these days.

They tell us that Santa Claus or his twin brothers are already here and glad to greet the children.

And the hints they throw out of new and marvelous toys to be seen in the shops make the little ones' hearts flutter and grown ups wish they were young again.

Journal advertising reflects the spirit of the hour. It is up to the minute news.

Just run your eyes over the advertisements in today's Journal and see how they breathe the spirit of the season.

But their cheery voice is more than mere greeting; it is the attention of a trained helper saying, "Here I am, at your service!"

Tomorrow is the last Christmas shopping day! Are you ready?
