Cattle Improve DALTON, Ga., Sept. 20.—The month is now made on tick evaluation work in this county is a gratifying one, as it shows considerably improved conditions over those of last month.

Mr. Tull C. Waters, a Fulton county commissioner, said yesterday that he was not a candidate for sheriff and would not be under any circumstances.

Mr. Waters made this statement in reply to a published intimation that he would enter that race.

Four generations, man has felt woman's uplifting and moralizing influence in every day of her life.

There are but two logical methods of building motor cars.

One method is to produce cars in enormous quantities so as to bring the price down as low as possible.

The other method is to produce cars in limited quantities so that each car will be of the highest quality.

Each system has but one real exponent. In a middle Western city, "mass production" enables a good small car to be made and sold at a low figure.

One car carries out one ideal, the other a totally different ideal. Both are right. Both are built, not assembled.

The smaller car is turned out like the well-known and worth while "dollar watch."

The Locomobile now occupies a peculiar position. It is the only high grade car whose sales have increased during the past two years.

There will always be a demand for the limited number of cars we make. Because we have been building for the future, our plant will always run at capacity, without reducing the quality of our product or price.

Y., that he had accepted the Republican nomination for congress in the third district. The nomination was made by the death of Congressman William Henry Wilder.

Sheriff C. W. Mangum Makes Announcement

To the Citizens of Pulaski County:

Now that the wave of excitement and heat of passion incident to the Leo M. Frank trial has subsided, I deem it advisable to address a few words to the voters and the people of the county relative to the many basenesses, unbecomings and unfair rumors which have been circulated about my treatment of the county's prisoner, Leo M. Frank.

It is impossible to be dignified with a reputation for unbecomings and basenesses, solely for political purposes, but they have been given such a wide and unbecoming circulation that I consider this statement necessary, not as a justification of anything which I have done, but in order that those who have listened to these rumors may understand the true facts in the case, in order that the good citizens of the county will not be misled by a few men who, for gain or spite, are willing to attack a man for the simple performance of his duty.

The Short Cut to Market

Railroads spend millions yearly straightening curves and making short cuts.

It pays in net earnings.

National manufacturers can shorten the curves between them and the local market by appealing through the best medium to reach the market—the daily newspapers.

The merchants of this town will tell you that their advertising in daily newspapers like THE JOURNAL brings direct returns day by day.

Newspaper advertising is an intimate daily part of the people's lives. It reaches them when they are in the mood for buying.

The modern short cut to market for a nationally advertised product is through a co-operative campaign in the daily newspapers between merchant and manufacturer.

If you are interested, write the Bureau of Advertising, American Newspaper Publishers Association, World Building, New York.

WOMAN ACQUITTED OF PART IN HUSBAND'S DEATH

(By Associated Press.) GUTHRIE, Okla., Sept. 20.—Mrs. Lena Mathews was acquitted today of the charge of complicity in the murder of her husband, Lawrence Mathews, on their farm at Stillwater, in December, 1908. The case was brought to Guthrie on a charge venue from Payne county.

The charge against Mrs. Mathews grew out of a confession by James Chapman, a negro, who was convicted and sentenced to twenty-five years' imprisonment on a charge of murdering Mathews. Chapman was employed on the Mathews farm. After he was released from the penitentiary, he made a confession against Mrs. Mathews with being an accessory and she was indicted.

PRIZE WINNING LIST IN
The Journal's $7,000 Booklovers' Campaign
747 PRIZE WINNERS IN ALL

THE JOURNAL this morning announces the winners in the Booklovers' Campaign. After weeks of work, the five disinterested judges have completed their labors of deciding the victors, 747 of them.

Mrs. H. R. Donaldson, of 192 Euclid avenue, is awarded first prize. She will receive $1,000 in gold. H. W. Neal and E. E. Price, both of Lindale, Ga., receive second and third prize, respectively, and to W. E. Saye, of Tate, Ga., and Mrs. V. E. Manget, Jr., of Newnan, Ga., go the fourth and fifth honors. A complete list of the other prize winners is printed elsewhere.

The campaign has been a great success. The Journal is pleased and scores of letters received by the Booklovers' Manager signify that the contestants are also. More than three million answers to the series of seventy-five pictures printed were turned in between July 12th and 19th. These have been preserved and are arranged numerically on shelves. They can be found on a moment's notice.

Competition in the campaign was close. Each of the three leaders submitted the same number of correct titles—63. Mrs. Donaldson presented only 654 possible answers, however, as against 712 by Mr. Neal and 714 by Mr. Price. Therefore, under the rules, she is entitled to the $1,000 award, while Mr. Neal gets $750, and Mr. Price, $500. Many of the other contestants were close behind. Several named over sixty correct titles to the 75 books represented in the printed pictures.

The campaign opened on April 6 and for seventy-five days after that a drawing was reproduced in every edition of The Journal. On July 19 the campaign closed. Every answer book had to be mailed before midnight of that day. The managers allowed six days for the books to come in. And they came by the thousands. Every mail brought scores, and sometimes hundreds. Then, on April 22 the judges were called in and began their task.

Since then the five well known men who decided the event have been working out the result. Every one of the three million answers was examined, checked and rechecked. It was hard work and there was a lot of it.

The accompanying photographs show the first five contestants, the five judges and a portion of the shelves whereupon repose some of the answers submitted. Comparatively, only a few of the answer books are revealed. There are shelves and shelves of them.

Communications received from contestants signify that everybody concerned is pleased. The work was original, interesting and pleasurable. And there were enough prizes to remunerate most of those who worked hard. Awards will be sent to people all over Dixie—in Georgia, Alabama, Florida, North Carolina, South Carolina, Mississippi and Louisiana. All these states were represented.

Many of the competitors want another contest next year. They ask for it in letters. A great number of those who won prizes this year were entered in last year's campaign the experience enabled them to judge with more accuracy the correct book titles this year. Nearly every one who entered the second contest made a more creditable showing than the first one.

Mrs. Donaldson, winner of the $1,000 prize was a contestant in 1912. In that campaign she submitted 250 answers, getting 62 correct. The Journal readers who have dropped into Booklovers' Headquarters during the checking of answers and saw the thousands of sets that were to be checked and rechecked for possible errors, know that it was a long drawn out job to do this work and get it right. We all love the Booklovers' work and did not care about the number of hours we put in daily since the checking of the answers commenced. As a matter of fact, we were working on them many a night long after the contestants had retired for the night. Now, that the work is completed, there is a certain satisfaction in placing the result of the work before our readers this morning for their approval. To the winners we wish to extend heartfelt congratulations and to those who are not in the winning, we would say, try it again sometime. If the out-of-town winners will notify us at once how they want their prizes shipped to them, we will appreciate it very much. The Journal takes this opportunity of thanking the thousands of contestants who helped to make this campaign the wonderful success that it was.

A LETTER FROM THE GRAND PRIZE WINNER. Dear Sir: I wish to thank you for the fairness with which you have conducted this campaign. I have derived much pleasure from solving at least a part of the puzzles. My method was as follows: I received a picture, each evening I read the entire catalogue of possible answers writing down every title that occurred to me in the minutest degree like any of the pictures. Then in making out my answer book, selected those titles that seemed most suitable and rejecting any that, on second thought, seemed impossible. These answers were an exceptionally good as well as a monetary value, and I am very pleased to have been fortunate as to participate in two. Yours very truly, MRS. H. R. DONALDSON.

LETTER FROM WINNER OF FOURTH PRIZE. Dear Sir: Under separate cover you will find photo of me as requested and I wish to thank The Journal for the way you have conducted this campaign. The time and trouble you took to answer queries on pictures, etc., was most appreciated. The contest was for me, and of the most pleasant recollections of the past summer. I thoroughly enjoyed it in participating in all its details. I am sure that you are congratulating me on this morning's paper. My only regret is that I did not have the opportunity to see that they were getting perfect justice. I wish to thank you for the way you have conducted it. I wish to assure you that I would be glad to see you again. I wish to assure you that I would be glad to see you again. I wish to assure you that I would be glad to see you again. Yours truly, W. E. LOTS--LOTS--LOTS $350, $400 and $500 each; $25 cash and $10 per month.
These lots are located on the "Mile and a Half Circle," on several wide streets, near the corner of Capitol and Atlanta avenues. These lots—we have about 25 of them left—are on a high elevation, overlooking every office building in the heart of the city; every lot has beautiful oak shade. Most of the level. All are 50 feet front by 120 to 164 feet deep. They are right at lots that are actually selling for $800 to $1,000 each. There is not another bunch of lots anywhere around Atlanta, that is selling as low as we have these lots listed. Now is the time to buy these lots, for both the city and county are doing work in this section, he sides several owners that are improving, and will improve later on. Some of these lots have city improvements such as sewer, water, etc. And every one of them should double in value before you have finished paying for them. Remember the price and terms. You cannot make a mistake. Call us for more information. You and your friends will be interested when you see them.

Prospects of a Large Increase in the Visible Supply Monday Was Said to Have Influenced the Selling

(By Associated Press.)
CHICAGO, Sept. 20.—More than a million bushels of wheat suddenly thronged the market in the last hour today by a few leading houses caused a decline in price. Prospects of a large increase in the visible supply Monday was said to have influenced selling. The close was weak, 3-1/2 to 1-1/2 cent under last night. Corn dropped 1-8 to 1-63/8, oats, 3-8-1/4 to 1-1/2, and provisions 1-1/2 to 1-1/2.

Piling up of wheat stocks northwest prepared the way for the setback in wheat. The receipts there, though below last year's big aggregates, were heavy notwithstanding. They were brought into sharper notice because of the outlook for a greater accumulation. Manitoba shipments had monopolized the export outlet, there being 115,000 tons of wheat floated to sustain the market until selling became aggressive. More rains, favoring seed operations in the winter crop, were expected to cause a decline in the market. When wheat declined, corn prices advanced 1-8 to 1-1/2, oats 1-4 to 1-1/2, and provisions 1-1/2 to 1-1/2.

Money Market Played Important Part in Stocks.
NEW YORK, Sept. 20.—The problem of the money market played an important part in the speculative situation this week and was an effective restraining influence which tended to restrict further activity on the long side. There were a number of special points of strength in the list, which served to sustain the market's sentiment over the future. The returned optimistic, but recognition was given to the unwisdom of attempting to force a campaign to advance prices at a period when the season's demands for trade and commerce were drawing down bank reserves and drawing out nearby credit facilities.

The gardening tendency of money rates, in spite of the scaling down of stock market, was an effective restraining influence which tended to restrict further activity on the long side. There were a number of special points of strength in the list, which served to sustain the market's sentiment over the future. The returned optimistic, but recognition was given to the unwisdom of attempting to force a campaign to advance prices at a period when the season's demands for trade and commerce were drawing down bank reserves and drawing out nearby credit facilities.

