John Wright Turned Over to Court by Federal Officers to Face Murder Charge

John Wright, the Fanning county man, who is alleged to have killed Paul Radford, to have been taken to the state penitentiary at Milledgeville, Ga., to face trial Saturday.

Collector General Herbert W. Clay, of the Blue Ridge circuit, Sheriff W. F. Jenkins, and two deputies arrived in the city Saturday morning to take Wright into custody. He will be tried Thursday in Blue Ridge.

Although the murder occurred a year ago, Wright was arrested only a month ago. He was found drunk and asleep in a rooming house about eighteen miles from Blue Ridge by Revenue Officers Lovings and Reginald, who arrested him at the time he was taken to the penitentiary on his person, and in which in his pocket, showing that he meant to resist every effort.

He was turned over to the United States authorities, and Judge Newman signed an order releasing him to the state authorities on writ of habeas corpus for the collector general and the sheriff.

Harris Hallie and his young bride, who were held for a long time in the tower of the penitentiary, were later released through the Journal's story of their honeymoon in prison, will be the starting point of the trial.

Wright was taken to the penitentiary by a party of three, which included a United States marshal, a deputy sheriff and a deputy collector general.

SCANT HOPE FOR EIGHT MEXICANS SHUT IN MINE

At Least 48 Hours Before Opening Can Be Made, Signals Cease

HOCHLAND, Tex., Oct. 18.—Although hope of rescuing the eight men entombed in the Vogel and Lawrence shaft workings near here yesterday was virtually abandoned last night when signals from the imprisoned miners ceased, frantic efforts to drill an opening into the mine continued to accomplish this will require at least forty-eight hours.

The men, Mexicans, were shut up in the mine when a creek overflowed, flooding the entrance and causing a rock-throwing which blocked their escape. It is believed that practically the entire mine flooded, but when the water rose from the surface will open at the highest reach of the tunneling to which the men most likely can when the water is pouring through the entrance.

McDermott Wins Western Open Golf Championship

THE PRIMITIVE MAN GOES HUNGRY

--BY FARREN

THE SPORTLIGHT BY GRANTLAND RICE

MOTHER GOOSE IN THE RING.
Sings a song of the ring.
Grabbing for the dough:
Four and twenty White Hopes
Waiting in a row,
When the battle opened
They almost came to blows,
They almost came to blows,
Isn't this a pretty dish
To open near one's nose?

In the meanwhile who is to act as the feminine of Outmet to stand as a symphony to the Right Hon. Miss Maud Dredd or the equally Hon. Miss G. Rosecroft?

If one of these fair dames takes back home an American championship after what has happened to England's male contingent, it will take a powerful nerve to say that English women are not entitled to vote.

Freeman has a fine line smasher in Bradley Street, but whom or who or what have the Tigers able to jump fifty-seven feet in the air and block one of C. Brickley's shots at goal?

THE ULTIMATE TIE.
St. I forgot to look and see who won the Worst Series championship in St. Louis. Was it the Cardinals or Browns?
L. P. O.
Just as they were in the act of completing the final game the corner came out and took charge, much to the indignation of the audience, who promptly arose and demanded his money back at the gate.
Members of the Browns and Cardinals send $17 each for their work, against $2,300 received by each member of the Athletics. Which is about the comparative ratio of Browns and Cardinals vs. the Athletics on the ball field.

AMONG OTHERS.
Mr. Outmet announces that one of the main reasons he defeated Vardon and Ray was that he refused to look at either ball.
And one of the main reasons why we couldn't defeat either would be an inability to even look at our own—much less theirs.

After perusing the daily dispatches we note that Yale, Harvard, Princeton, Pennsylvania, Chicago, Wisconsin, Michigan, Cornell, Purdue, "are badly crippled and in poor shape for Saturday's contest."
In baseball, golf, tennis, etc., the general abill is established with any sort of pretext. In football they shoot in the alibi before the schedule is arranged.

BACK TO THE OLDEST ONE.
Lives of football stars remind us
How to set a festive pace—
And, departing, leave behind us
Footprints on some tackle's face.

To say that neither Cardinals or Browns was good enough to beat the other is beyond any other knock we could ever hope to launch. This does not do the trick.

Yet they let the St. Louis, Cincinnati and Brooklyn clubs draft from Newark and Milwaukee.

The National Cominch announces that the player-auction has written his last piece for the press. When did he ever write his first?

The agent begins on the "write"—not the signature.

"Why" queries F. G. K., "are certain National League magnates always after Tom Lynch?" Why shouldn't they be? Lynch is on the level. With constitutes the most heinous crime from the viewpoint of certain magnates that Mr. Lynch could hope to commit.

While Ritchie is so anxious to defend his title that he insists upon some promoter providing a worthy opponent by Labor day, 1917.

THE HONESTY OF BASEBALL.
"Don't you think," confides R. L. H., "that the Athletic victory last Saturday, which cost both clubs $45,000, proves the honesty of baseball as a game?"
The honesty of baseball as a game? doesn't have to be proved to any one with enough gray stuff in his dome to plug a baseball's eye. The player has protected the game where more than one magnate would have thrived if it were down years ago. And this honesty is so apparent—shown in so many ways—that it doesn't require the doubtful complement of proof.