Cotton Market Active and Excited Made New High Record for Season

There Was Naturally Heavy Realizing on This Advance, but Offerings Were Absorbed—Closed 12 to 16 Points Higher

NEW YORK, Sept. 20.—The cotton market was active and more or less excited during today's trading with prices making new high records for the season on general buying. December contracts sold up to 12.45 or six points above the previous low level and approximately 44 per cent above the low figure of last week.

There was a big demand for the open market, and the market was active and more or less excited during today's trading with prices making new high records for the season on general buying.

London cables report a better prospect for the settlement of labor troubles, and reviews of the cotton market indicate a continued active demand.

WEEKLY REVIEW OF NEW ORLEANS COTTON MARKET

Sentiment More Inclined to the Bull Side on Reports of Crop Deterioration

NEW ORLEANS, Sept. 20.—The cotton market had a rising tendency this week, the highest prices being reached on the closing session, while the low prices were made on Tuesday.

Sentiment was more inclined to the bull side on reports of continued crop deterioration in the west. It is felt that the crop is being harvested under unfavorable conditions.

At the end of the week the market was strengthened by the growing belief in a better cotton crop in the west. The market was active and more or less excited during today's trading.

GERTRUDE HOFFMAN

Gertrude Hoffman AS ATLANTA KNEW HER

By Angus Perkerson

GERTRUDE HOFFMAN as Atlanta remembers her, was Max Hoffman's wife. Max, as Atlanta now would know him, is Madam Hoffman's helpmeet.

It is the way that times have changed. But a few years ago the old Bijou company spent a pleasant summer at the Grand. Even a few of Max's ballads are remembered, and Little Chip and Mary Maribie are fresh in the minds of those who enjoyed this season of Hoy's musical comedies.

about farming between acts," says one of the old scene shifters. "I never knew a woman to eat so much cheese. Max was always going to write a ballad about it, but he never did. If he couldn't find something to rhyme with moonlight, he let it go."

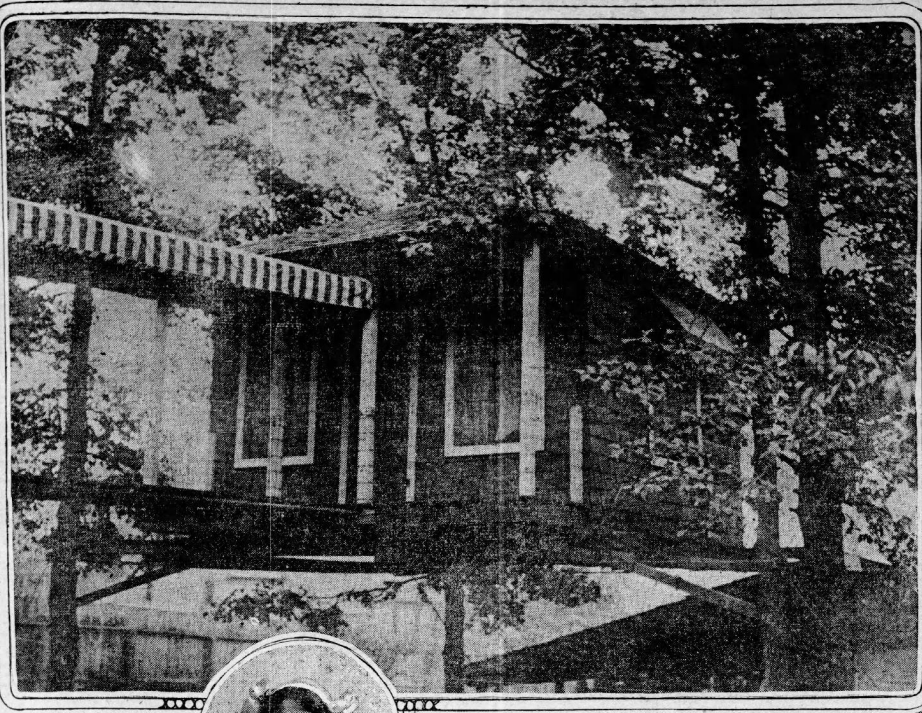

"He was artistic, although he was a good fellow in spite of that. He talked sentiment and also talked farming, and you wouldn't have thought that her mind ever ran on art."

"Not that she didn't think well of his music. Everybody did. He was a great musician. But he preferred farming. Maybe, if Max hadn't been so taken with composing they would both be farming instead of her being the great dancer she is."

"She would have succeeded at that, she could succeed at anything. And that goes just as much for Max."

"Her success really has been actual instead of accidental. The scanty costume which she has adopted is no longer novel upon the stage and would not be sufficient reason for confined to her attire, and the idea was sufficiently original and important to arouse sincere interest."

"It is interesting now to learn how her thoughts have turned from farming to art. Recently she announced with solemn emphasis that Hans von Blow was right when he said that 'in the beginning there was rhythm.'"

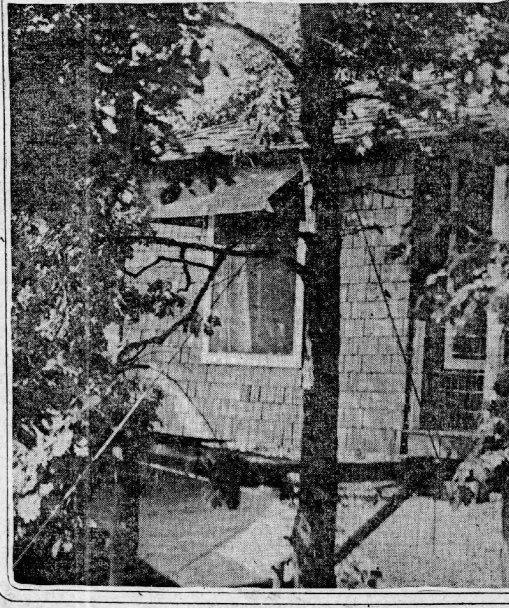

HOUSE IN THE TREES WHICH W. S. PEASE HAS BUILT AT HIS HOME AT 307 GRANT ST. AND HIS TWELVE YEAR OLD DAUGHTER, LUCILE, FOR WHOM IT WAS FIRST INTENDED AS A PLAY ROOM.

A BEDROOM in the tree tops has been built by W. S. Pease, an contractor, at his home, at 307 Grant street. His wife, his little daughter, and he himself sleep there in the tops of the trees, as though in a huge bird's nest. The winds sway the boughs, the leaves of the trees brush against the windows, and the drab little English sparrow chatters in a companionable manner on the roof or at the doorway, as though quite at home with their fellow tree-dwellers. The little house itself is held firmly by wires stretched from tree to tree as firmly as though it had been built ages ago when tree-dwelling was a custom.

It was followed in construction the plan of a suspension bridge in which Mr. Pease became interested upon a recent visit to West Virginia. He had not thought then of building a sleeping place in the tree tops of his backyard. But the plan of the bridge was in his mind when his wife suggested a play room for their little girl. "Something different," she said. "Some place where it's pretty and the could get lots of fresh air. But there isn't any green place here except up in the trees."

"That's so," he agreed. "We'll build it in the tree tops." PLAY HOUSE BEGUN. The new plan soon was being applied upon a playhouse which was to be fixed in the top of the trees in the contractor's backyard. Six or eight trees grow there, and his purpose was to support the playhouse by cables and wire ropes stretched between these trees.

When the windows and the door are thrown wide the room is as free to the air as the trees themselves. Open-air sleeping porches, reached by the winds. Upon no side is it shielded by any building. The slightest breeze which is stirring is to be found upon the most sultry day. When Mr. Pease changed his plans and decided upon a sleeping room instead of a play house, he made no change in his building site because he considered it ideal.

Wherever a breeze springs up, it blows across this nest in the trees. Mr. Pease and his daughter, Lucile, who is twelve year old, occupy this sleeping room together with his wife, and all have gained great benefit from it. To the sick wife, it will be the means of renewed health, and to the father and daughter it will be a means of maintaining strength and vigor.

After sleeping there, "said the wife, "it is almost impossible to sleep in a closed bedroom. I can hardly get my breath. And both my daughter and my husband feel the same way. I suppose we must sleep in the tree tops during the rest of our lives."

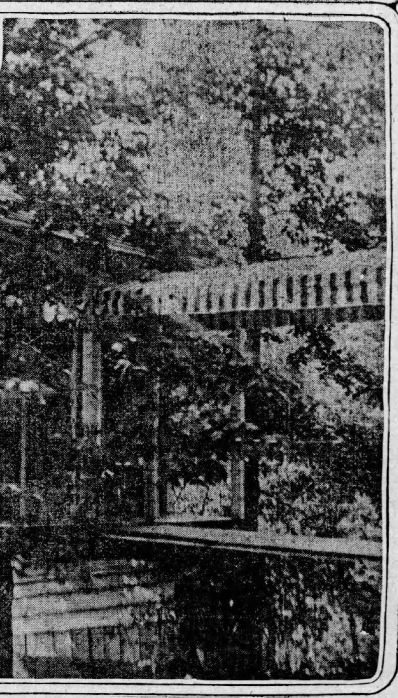

As you walk up the little gallery, it is like crossing a bridge. The ground is no considerable distance below, and, as you lean over the railing, the distance becomes greater. Mother earth seems a great way off. But the railing is high, and the danger of falling is imaginary. Yet, even though the gallery were insecure, the danger will not be risked for the pleasure of standing there upon a level with the tree tops, the sky above, the green leaves upon each hand. It is a sensation that is new and exhilarating. The gallery leads to a little porch, which is the entrance to the open-air bedroom. Although the room was built so that it would be open to all the winds, it is roofed over and closed in at the sides. Still half a dozen windows open in the sides, and the door also admits the fresh air. When the windows and the door are thrown wide the room is as free to the air as the trees themselves. Open-air sleeping porches, reached by the winds. comfortable bed than a hair mattress? Of course it's neither. It's the fresh air he gets and can't help getting that does the trick. He can shut a window if he wants to, and in spite of his food and himself he becomes oxygenated."

Another says: "Drafts, winds, night air, and dampness are infinitely less apt to give up our regular crop of grippe cases than closed windows, dust, extra clothing, and too much food. No one can say to a certainty what grippe actually is. But we do know that people who from necessity live and sleep in the open air, rarely if ever have it."

ment for throat affection. The father reluctantly consented, built a simple windbreak to the north and east of an upper piazza, put the youngster's bed there, and volunteered to sleep outside himself to keep the baby company. He began this practice in December. His conversion to outdoor sleeping dates from the very first night. In the morning he felt as though he were a different man, although he had been in normal health before. Now the whole family is there, the house is empty, colds and grippe are gone, and the doctor's visits are merely social calls."

YOU WOULDN'T THINK IT OF OSCAR

NEW YORK—You'd never think to look at Oscar Hammerstein, that he has a granddaughter old enough to go on the stage. But he has, and she's going. Her name is Elaine, she is seventeen, and her father, Arthur Hammerstein, is going to give her a part in a new musical comedy, "High Jinks," which he will produce next month. Miss Hammerstein is abundantly equipped with good looks and has a soprano voice which may some day swathe her grandpop's interest.

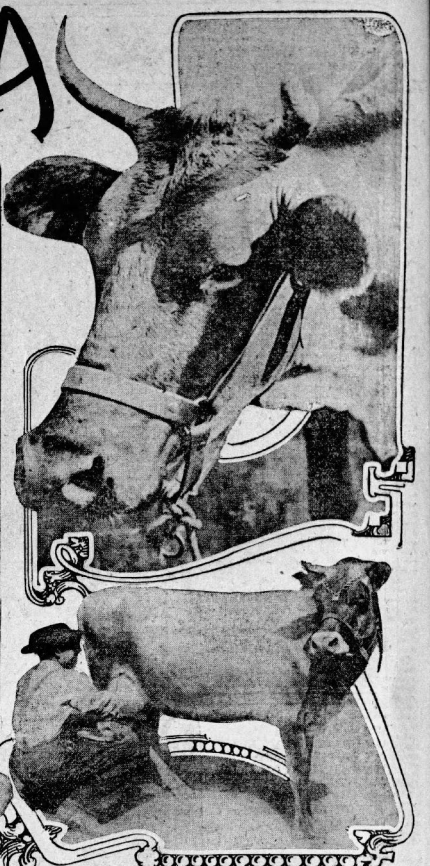

The queerest theatrical season New York has known for many years continues to pursue its peculiar way. Everything's a success. At least all the shows that aren't big hits are doing something.

Ferenc Molnar, the Hungarian actor who wrote "The Devil," now has another play before the American public, "Where Ignorance Is Bliss" and is offered by Harrison Grey Fiske at the Lyceum. The story is that of an egotistical actor who marries an actress who has been notoriously and admittedly fickle in her affairs of the heart. To test her, he disguises himself as a dashing soldier and makes love to her. He wins her. And he never does find out, after he has revealed his deception, whether she knew it all the time as she professes, or whether she didn't.

William Courtright and Rita Joliet have the principal roles, and do a great deal to make the play attractive. David Belasco offers "The Temperamental Journey," adapted by Leo Ditrichstein from the French, and with Ditrichstein in the leading part. The plot concerns a painter who, unappreciated artistically by the public and domestically by his wife, decides to drown himself. But, after he has plunged into the sea, he thinks better of it and swims to a passing vessel. A drowned body is identified as his and he returns home on the day of his supposed funeral. He learns two things—that his wife has an "affinity" and that his pictures have risen enormously in value.

There is, however, a woman who really does care for him, though she had never let him know it. After staying dead a while, he confounds the faithless wife by revealing himself, and the future promises happiness and prosperity with the real love. Another seemingly successful farce has been added to the season's humorous offerings in "Nearly Married," by Edgar Selwyn. Bruce MacRae heads an excellent cast. "Lieber Augustin," with De Wolf Hopper, May de Souza and George MacFarlane, is a musical comedy hit at the Casino. The music is by Leo Fall and Jerome Kern. The New Amsterdam has "Sweethearts," with melodies by Victor Herbert, and with Christi Macdonald starred. It also has caught on.

CATTLE RAISING IN GEORGIA

BY DR. E. M. NIGHTBERT,
Of the United States Bureau of Animal Industry.

THE cattle industry of the United States is today worth $2,000,000,000; and the sale of butter, milk and beef amounts to $158,000,000. It is no wonder, then, at the efforts on the part of the government, the states and the individual to safeguard, to improve, and to extend this industry.

It is apparent that the beef and the dairy products, which for centuries have been the principal part of the American diet, will soon be less plentiful than in former years, unless steps are taken to foster the cattle industry on the farms of the United States.

It is not likely that dairy products will ever sell at a low price. High-priced lands, smaller pastures and an increased population will keep them in greater demand. Cattle, more than ever, are the most important part of the farm; and cattle-breeding is to become more important than at any time in the past.

But the southern states, particularly Georgia and the other South Atlantic states, have not kept pace with other sections in encouraging the cattle industry. The value of cattle on the farms in Georgia is but half the value of cattle in other states. This condition accounts for the large annual expenditure in the south for cattle products produced elsewhere.

SOUTH'S OPPORTUNITY.
For the first time in the history of the country, the southern states are presented with an opportunity, and are called upon to supply their proportion of the country's needs in the matter of beef and dairy products. The middle west farmers are demanding cattle for their feed lots and the eastern markets should no longer be required to ship fresh beef across the continent. When better shipping facilities by either water or rail are closer at hand, therefore, it seems to be good business for Georgia, a great farming region, to give special attention to developing a cattle industry of great proportions. The state of Georgia was founded on the principles of "agriculture and commerce," so why not take advantage of this great natural and practical resource and extend our commerce in cattle and dairy products?

Today Georgia is not a cattle country but tomorrow she may be made one. There are a great many people who think Georgia farms and climate are not suitable for cattle. It is true that there are many things to consider in establishing a profitable cattle industry. Among all of them there are some to be considered first. To illustrate: Before the Panama canal could be dug—even before the digging began, the territory had to be freed of agencies affecting man so that he might work under conditions favorable to his health. As a result the first step was to free the territory of diseases affecting man. The same precautions are necessary in the establishment of any great and worthy undertaking that means benefit to the people now and in the future.

The cattle fever tick, which transmits disease to cattle, is one of the evils which makes the establishment of cattle hazardous and unprofitable. So as a first step this disease agency affecting cattle must be removed from the farms of the whole state. When this work has been accomplished, the way is then open and safe to do all the things necessary to establishing the cattle industry and make it profitable on Georgia farms.

- (1) Eradicate the cattle tick.
- (2) Establish fences and pastures.
- (3) Provide feed for winter.
- (4) Improve home stock with the very best sires possible to obtain and continue to breed the best.

These are not theories but facts, because it is known that the same principles are involved and must be considered in establishing good cattle, no matter in what section of our country.

The cheaper and greater the land area not utilized for actual farming operations had the greater possibility of having a variety of foreign crops, the more profit there is in cattle. In these particular Georgia land owners and farmers have an advantage. Less than fifty years ago the middle west was a great cattle pasture and these pastures were filled with cattle, because land was cheap. That day has passed and today that section is settled with smaller farmers, conducting general farming operations.

It was found that cattle could not be produced and maintained without resort to producing feed for the cattle throughout the cold season, so the business has been reduced to smaller herds, depending on cattle from other sections for feeding operations. The idea now throughout the country is to have the smaller herds on the farm and more of them and this plan is being adopted and will continue to improve and be extended from year to year. In former years it was "the big pot in the little one," now things are reversed. It's the small farmer 'and land owner that must receive special consideration because it is he that has clothed and fed the people of the past; he will continue it in the future.

DAY OF CONCENTRATION.
This is a day of concentration of efforts in all lines of industry. The object in mind of both producer, consumer and user of all commodities is to demand the best at all times. It is well that Americans have this very idea, because it means high development of mind and accomplishments along every line.

A cattle industry will be established in Georgia, because it is absolutely necessary at this modern time of diversified plans of farming. Great risks cannot be had and continued without cattle and other live stock on the farm, that these crops may be utilized to the best advantage.

When the cattle fever tick has been eradicated and the federal cattle quarantine restrictions removed, we can honestly and conscientiously advocate the introduction of improved cattle for breeding purposes. Feeding and marketing of cattle can then proceed unhampered. As a result of this improvement, cattle will be of the kind and quality that will be profitable to feed, the kind that the market demands, the products of which the consumer desires and will buy and use.

Last year the work of eradication of the cattle fever tick was completed in sixteen hundred square miles of territory in the state of Georgia and extended this year into seven thousand additional square miles. The people are awakened to the importance of having more and better cattle on the farm. It has been found that the great proportion of land being idle and unprofitable can be made into pastures for cattle and that these pastures from a grazing standpoint may be made equal to those of any other section of the country.

TICK ERADICATION.
Since the adoption of the work of tick eradication in 1906 by the various states interested, a territory nearly four times as large as the state of Georgia has been freed of this serious cattle disease. This work is accomplished and completed by use of the cattle dipping vat and the change of pasture method. The work may be completed on any given farm or a whole county within five four to eight months, depending on the co-operation of the cattle owner. The result of this work has stimulated a great demand for improved cattle for breeding purposes. The south is looked upon by the breeders of pure bred cattle as a great future market for their stock. This is the whole country will be benefited by the movement to have more and better cattle on southern farms.

THREE CATTLE RAISED NEAR ATLANTA.

ROYALTY'S WEDDING PLANS IN LONDON TOWN

LONDON.—Smart American women, intimate friends of the Connaught family, have been discussing the desirability of sending collectively a wedding present to Prince Arthur. They are extremely fond of the prince, who for years has been on the most friendly terms with them, and he returns their regard. They are, however, slowly tumbling to the fact that it is best to retire for their future. It is doubtful if any American, not even ambassadors, ever crossed the threshold of the late Duke of Fife, and the princess royal and their daughters show every indication of keeping up the tradition of exclusiveness. As the bride-to-be is wealthier than the prince, it goes without saying she will rule the roost in social as well as domestic matters in their household.

It appears the Connaughts were anxious the wedding should take place at a larger church than the Chapel Royal, St. James', for," said the Duchess of Connaught, "when the royalties, relatives and diplomatic people who must be invited have been accommodated, there will be no seats left for friends who are commoners." But the king and queen and the princess royal, the bride-elect's mother, insisted that the Chapel Royal was the fitting place for such a ceremony. It appears when the present king and queen were married, there, twenty years ago, the heat and stiffness among others Queen Alexandra, who am told several prominent Americans have intimated to Prince Arthur that it would make them very happy were he and the bride to send their honeymoon at their respective mansions. Cliveden, Waldorf Astor, J. R. S. Thames palace, among other places, has been suggested. As a matter of fact, no place has yet been pitched upon for the sojourn, but it is as likely as not that Bessborough Park will be chosen. It is now down for one thing, and that is a big consideration.