PLACING A DRIVE.
Those who figure that a ball player is unable to place a drive should have heard Eddie Collins last week. When he came to bat in the second New York game he slipped this conversation to Umpire Rigler:
"I'm going to try to soak one over that right field wall. 'Tis too far away for me unless I can poke one almost down the foul line, but I'll take a shot in that direction anyway."
Collins then drove the first pitched ball into the stands, where it landed fairly by two feet. And immediately afterward he cracked one over that base almost directly on the line for a triple. This bird can not only throw them into one field or another, but within a few feet of some given spot. He handles a baseball ball as Harry Vardon handles a masher.

J. J. McDermott Western Champ

Two-Time National Champion Wins at Memphis—Maiden Withdrew Before Finish

MEMPHIS, Tenn., Oct. 18.—J. J. McDermott, Atlantic City, twice national champion, added the open championship of the west to his list yesterday in the fifteenth tournament of the Western Golf association.

McDermott's score for the seventy-two holes, 195, is seven strokes better than that of his closest competitor, M. J. Brady of Boston, and five under the course record of the Memphis Country club for the same distance.

McDonald Smith, New Rochelle, winner of the title in 1912, was third with 201 for the two days' play. Otto Hackbarth, of the Hinsdale club, Chicago, fourth with 207, and Tom McNamara, Boston, fifth, two strokes behind Hackbarth.

Boedias winning first honors McDermott tied with David Kober, Evansville, Ind., for second place. Kober's 197 for eighteen holes is 14, at J. J. Cordon, Memphis, was low amateur with a score of 232. Of the southern players, W. C. Sherwood, Memphis, professional, had the best score, 218.

McDermott's victory was the result of consistent rather than brilliant playing. He took the lead in the second round Thursday when he turned in his twenty-two and made the thirtysix in 14. At the end of the third round he was with at the top with 220, and went the last eighteen holes in 40 for a total of 260 for the tournament. His afternoon card Friday, however, was the best turned in for the round, the soggy condition of the course, the result of heavy showers in the morning, putting the players at a disadvantage.

PLAY IN DOWNPOUR.
The greater part of the morning round was played in a downpour and with several of the greens partly covered with water.

At the start of yesterday's play Smith had a one-stroke lead over Brady but the former's attendance at the start of his play of Thursday in both rounds yesterday, turning in cards of 71 and 89 against his two 74's Thursday, 149 and 154, made the three, thirty-six holes in 195 yesterday morning but his 11 on the third round and 34 on the last eighteen holes put him back to 218.

McDermott finished sixth Friday, McNamara was the same position at the end and as he was at the first half of the journey.

THURSDAY MORNING.
Out. 448 535 446—37.
In. 454 545 244—27—74.

FRIDAY MORNING.
Out. 444 524 444—38.
In. 454 545 244—27—110.

The tournament was supervised by Charles E. Willard, Chicago, secretary of the Western association, and Tom Bendure.

Stewart Milder, of Atlanta, who made the first thirty-six holes in 185, took $1 for the morning round yesterday and withdrew from the contest.

M'GRAW MUST LET GO HIS BONE HEADS, SAYS ANSON

WASHINGTON, Oct. 18.—The break up of the Giants is at hand, John M'Graw has a bad ball club and, now that he has been decisively beaten three times running in games deciding the championship of the world, his next move is to let go those "boneheads" and get smarter players. Also, if he would carry the banner of the National league into another world's series with any hopes of success, he must get batsmen. Batemen won the championship of 1913, just as batsmen have won every glory on the diamond since the invention of the bat.

And right there you have the expert opinion of Adrian Anson, for twenty years a star slugger in the old National league, former star batsman and manager of the famous Chicago Cubs and now a vaudeville monologist at the Cosmos theater, in this city. When "Cap" Anson opens his mouth to speak of baseball, you may be sure that he is talking through his nose.

"I can't understand what is coming over the old National league," says "Cap" Anson, frowning over the old days when he was the glory of the league. "I want this way in my day. The American league must give all credit for gaining an ascendancy over the old league. It has done it fairly and squarely, too, right out there on the diamond and under the sun. But it has done it anyway."

The New York Giants are not a fit team to contend for the world's title. The team is a bad ball club, and has been for several years. M'Graw must begin at the bottom and remake his team. He must get hitters first of all and must weed out his "boneheads." You have in Washington don't follow the old league as closely as I do. But I've noticed a down-swing plays featuring various players on the Giants throughout the season. That is a bad sign. It should not be with a champion ball club.

"The saddest part of this last world's series, to my eyes, is the loss of prestige based to be suffered by my old team. The Giants are sure to lose their honor now that Philadelphia and Boston have beaten them three times running for the blue ribbon stakes of baseball. As an old National league I am naturally sore at heart. I wish it might have been otherwise. But it's now up to M'Graw to build up his club that's all there is to it."

W. H. Colette, former Michigan varsity player, heads the list of coaches. He is under his charge the seniors and juniors in the literary department. J. C. Weidrich, a man who played four years on the Kansas university three-time champion team, is another, and a man who shows promise of being a wonderful coach. He has sprung up among these coaches and it promises to be a matter of much of which coach gets his men into the finals as to which class comes out victorious.