SOCIETY WOMEN FIGHT AGE.
All the smart women are taking "after-season" "cures" for their nerves and complexion before they start out on their rounds of visits to country houses for the coming season. "There is no place in the world where a woman is under such observation in a country mansion, for one comes to such close quarters with friends," said the late Lady Dorothy Neville. "It is on the moors and in the country your acquaintances begin to realize you are growing old." And it is quite true. The light is always so firm in London, but, of course, there will be no festivities this year owing to their mourning. The Duchess of Marlborough says she is "restraining" at Harrogate before going north, where she and her two boys are booked for a number of visits. Sometimes she looks extremely tired. She is one of those who burn the candle at each end, for, how-

HARDWOOD PRODUCTS OF THE PHILIPPINES

WASHINGTON.—Little appears to be known on this side of the world of the rare and beautiful hardwoods of the Philippine islands. The scores told may have suggested that the imagination had not been neglected, but a practical demonstration that these stories were founded on fact may be seen in the offices of General Frank McArthur, chief of the bureau of insular affairs, where there has just been received from the islands enough furniture made of native woods to furnish two office-rooms. This furniture shows the possibilities as well as the beautiful color and grain of the Philippine hardwoods. It is of red narra, or Philippine mahogany, of a light clear color, shading to slightly darker; has a natural finish with a high polish, and is strikingly graded. It shows also the ability and dexterity of the natives in their work as well as their capacity to learn. They turn out only manufactures of the best quality and of the highest grade of workmanship. They depend entirely on local materials for their output, and the Philippines are taught the value of native raw material and products.

In addition to making use of the fine native lumber found in such abundance, other products of the country, the existence of which in many cases was scarcely known to the Filipinos, have been put into the hands of the pupils in the schools, and under the guidance of the native teachers and the supervision of the American teachers it is made into products for the markets of the country.

A variety of natural colors and multiplicity of shapes and uses no baskets in the world can surpass those produced by the pupils of the public schools of the Philippines. They make hair pins, and their texture equal to the finest made. Indeed, many of the so-called Bangkoke hats come from the Philippine islands. The girls of the schools make lace and embroidery which equals the finest hand made production of Europe.

As a relic of Spanish times all the woods in the Philippines are divided by law into four groups. The group known as American occupation, but it really represents the presence of timber users. Narra is placed in the first class. It is of a singularly rich and beautiful color, and is among the highest priced woods because of its color, durability and adaptability. It is moderately heavy and hard, very durable, and is seldom if ever attacked by the white ant. It seasons well and takes a fine finish. The heart is white, yellow or red, and the sapwood nearly white. The grain is rather fine but irregular and very beautiful when quarter sawed. It is used principally for fine turnery, cabinet making and interior house trim. The provinces of Cagayan, Mindoro, Tayabas, Albay, Isabela and Sorsogon lead in the production of narra.

Narra is divided commercially into two varieties, called red and yellow, according to its hue. Both species have the red and yellow varieties. The red grows in the hilly country, generally near the streams, and yellow is found in the flats near the river.

Narra is obtained from the buttresses of narra, from which large one-piece table tops are made, some times six feet or over in diameter. The wood is often finished in its natural color. This class of woods, however, is very popular for pianos and high grade furniture, is becoming more and more scarce on this side of the world, and is much limited by state of veneers. There is always an abundant supply under the jurisdiction of this government with no import duty.

FABRIC HATS AND NECKWEAR OF TULLE

French Fashion Notes

IF YOU have ever visited Paris you will have pleasant recollections of the fascinating small shops bordering the Place Vendôme and the Rue de la Paix, where fashionable millinery and neckwear are sold. The native Parisiennes and her sisters from other climes find the wares displayed in these shops by irresistibly lovely sales girls by uncanny; therefore they linger to the profit of the proprietors and the depletion of their pocket contents.

Neckwear and millinery have ever occupied an important place in the wardrobe, and the smart woman aims to keep these accessories up to date. A piece that or bit of neckwear can completely spoil the charming effect of a costume, and the modern woman aims to appear artistically attired on all occasions; for this reason she should be particularly careful in the selection of her millinery and neckwear.

The upturned collar of lace or mousseline de soie continues in high favor and is especially becoming to most types of beauty. The fish and long jabot remain in popularity; the flat collar, for so long a leader in the realm of neckwear, the rounded or square neck lace follows to the demise of the past, and the sewer must bear this in mind when fashioning neckwear.

The evening costume is the hat, and the smartest models this season are so simply constructed that any woman can be her own milliner. Fabric hats have won the approval of fashion, and the models shown here are especially worthy of your attention.

The attractive hat with the butterfly wings is a hat shape with a flaring top, supported on the left side. A shallow moire is used to cover the top, and the underbrim is faced with velvet of the same tone. The wings, posed gracefully at the front, are made from black velvet ribbon, tied in a bow.

Worn by this model is a novel neckpiece of tulle and lace trimmed with black velvet. The Model collar is wired, and a narrow band of black ribbon catches it together at the top. A pearl bead ornament ornaments the band, and a group of three tortois shells adorns the lower edge of the collar. A sash of black tulle and lace is trimmed in the same manner.

Extremely attractive is the "bride's hat" in wide white tulle edged with black. The crown is bow-shaped and the brim lined up at the sides and back. Black velvet is used to cover the hat, and the trimming consists of a band of black tulle and lace, edged with black velvet ribbon, tied in a bow at the center.

The neckpiece is a fish-tail arrangement of white mousseline de soie and black tulle. Over the center is arranged a band of black ribbon velvet, which catches it together at the top. The plume-trimmed hat is a smaller shape, emphasizing the turned-up brim. Champagne leather is used to cover the top and the underbrim is faced with black velvet. The plume is champagne-colored and is placed at the left side. Champagne color and black is a notable combination of colors and will be especially used this season. The fish is of silver white linen and is remounted or those worn by Marie Antoinette. Pinked frills border the edges, the new standing up crepe de chine and the sharply pointed ends are black velvet hat. This is an effective model and can be easily duplicated at a surprisingly small expenditure of time and money.

Beads Large

BEADS will play a large part in fashions this year, from the tiny ones embroidered on the diaphanous tulle to the repeat of heavy beads draped from the shoulders to the waist line at the back.

In a household where heirloom pearls are plentiful, one grande dame has a sleeveless bodice whose shoulder straps are strands of large pearls.

Another woman, with whom heirlooms are not so common, has a chic velvet hat in which she has a string of indestructible wood pearls which fasten under her pretty chin.

Green for Evening

NATURE'S shade, the ever-beautiful green, is to have a high place at fashion's court this year for evening wear. Some most exclusive gowns are being made up in emerald green de chine, crepe meter, satin and chiffon.

For her superbly beautiful evening gown she is buying a flowing gown with a tulle of gold-embroidered tulle and a single diamond at the point where high style and low-cut décolleté meet. The material is the sleeveless arabesque of the bodice and forms the greater part of the bodice.

A Simple Trimming

BLACK stitching is used effectively on sheer white waists of batiste and lawn. There is a simple, but effective, black trim that no amount of lace or embroidery will give. Such a waist is a pleasing addition to the wardrobe of a woman in half-mourning. The thread in making the entire waist is black, the stitching showing for the inside reason because the black thread showing through the material makes a blurred dark line that is not desirable.

Some Fall Fabrics

WHAT will you have, madam? Brocade of a royal richness? Behold, it is spread before you—a riot of color and fanciful design. But the stuff brocade, praised of old by our ancestors is not in evidence. "A brocade stir" with silver and gold—how romantic it sounds!

But could anything be more important for this season of draperies and soft clinging folds? So our kind manufacturers, unwilling to deny us the richness of brocade, earnestly set to work and endeavor to introduce the desired element of softness into the rich fabric. The result is a triumph indeed in the art of weaving. For under the deft fingers of the weaver, the metal threads have fallen and draped into clinging folds, and the most difficult of all patterns has come from the loom than a direct-and-gold brocade, draped at a recent opening. The background of the silver or gold, combined with the fur usually bordering such wraps, is most beautiful. There is brocade plush, there is a new brocade, there is a new brocade, there is a new brocade. Brocade matelasse is a new fabric this season—brocade meaning "ring" and matelasse meaning "brocade." The brocade design is formed of tiny rings of wool or yarn—a sort of a curd pad.

And these are only the wool and silk-and-wool brocades—the velvets and silks are as many and if possible more exquisite. The manufacturers have been sufficiently thoughtful to provide for nearly every brocade a plain material to match. The crepe, which are more in demand this season than ever before, owing to the pleasant manner of draping are to be had in weaves new and old. These are, from previous seasons, crepe de chine, this will very likely be considered among the staples, crepe meter and charmeuse.

One of the revived but slightly changed weaves is the old-fashioned crepon, a silk-and-wool combination through which are run silk stripes in red and green, giving one the impression of two-toned narrow ribbons based upon a plain background. Crepe meter is an old weave, so far as the "revived" brocade is concerned, and derives its name from the size of the small cross words, which are about the width of a needle. The fabric is then put through a creping process, crepe Adrienne, which gives it a different look. There is no difference in the names and the other well-known beautiful materials impress one.

PARIS, Sept. 11.

THIS is a vexing season for those seeking new waiferies. The ever-changing kaleidoscope of fashion has assumed a special form, and it remains for public favor to decide which modes will survive.

Most of the novelty in gowns has been gained by the combination of daring colors and materials.

There is a decided preference for the lamphade tunic, which is but a modified version of the crinolines. Skirts have either wired tunics or tiers of trimming which emphasize the width at the hips.

Sleeves are long and close-fitting or decidedly fuller about the shoulders, with deep frills of tulle or lace falling from the elbows. The long sleeves curve over the hands like those of the grande dame during the moyen age.

In the perfect costume of the present nothing is really defined; draperies extend across the front of a gown and then fall far below the hips at the back, where the ends are knotted. Skirts appear wider, and yet the fullness is confined to the upper half; few slashes are noticed, and skirts are quite short in front. The skimpy skirt is no longer worn, and draperies are with straight-hanging double or triple tunics.

Brilliant colors are mingled—green and blue with melon yellow, petunias and green or yellow, and rust-red is frequently combined with blue, green and certain tints of purple and orange. Still, boned corsets are a feature of the past, for artistic gowns show every curve of the natural figure.

Hats complete the theme of the costume. If they are well chosen, so much attention is devoted to millinery.

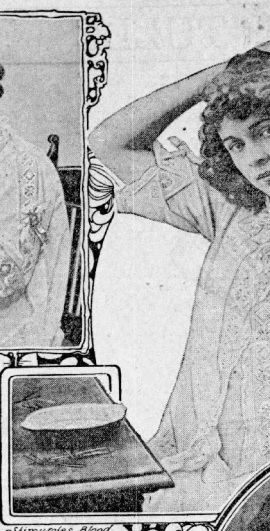

The smartest models are quaint little affairs almost void of trimming, but of a superior quality which follow the contour of the head and assumes the shape most becoming to the face beneath.

Faquin seems determined to revive the popularity of tulle, which was fewer than three of this distinguished designer's models have two or three tiers of tulle. One of taupe-colored crepe de chine and has a lamphade tunic of two bouffants of black tulle bordered with narrow bands of skunk.

Underneath the folds of the girdle extend a gathered tulle finished with a scalloped flounce eight inches in diameter. These scallops are pointed and bound with his folds of the moire.

CLEMATIS CENTERPIECE

Designed by Eleanor Howard

THE beautiful purple or white clematis is always admired when it graces your front porch. How lovely then is it in festoon form on your table in the wreath of a centerpiece such as I am offering today!

I have had the design arranged so that one-half of the circle is shown, and it is sufficient to speak for itself to all embroiderers who like the floral decoration for centerpieces.

After transferring the design and completing it by keeping the center stationary and matching scallops and daisies, decide on the best of methods with which to suggest.

You will notice that there are dots for punched work arranged around the border of the circle. The flower and leaves can be worked in several ways. One very effective method is the use of the long-and-short stitch around the edge of the flower petals. Make this a solid border about one-quarter of an inch in width. Fill in the rest of each petal with seed stitches. These are small back stitches, the thread remaining loose so as to represent small seeds. (The stitches are made in parallel rows close together.)

When you work the centers use the button stitch. This is a long French knot, made by bringing the point of the needle up through the material, twisting the thread around it from twelve to twenty times, passing it down through the coil to the wrong side and leaving a long "spring" of thread that makes one strand of the center.

The leaf should be outlined on the central stem and both ovals. You can fill in the outer rim with solid stitches and the central part with seed stitches, or reverse the idea. Keep the outline of the shape distinctly worked, for the punched work will come up to it and should be sharply defined.

When you punch, use a tapestry needle or a regular three-sided needle that comes for this kind of work. Pass the needle through two dots that are opposite. Work in parallel rows, passing down to a row below by a slanting direction of the needle on the outer side of the material.

When you have worked over the entire square in a horizontal direction, complete the square by working in vertical lines. Do not pull the goods from the hole. The constant punching of the needle will have a softening effect when you have finished. Pulling will cause a rough gathering. The finished edge should be padded first before unbuttoning. The finished braids which have been rinsed in water to

A Sachet Handkerchief Box

Handkerchief boxes are lovely when they have a liberal amount of your favorite scapes padded into their silk linings. Unfortunately, however, the delightful odor loses strength, and one would probably have to rip many rows of stitching, even in the pretty linings in order to renew the supply. A very practical sachet box recently seen at a bazaar entirely overcame this difficulty.

The shirred silk lining contained narrow but deep pockets about the edge, one on each of the four sides, into which the sachets of white muslin were slipped. They could readily be renewed at will, and as the little bags were of such ordinary material one would feel no regret in throwing them away, as someone occurs with their more elaborate satin and embroidered sisters. To insure even a more lasting perfume to the box, the one in question was made from one of those delightful sweet-grass baskets.

A Rich Workbag

You are, of course, seen the shoeing bags—those made with the simple crocheted stitch, you know. They are serviceable, but no one would care to assume the responsibility of carrying them. Suppose, then, that you were to substitute a soft silk bag for the very shoeing, can you not picture the richness? True, silk tape is rather expensive and not always obtainable or washable, but it will serve a way, and here is one of the ways.

If you are acquainted with an underwear manufacturer or a friend has a friend who has another friend who knows one, see if that manufacturer will not relax his iron-bound wholesale rules and sell you a spool of the silk tape that he uses to run through undersweats. And if you can't scrape up an acquaintance with such a manufacturer for the occasion, muster all your courage to the front and call upon him at his factory and state your errand.

The spools are about six inches long and four wide and contain yards upon yards of fine, built-up silk to make at least two bags. The bag can be made as fancy or as plain as desired and lined with any color. A girl who is fortunate enough to be the daughter of an underwear manufacturer has a lovely silk work bag of champagne color lined with lavender muslin, and it sometimes serves as a slipper bag as well as a workbag. The champagne-colored work is somewhat difficult to obtain, so that you may have to content with cream or white.

To Mend and Freshen Gloves

A neat and durable method of mending kid gloves is to button-hole around the edges of the wear or hole in the glove before drawing the sides of the worn place together. The mending stitches will not then be so likely to tear out.

When cleaning white kid gloves, put one of the gloves upon the hand (the other hand must be left free to do the work) and immerse in a basin of gasoline. Wet a small soft brush with the liquid and rub upon it a good white soap. Scrub the glove gently with the soap and gasoline, rinse in clean gasoline and hang in the shade with dry. Treat the other glove in the same manner. The rinsing gasoline may be returned to a separate basin for future use in washing, but not rinsing, gloves. The soapy gasoline is, of course, thrown away, neatly roll and stretch the gloves, after they are dry, before attempting to put them on the hands.

The Child's Bath

One can introduce play and fancy into so many things connected with the daily necessities that are often so disagreeable to children. What ordeal is worse for the average child than being "soused"? No doubt if put to a vote they would unanimously agree with the little fellow who accused his mother of "Always washin' something."

Half the time it is true.

A pretty towel embroidered in yellow ducks would afford an element of attraction in the bathing hour. If done in the simple tapestry stitch the embroidery of the ducks will take but a short time. Sometimes towels can be obtained already stamped for the purpose. If not, cut a duck from an illustration, if one can be found, and trace it with carbon upon the towel. Work the outline thus transferred in yellow, insert a black eye, and the duck is complete. One duck placed after the other, in a line, and then a blue patch of tapestry stitch at the end of the towel will make the ducks appear as though they are waddling toward a pond. The towel can be simply hemmed, hemstitched, or scalloped, and buttonholed in white mercerized twist. The small washcloths can be decorated with a fish in outline stitch or a tiny boat in make-believe game of the sea. The "Seashore" will afford plenty of other ideas for the child's bath.

If the child is quite small a rubber tub will make the tub what you will. The tub will be quite small, but it will give a delight.

Embroidered Lamberquin

An exceedingly beautiful lamberquin of white silk hand-embroidered in Louis blossom, red-brown, is a simple linen gown that is made at home in Newport, to grace the drawing room of a wealthy woman's home there. Even in that home of beauty and beauty, the lamberquin is a bit of silk called for unusual comfort. Upon close examination of the embroidery was found to be worked in a plain satin stitch, and it was evident that several strands of the silk floss had been used.

The flowers were heavily padded. The flowers were pink and white, and were edged with a green outline. The successful embroidery with a heavy white silk knotting.

The same idea could be carried out by any lover of art needlework, not only in Louis blossom, but in cherry, apple or peach blossoms—in fact, any flower one wishes.

For a Linen Gown

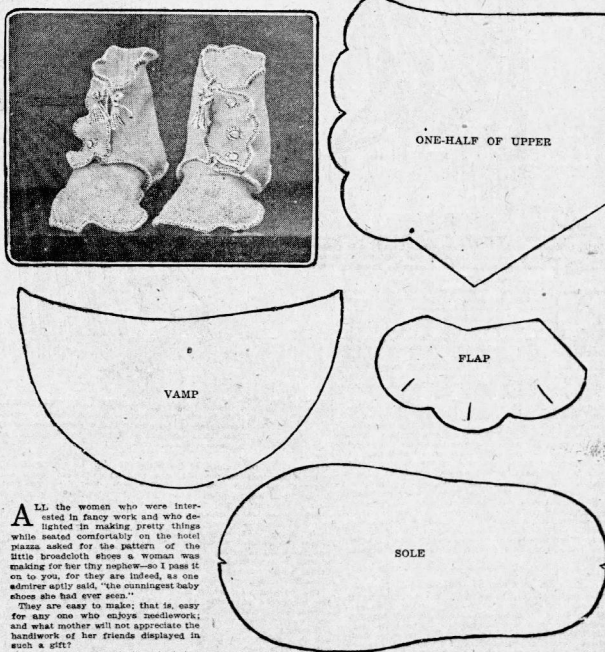

It is remarkable how really "dressed" a simple linen gown may be made to look by using detachable cuffs, collar and a regular three-sided neckline that comes for this kind of work. Pass the needle through two dots that are opposite. Work in parallel rows, passing down to a row below by a slanting direction of the needle on the outer side of the material.

How to Transfer

Here are suggestions for transferring the pattern before you to any material before working. Perhaps the easiest way is the "window-pane" method. This is successful when the material is thin, like linen, batiste, etc. Pin the sheet of paper and the material together and hold them up against the glass of a window. When a sharp pencil draw on the material the design, which can be easily seen through the goods. If one-half of the design only be given, unpin the paper and turn the other side to the fabric.

If you have carbon paper, you should place the sheet between your fabric and the newspaper, as latter is on top. If you have no carbon paper, the French method is the best material to use in the making, but you can make it out of either soft suede or very fine French kid. You may use pink or blue cloth or kid, if you wish, and work with the same. Now we will make one exactly like it. Cut out the sole, the toe, the flap, and then double the material in order to cut two pieces for the upper.

HANDMADE SHOES FOR BABY

ALL the women who were interested in fancy work who delighted in making pretty things while seated comfortably on the hotel piazza asked for the pattern of the little broadcloth shoes a woman was making for her tiny nephew—no I pass it on to you, for they are indeed, as our admirer aptly said, "the cunningest baby shoes she had ever seen."

They are easy to make; that is, easy for any one who enjoys needlework; but what mother will not appreciate the handwork of her friends displayed in such a gift?

The pattern is given in the actual size. All you have to do is to trace it on the paper you would like to embroider. The pattern on this page, or cut it out and use it as it is for your pattern.

White broadcloth and fine French batiste are the best materials to use in the making, but you can make it out of either soft suede or very fine French kid. You may use pink or blue cloth or kid, if you wish, and work with the same. Now we will make one exactly like it. Cut out the sole, the toe, the flap, and then double the material in order to cut two pieces for the upper.

Pin the center front of the toe to the center front of the sole where the notch is marked on the pattern. Baste the two parts together and then baste the toe to the sole on the other side of the upper, as shown in the picture.

The little tassels are made by winding the silk around a card one inch wide, running it through one end and tying it tight; then slip the silk out of the card and tie the tassels around the top and cut the lower threads so they will fluff apart.

These you have it—the shoes are ready to keep baby's tiny feet from getting cold, and are as soft and warm as can possibly be desired.

A smart fur trimmed coat in full length, with the fashionable straight line effect. This coat is dressy enough to be worn for afternoon, and yet it would not seem out of place for a morning shopping tour.

As the days grow cooler more and more interest is apparent in separate coats. When separate coats are approved by fashion, as they are this season, few women consider their winter outfit complete without one or more utility garments besides the ever necessary fancy evening wrap. An overcoat, of whatever style it may be, has such advantages of warmth and protection and economy that women are more than willing to sacrifice the trimness of the coat-suit to the comfort of the all covering separate coat.

The utility garments for this winter are particularly comfortable looking. They are patterned on generous lines of comfort above the waistline. The sleeves are invariably large in the armholes. Some of them have the long shoulder seams and some are of the kimono style. Others are set in with the natural armhole, that is, natural as far as location is concerned, but very, very long and roomy as to size. Below the waistline the clinging tendency of last year is still noticeable in the outer garments, except in the rare case of the slip-on weatherproof. The effect obtained by this clever pulling in of the coat around the bottom is an effect of straightness. There is little of the pucker effect in the less dressy coats. This is reserved for the very handsome afternoon coats and the even more elaborate evening wraps.

Outing Coats Most Attractive

The materials to choose from are bewildering in their variety. One of the most interesting in marvellously lovely two toned effects, generally black in combination with a color, such as terra cotta, burgundy, burnt blue, or the new Fagun green, a shade showing quite a yellow tinge. These shibboleths are light in weight and have a beautiful silky surface. They are used for the dressier coats for utility wear and they make most attractive garments. All of the coat materials have a rough, warm looking surface. The heavy morning and motor coats. The popular chinchilla is having no diminution of popularity, especially in light shades and white for morning and sports coats. Velvets and plushes are used with success for afternoon wraps, and the new Duverette and post de poche are made up in some of the higher priced garments. For the strictly utility coat diagonals, cord stripes, checks, and long nap goods have been most popular with the designers. The Balkan blouse has influenced fall and winter top coats to the extent of lowering the belt, or in many cases, putting the belt on a coat which a few seasons ago would not have had a belt. But the blouse itself has no place in the fall coat designs, except for young girls. The reason for that is very evident when one considers how impractical the blouse is for adaptation in heavy materials such as are being used. Many coats have belts, however, just a little below the natural waistline, and some of the most popular medium priced overgarments are made with a wide belt which is stitched on to the coat a few inches below the natural waistline. These belts seem more like trimmings than like belts, however. The oriental idea, which has influenced so many of the handsome garments of the Paris designers, is considerably modified for the utility coats which American women will wear. It is present only in trimmings, which are very handsome in coloring and in texture, and in an occasional afternoon coat with a wide sash.

Steamer Coats Fascinating

Coats for outing wear are most attractive. The favorite materials are white chinchilla, ratina, and basket weaves, and other novelty fabrics. They are usually made in the thirty-six and forty inch lengths and are finished with patch pockets and a belt of ecru.

material. Bright green outing coats are popular, and rose and gold are fairly well liked. The Scotch plaids and checks are charming for outing coats and they have the advantage of enduring severer weather than the white ones, in the matter of unexpected storms. Steamer coats are so fascinating that they make an ocean voyage in the middle of the winter very luring. The materials are so wonderfully soft and warm and so light in weight that it doesn't seem possible that they can be as warm as they are. The colors are dark and rich, plain, or in livable checks or plaids or stripes. Most of the coats are made with the Raglan or kimono sleeve, so that they can be easily slipped on or off. Many have bits of self-material placed at or somewhat below the normal waistline. Very little trimming is used on steamer coats. The richness of the fabric is enough to make them attractive and the rough usage and bad weather which steamer coats are usually subjected make trimmings undesirable.

In her choice of garments for play, the true sportsman wisely follows the masculine lead and has her outer garments made with as little unnecessary weight and trimming as possible. Her coat is practically the same as the sportsman's, and she is in no way hampered when the tramping is through brush by the feminine frills of coats. Some particularly attractive and novel designs are illustrated on this page. The smart fur trimmed coat on the left was worn by a young girl at a polo game. The trimming consists entirely of the furry fur collar and cuffs and the well placed buttons and buttonholes. The silhouette which this coat makes gives a most pleasing impression of strength, but the waist of the coat is far more roomy than the skirt. It is dressy enough to be worn for afternoon, and yet it does not seem out of place on a morning shopping tour. A coat of this sort is a most useful garment to have because it is appropriate for many occasions and handsome enough to be in place wherever a tailored looking coat could be worn.

Chubst Top Coat Serviceable

The Chubst top coat of English tweed is another very serviceable and smart garment. It is called Chubst for no particular reason aside from the very evident straight-up-and-downness of its lines and coat—practically would be a proper lining for the its extremely square cut. The post-impressionistic silk, but as the coat is made for service, and for every day wear in all sorts of weather, the lining is of a dull gray. The back of this coat is particularly good looking, with an inverted pleat to give room and comfort and belted from the side seams. Three patch pockets add to the utility of the coat. There is no pleat of the front and on the belt. The coat may be worn in bad weather, as it is showerproof. A most attractive motor coat is illustrated in the right hand corner. It is of very light weight, rich diagonal in an unusually beautiful shade of dark blue. The material is an absolute novelty, a new weave from a new yarn. Both processes are patented. The fabric has a thick appearance and is extremely warm, but it is wonderfully light in weight. The cuffs and the collar are of marmot fur, and the buttons are additions to the attractiveness of the coat. They are glistening. The waist line is very low in the back and the coat is extremely roomy through the sleeves and the waist, a combination of characteristics that is sure to make a motor coat attractive to the American woman. The high neck closing is another smart feature of the coat. That style is particularly becoming with a fur collar, and it is as practical as any style could be for the motorist. The coat has most of this season's designs, is of three-quarter length. The sleeves have the elongated shoulder line. The little wrap with the cape back is a utility coat in another sense. It has so many recommendations for the smartly dressed woman that I am including it among the utility coats, although it is a garment that is adaptable for afternoon and evening wear rather than for general wear. It is of velour de laine, and the only touches of contrasting color on it are the bright colored vest of handsome oriental embroidery, the buckle at the belt, and the lining. Linings in dressy coats are often very gay, indeed almost as gay as they are sombre in the sturdy coats for rough and ready wear. They are often of the richest silks in the latest designs and textures. Silk children are used for linings and the soft Japanese silk crepes. The use of belts or sashes placed at the low waistline is characteristic of many of the children's coats. In the dressier coats, black satin or some kind of ribbon in matching color is used, while in the simpler garments leather or self-material has the preference for belts. Many of the coats fasten on the left side. The modified Norfolk and Russian styles are very attractive for children. Yokes are a particularly new feature of the season's children's coats. They usually extend over the shoulder and the sleeves are attached at the drooping shoulder line. Collars in many fancy shapes are used.

Paul Donehoo

Atlanta's Blind Coroner

BY WARD S. GREENE.

CHILD of three lay in his white cot and cried because he was afraid of the dark. A moment before and the little room had been yellow with lamp light; now the dead unknown lurked in the black shadow that penned him close. They had taken the light away.

Two years later a child of five lay on the "hot pillow," the light went out again, never to return. They told him he was struck stone blind.

Blindness is ever a tragedy, but it is a pitiful and incomprehensible one for a child of five. Only the weak hear the whole world was the world of the blue sky and the green trees; now he was muffled in the dark no more would never see.

When Dick Heider, Kipling's great hero, felt the light go out, he said: "Let's curse God and die." Though the child of five did not know them, his thoughts must have been much like those of Dick Heider, yet once the first horror of blindness passed, once he had learned himself to face the sightless world, in the pitchy night that surrounded him he found the bright star of hope.

That star that star of hope has shined until the man who was blind of five sees it luminous in his mind, blazing a path through the future, rimmed only by a seat in the United States senate.

That is the goal of the young Paul Donehoo, statesman and statesman. Three years ago and plunged into the dark. The coronership of the city of Atlanta he feels is but a stepping stone in the making of a statesman.

BATTLE OF THE BLIND.

The child of five battled with darkness until he conquered it in so far as to make him a man among men, is a story the whole of which Paul Donehoo himself and he alone can ever know. And the last chapter perhaps is yet to be written.

It was a day in May, 1890, when Paul Donehoo felt the light go out. A few weeks later he was a student in the Academy for the Blind at Macon, where men, women and little children are given new eyes in their finger tips and a sixth sense for the one that has vanished. Many years later he was to serve on the board of inspectors of that same institution, appointed to the office by Governor Joseph M. Brown.

For eight years Paul Donehoo went to school. There he first began the training of the memory which has since become his greatest and most marvelous asset, and there, too, there came to him the first of his plans for the future, music as a profession.

Later the young graduate of the blind academy entered Mercer university, where for three years more he took a special course which still further stiffened the bulwarks of the brain which now so seldom tricks his memory.

He left Mercer feeling that in music he had found his life work. The germ of it had always been in him, and blindness had served merely to intensify it. Even as early as three years of age, he had taken a prize in Sunday school for singing. And today he can listen to the sound of a far-off bell, go to the piano, and sound the bell note on the keyboard.

So he came back to Atlanta, the city of his birth, here further to perfect himself in the calling he had chosen. The years of study were followed by years of teaching. The young blind man who played the piano with such skill soon became a prominent figure in Atlanta musical circles, and before long Paul Donehoo had more pupils than he could teach.

WHERE MEMORY FAILED.

Music teaching for the blind is a task to try the metal of a Hercules. Before Paul Donehoo could teach a single piece to a single pupil, he himself must have that piece note by note at his finger's end. Then indeed did that sturdy memory stand him in good stead. But even it, gigantic though its powers were, was not enough.

Every new pupil meant a new piece. And new pieces spelt ever longer and wearier hours of grueling memory work. He found his brain seething with a myriad of notes and phrases. He was vanquished.

Believed though he was with the stress of his occupations, the mind of Paul Donehoo, music teacher, yet found time to harbor dreams of another and far different sphere of activity. At the very time the demands of his profession were the greatest he discovered that he had been stung by the bee of politics. Like his father before him, he determined to cast his lot with those most interested in municipal Atlanta.

No sooner had this idea flashed itself upon him than he acted upon it. Giving up entirely his career as a music teacher, the young man announced his candidacy. Hardly before setting foot on the course, he was victor in the race, and Fulton county for the first time in its history had a blind coroner.

Not only unique in the annals of Fulton county, it is believed to be unprecedented in any other county in the United States. Over in South Carolina today there is a blind coroner, but this man came into his office only after he had heard of Paul Donehoo and his success. Had written here to find if it was really true that one could be blind and a coroner as well, and learning that it was indeed possible had determined to try his chances, and had been successful. It was Paul Donehoo who taught his fellow prisoners of the dark a new lesson in success.

CAREER AS CORONER.

Some there are who doubt the wisdom of having a blind coroner. Yet even those cannot but admire Paul Donehoo's handicapped career in that capacity. The law allows a coroner to receive pay for not over 150 inquests a year. In not one county in the state are there more than a few inquests. Paul Donehoo's services he had an even 150 inquests, and every year since then the number has passed this mark.

One hundred and fifty inquests will more than prove the worth of a man possessed of every sense and faculty. For one without eyes they are doubly tedious and exacting. Yet Paul Donehoo has buckled to his task with zeal and has even surpassed many of his predecessors in the office in his painstaking efforts.

For one thing, he has made an innovation in the taking of evidence. Other coroners have depended on subordinates to take down the evidence in cases. Not so Coroner Donehoo. He is his own stenographer. He is his own shorthand writer. Even men who have served in his office and again watch him with admiration and even envy at each inquest. The witness tells his story, a long and rambling one, perhaps. At its conclusion the proceedings stop for a bit while Coroner Donehoo addresses himself to his typewriter, snaps a sheet of long paper through the holder, and wades into the keys with nimble fingers. The spectators eye him in appreciative silence as he hums through line after line, gives a last dash and tip at the spacer, and slips up the sheet of paper. On it is as clear and correct a transcript of the witness' testimony as an expert stenographer, taking shorthand notes at every stage of the story, could have spliced together. The memory has served him well again.

It was but a short time after that he had been elected coroner the first time—he is now serving his third term—that Paul Donehoo decided he could take a little time for other things. Some say that switching from music to law is like bridging the gulf between heaven and the other place, yet that is exactly what Paul Donehoo did.

HARDEST TASK OF ALL.

He entered the Atlanta Law school. Now indeed had that Herculean memory grappled with its twelfth labor. Music was child's play for his mind compared to the task of mastering the intricate, stick word for word of the law. References which other men in his class could look up again and again he was forced to hear once and file away in the index system beneath his skull. Briefs that others drew and read he had drawn that he might get them by heart. Yet did he succeed.

In two years' time the requisite course, he got his degree, was a full-fledged lawyer. He and a fellow student, went into the partnership which they still maintain.

Attorney Donehoo has set himself the hardest task of all. His place as a lawyer, well though he fills it, is beset with difficulties. Again must he turn to that memory for aid. His every pleading must be committed to memory. Others read them in court, he speaks them.

He has traveled alone from town to town about Georgia trying cases. But a few weeks ago he went to Cartersville, arriving there alone in the dead of night. Yet he was fully capable of taking care of himself, turned up at court O. K. the next morning, took his plea from his mind and told them to the judge, and won his case.

Student, teacher, coroner, attorney, all are but the notches which Paul Donehoo hopes will be cut deeper and deeper ones in the est before him is his ambition for the United States senatorship. Come when it may, he will find his memory backing him in the fight for it. This he asks himself: if Senator Gore, another blind man, could attain the goal, why cannot I?

THE SIXTH SENSE.

Sitting the other day in his office in the Third National bank building, Paul Donehoo declared that his memory was the greatest asset a blind man can have. There is another, he said, what might almost be called a sixth sense.

"When I am walking along the street," he explained, "I can feel a clay bank in front of me long before I reach out my hand and touch it. I can take a cane and tap every telephone post I pass just as I set opposite it. The other senses help me, especially in getting around the city. When I pass a drug store I can always tell by the odor coming out. "Some way with sounds. Many people have wondered how I could set aboard a street car without knowing what the sign said. Well, I know the exact schedules of every car in town. Here's my watch, closed case, with the crystal gone. I can feel and tell exactly what time it is. For instance, it's now six and a half minutes to 7 o'clock. If I was down

CHURCH AND CHECKS FOR BABIES

PLAY ROOM AT ST. PAUL'S METHODIST CHURCH WHERE LITTLE ONES ARE CARET FOR WHILE THEIR FATHERS AND MOTHERS ATTEND SERVICES

BABIES checked while you worship, is the plan recently adopted by St. Paul's Methodist church in order to make it convenient for mothers to attend services.

For a long time at St. Paul's, as at other churches, the question of how to do with the babies during the long services was a hard problem. Many of the mothers were not willing to leave the baby at home when the babies came to church, and the church itself was not willing to accept the responsibility of caring for the babies.

The mothers were wanted at church, and while the babies were so much wanted at the preaching service, the church wished to show its solicitude for the little folk, and the congregation put their heads together to think up a solution of the difficulty.

Mrs. Paul Evans and others of the young girls in the church, who were so much interested in the plan of checking the babies in the Sunday school room.

They say that they check babies at department stores while their mothers are shopping, so why not check them in the churches while their mothers are worshipping?

Their idea was so good that it was adopted at a very short while a complete nursery had been fitted out and its announcement was made. "All children welcome at our services," was the special care of them. "They can see if they are sleepy, they can play if they are playful and they can sing if they are musical."

Little cribs were installed, and chairs and tables, some toys were added to the equipment, and the nursery was ready to receive its little charges.

PLAN WORKS WELL.

"The plan works beautifully," said one of the women interested in the nursery, and as for Mr. Fraser, "I am delighted," he says, "at all times."

"The mothers think the arrangement idea. They are enabled to attend Sunday services feeling assured of the safety of their babies' safety."

The nursery is under the direction of the young people of the church, and every Sunday some of the girls plays games to the babies. They assist the old mammy in looking after the children's wants and aid in keeping the babies amused and quiet.

"Mammy" has a great stock of toys which she delights in the older children. She can tell some of the best stories as well as Uncle Remus himself, and she knows many tales the like of which have never been heard before except by some few who can remember diverting narratives told by their own negro maids.

The children think it is fine to go to church now at St. Paul's. They have a high opinion of religious things since provision has been made for them; and when they are clothed from head to toe "in Sunday go to meeting clothes," they are as eager in their participation as if they were going to a party.

The nursery takes care of from 15 to 20 children. The unique plan has proved satisfactory in every way, and the nursery is now being considered a part of the church as the preacher himself.

Indubitably it enables the church to carry out the injunction "Suffer little children to come unto me," and at the same time it removes all possibility of the preacher and congregation being weary and distracted by petulant baby cries.

CHURCH AND NURSERY.

That part of the church building reserved for a nursery is near to the auditorium where the Sunday services are held. But the thick wall prevents any noise from penetrating from the nursery to the auditorium.

In one part of the building are gathered the parents in Sunday worship; in another part are grouped together the children at play. Either the mother or the father can see and hear the stories which she has to tell, or using a play quilt, and using a play quilt, can make a noise, because "mammy" says "Not the least inspiring part of St. Paul's church on Sunday is the nursery with the little children and the old black 'mammy' knee listening to how 'Old Erer Rabbit' wittled all the other creatures with his downright glee."

"Mammy" takes no end of interest in "Erer Rabbit's" ingenuity, and the point of her stories usually is his wild and wild fancies. But incidentally she adds a moral about how "Erer Rabbit" was a very good boy, and how "your daddy" had a lot of awful things will happen to you. And the PLAN IS SUCCESSFUL.

It is surprising that other churches have not taken to the plan of "checking their babies." At St. Paul's the nursery has had complete success, and seemingly this plan would be equally as practicable elsewhere. Of course, there are few black "mammys" such as the one who tends to the babies of St. Paul's, and keeps them so interested that each is sorry when church has closed. But substitutes could be had.

St. Paul's, at first doubtful of the feasibility of a Sunday nursery, although it never doubted the need of a means by which mothers could be relieved of the care of their babies during services. Department stores had tried such a plan and had met with success. But the church was not sure that a nursery would fit in as a part of the Sunday services.

But the experiment was made. Plainly enough those mothers who were unable to leave their little ones at home, needed this assistance from the church. Several rooms were set aside for nursery purposes, toys were placed there, and last and most important of all the black "mammy" who is a genius at story telling, was discovered.

On the first Sunday that the nursery was opened, nearly a dozen babies were left there for safe-keeping during church services, and no one was better pleased than the babies.

Did they fret and long to see the sermon done and everyone upon his way home? Could anyone feel discontented with "mammy" telling those famous tales of the gulleful Mr. Rabbit? Why, you might as well suggest that Peter Pan is tiresome or that Hans Christian Anderson's tales are stupid.

The children felt that being checked during church services was an excellent and the number who were left in the care of the nursery began to grow larger upon each Sunday which followed. The babies looked forward to "mammy's" Sunday morning stories with as much interest, perhaps, a little bit more, than their parents did to the Sunday services.

In addition, mothers who otherwise might have been kept away by the care of the little ones, were enabled to attend church; and to feel, in doing so, that the babies were in the best of hands.

St. Paul's proved in a sentence that checking babies is an excellent and a practicable plan.

In addition to its large Sunday school, this church has a membership of 2,000—one of the largest in the Southern Methodist church—and also is a church without debt.

Francis Bowes Sayre, Man Who Is to Marry President's Daughter

FRANCIS BOWES SAYRE said the other day he didn't intend to get engaged to Miss Jessie Wilson, daughter of the president of the United States, but he had just been announced as her work for an instant. He returned at the office in the Criminal Court building early the next morning and was listening to the complaint of a woman who wanted her husband arrested because she had been deserted for the first time.

"Mrs. Louis and 'Jimmie' and half a dozen other girls dropped in to offer the congratulations. They were followed by a string of assistant district attorneys, and finally by District Attorney Hagerman. The telephone bell rang, with the result that Mr. Sayre didn't get much work done for the rest of the day.

Mr. Sayre's present position is that of assistant district attorney as soon as the position can legally be given to him. "You must have had some interesting and exciting experiences," it was suggested.

FACED STARVATION IN WILDS.

"Well, once I started out with Dr. Scoville Clark of Yale, to tramp across northern Newfoundland. It was only sixty miles further than we intended. After that everything was all right. "My chief interests have always been in Labrador and came down with him to the pack. We depended on the caribou that we were to shoot for food and then found that they had all migrated south by the time we got to the north of the pack. We made rough work of it and ran out of food. It looked pretty bad for a while, but we were married in November. I can't tell you any more details as to when we first became engaged or the exact date set for the wedding, as all that was in my mind was to get to the White House."

NAVY PRAISE FOR MISS WILSON.

It was suggested that perhaps the fact that both he and Miss Wilson were interested in social work might have had something to do with drawing them together.

"She is such a fine woman," came back the reply quickly, "that it would have been the same whether she was interested in that sort of work or not. I don't think that made any difference."

Then he picked up a newspaper in which a picture of his fiancée had been printed.

"I wish, if they must publish these pictures, that they would do her justice," he went on. "Not half of them show her really attractive side. It is only occasionally that I find one that looks really like her."

It was with difficulty that he was led to talk about himself.

"I was with Williams," he finally said. "In the class of 1908, and three years later was graduated from the Harvard Law school. I spent two summers with Dr. Bentall in Labrador and was much interested in his misadventure for study than I would in a settlement.

Mr. Sayre has traveled extensively. He has shot big game in the Rocky Mountains and has been all through South-eastern Alaska.

"I have not yet decided what field of work I will eventually follow. After I have been admitted to the bar I may take up active work as a lawyer or I may devote my entire time to social service. I expect to remain right here in this office while the present administration is in control."

"I don't expect to take any very active part in politics—beyond the duties which every good citizen ought to perform. I am normally a Republican, but I am a great admirer of President Wilson and voted for him at the last election."

Mr. Sayre said that he was also an admirer of Colonel Roosevelt. He is no interested in his present work that he is planning to remain at the office this summer without taking any vacation. In relation to his Episcopalism, while Miss Wilson comes from a Presbyterian family.

District Attorney Whitman was surprised to learn that one of his newest assistants had become engaged to Miss Wilson.

REMEMBERS RED.

"The last thing I remember, I think, is an old horse that I was driving behind the day before I got sick. As for the rest of the world, I can't say. I have just a faint recollection of colors. I think blue and green are the only ones that I know now. If you say that brown book over there the word 'brown' just means a word for distinguishing it in description to me. It doesn't convey any sort of picture to my mind. Red is really the only color of which I have a very vivid memory. I can't think I remember this only through fire. I guess I've got the best recollection of that old horse. It will go horseback riding. It's my favorite exercise, just as it was Senator Gore's."

"No," he said. "I haven't tried anything else yet except music, law and politics. Of course, I know about other things, many things that come up in practice, such as medicine and measurements in engineering cases. You see, I've made my rate what Hopper Alexander said were the requirements of a well-adjusted man. "One that knows everything about something, and something about everything."

musical. "Can you hear a piano and then sit down at the piano and play it?"

"He can do better than that," said his partner. "You can call off the names of the notes to him and he'll sit down and play them. Once he has memorized a piece of music thirty-five pages long. He started working on it at 4 o'clock Saturday afternoon, and by the same time Sunday afternoon could play it."

"Do you hear that, bell ringing down stairs?" said Paul Donehoo. The dull clang an engine bell came up faintly from the railroad tracks.

"If you'll go to the piano and strike it, you'll reproduce that sound."

"If you'll notice," he continued, "all the street car bells in this town are pitched in exactly the same tone, or within one or two notes of each other. I can recognize a good many of them and tell what cars they're on, and I can tell the cars by the ring of the push buttons, too."

To him the world seems to be a world of sounds, of smells, of touch of taste, with that other indefinable thing that some call instinct and some a sixth sense. Asked what the world looked like to him as he remembered it last, Paul Donehoo knew but faintly.

"The last thing I remember, I think, is an old horse that I was driving behind the day before I got sick. As for the rest of the world, I can't say. I have just a faint recollection of colors. PICTURE

IN the upper left hand corner of this page are photographs of Miss Brown reading to little Grace Lichtenwather. Miss Brown was for four years a member of the staff of the New York Library. But now she has returned to Atlanta to take up library work here. During her four years in New York she was much with the Italian and Jewish children, many of whom spoke no English. The work she did among these little ones of the immigrants was the work of an evangelist. But she knew that equally as important tasks were waiting here, and she determined to return to Atlanta, and, to continue the work to which she had devoted herself in New York city. Miss Brown has charge of the Oakland City branch library, and will direct the library at the Uncle Remus home. Following the plan which has been adopted generally in New York she will make club centers of the branch libraries. She will form the boys and girls in clubs, and by this means she will work for their betterment.

The horse which is shown in the photograph beneath those of Miss Brown and the little girl to whom she is reading, is the most unmanageable in the army stables here. He is a half broncho and has never grown used to the saddle.

THE gentleman in red who is feeding the lady with a spoon is one of the little children at the Whittier Mills Settlement home, and the lady herself is one of the little ones from the Home for the Friendless. Recently, the children at the Whittier Mills home were hosts to the children from the Home for the Friendless, and entertained them with ice cream and cake and many merry games. This is a picture of host and guest. Above them are two of the first scholars present at the opening of school.

IN the upper right hand corner of the page are Forrest Adair and William W. Irwin, of Wheeling, W. Va., who is Imperial Potentate of the Ancient Arabic Order of the Nobles of the Mystic Shrine. He visited Atlanta recently to arrange hotel accommodations for delegates who will attend the Shriners' convention. Mr. Adair is explaining to him just how ample this accommodation is. When the Shriners' meet in convention their members are so numerous that sufficient bed and board for all is a problem. But Mr. Irwin found that the means in Atlanta for the entertainment of the visitors will more than suffice.

The golfer is Frank Meador, one of the young players at East Lake. From among these youngsters future champions probably will come. No old golfer on the course plays in better form than these new boys, and none gives such promise. Children either take naturally to golf or find it tiresome, and Frank Meador is among those who has shown natural aptitude for the game. Every indication is that his game will improve steadily as he grows older.

A Most Noteworthy Sale of Real Laces at Slightly Above the Bare Cost to Import

More Real Laces than we have ever owned at lower prices than we have ever asked

A Remarkable Event worthy the earnest attention of future brides and every woman interested in real laces

—Real laces, like real pearls, are an investment—they never go out of fashion. And like other real and worthy things, real pearls and laces are seldom to be had under price. That we have assembled upwards of is significant of this store's achievements in the commercial world. Importers burdened with heavy stocks have learned to turn to Rich's to lighten their load. There, in a nutshell, you have the reason for this sale of real laces. Savings are an average third.

—Since few stores seldom carry more than $1,000 worth of real laces, our present lavish assortments permit us to make a display probably unprecedented in the South. We have at least from ten to twenty times the stock usually carried in any Southern store.

—The showing includes Princess, Lierre, Carriekmacross, Rose Point, Bruge, Filet, Duchesse, Applique and many other real laces. Choose from Edges, flouncings, galloons and motifs at $1.75 to $1.50 a yard. Neckwear, including collar and cuff sets, berthas and yoke pieces, at $7.50 to $100. Bridal Veils, $75 to $225. Scarfs, $75 to $450.

Chantilly & Shadow Flouncings at Half Price

To secure these beautiful and fashionable laces at the start of the season at half price is a rare bit of good luck. Our lace buyer, however, has a faculty of being around when the "plums" are being distributed. She got these laces when in New York—importers' close out lots, hence the halved prices.

Chantilly and shadow flouncings are in high vogue for dancing frocks, tunics and all manner of dress trimmings. These bewitching patterns are in black, cream and white. Priced at half and less.

$3.50 to $4.50 27-inch Lace Flouncings $1.89

$5.00 to $8.00 45-inch Lace Flouncings $2.50 to $3.75

(Ready at 8:30. Laces, Main Floor, Right.)

—These are Beauty's Busy Days. The cold spell has sent women scurrying for new clothes, new hats, new gloves and all the minor accessories. Where to make the best selections is no question to the woman who views the excellent assortments newly displayed in every department at Rich's.

An Unrivalled Showing of Fashionable Suits, Coats & Dresses at $25

Favors

In the stationary section we open a new department devoted to FAVORITS of all kinds for card and dinner parties and social affairs.

Included are place cards, French dolls, clever conceits in trees, grotesque and humorous figures, birds, bonbon boxes, etc. Many are our exclusive importation.

$1.25 Special 89c in Stationery

Splendid quality stationery with embossed motifs of pearl shield richly engraved with gold initial. Choice of 24 sheets of paper or 24 correspondence cards complete with envelopes to box.

(Main Floor, Center Aisle.)

$5 to $6.50 Silk Umbrellas $3.98

Success breeds success. In last Monday's sale we sold over 200 umbrellas. Struck by our activity, a visiting manufacturer wanted us to handle his line. As an inducement, he would favor us with certain odd numbers at a price. Done!

The umbrellas are spic and span new, with fine silk or angora, taffeta covers. Mission natural and ebony wood handles, trimmed with silver or gold. Also some handles entirely of silver or gold. Not an umbrella worth less than $5; many worth $7.75 to $6.50. Just 127 in all; choice $3.98. (Umbrellas, Main Floor, Right.)

$25 as Shown

$25 as Shown

The dress illustrated is developed of a rich crepe meter. White lace collar and vest as shown. Black and colors.

The New Sport Coats at $25

—Arrived too late to be pictured. As easy fitting as a man's coat, but essentially feminine. Rather loose fitting, in slightly cutaway models. About three-quarter length. Developed in chinchilla, boucle and diagonal chevrons. Large velvet or bone buttons, velvet trimmings, silk linings. Colors: blue, black, (Ready-to-Wear, Second Floor.)

The "Matinee" Bag

The Smartest Novelty Aboard Shown First, of Course, at Rich's.

The "Matinee" has met with instant favor abroad, and is featured as the smartest novelty of the season by the leading leather goods shops of Bond and Regent streets, London—as well as by the specialty shops in Paris.

The "Matinee," although so flat, is most conveniently fitted with extensive pockets for handkerchief and powder puff, an attached purse with double compartments and mirror.

Made of fine pin seal and mocha leathers and more silk. Various in black, tan, new blue, purple and navy. Vienna, the novelty leather maker of the world, first introduced these bags. These American copies are a third or more less. $6 to $10. (Main Floor, Center Aisle.)

A Superb Showing of New Hats

The Initial Showing of Distinctive Styles Secured by Our Buyer on His New York Trip

Like other good stores we have New York connections who send us the hat styles as they appear. Atlanta women, however, have ideas of their own. They possess individuality. The selections of a milliner a thousand or more miles away, therefore, are not always felicitous. Our millinery chief knows this. He is right here on the firing line. He fairly breathes the Fashion Atmosphere of Atlanta. His New York trips are timed to bring back the best hat styles suitable for Atlantians. Because he is just back from his last trip, the Millinery Department tomorrow will fairly bloom with the new styles. No, we can't describe them; some are only now in the shipping room being unpacked; others will not arrive until the following morning express. But all, or nearly all, will be ready for you to see Monday after 10 a. m.

First Complete Showing of the New Trimmings

The novelties of France, Switzerland, Germany, and England—they have just arrived.

Gold and silver laces, bands and edgcs, interwoven with original color harmonies. Metal laces in striking designs. Gay colored as you please, but not the garish, barbaric designs of the season just past. The same color tones, but shielded down and softened. Then there are beaded tunics, rich and colorful in fascinating patterns. Beige, drops and frogs, too. The drops in black and colors, fringed and corded and plaited with many a novel twist or turn. Frogs are all silk or silk and velvet combined. In all, it's the gayest show of trimmings Fashion has had for a Fall and Winter season. (Trimmings, Main Floor, Left Annex.)

Girls' Coats in Many Styles

Adapting the styles of their elder sisters, but with a girlish grace of their own, the new coats are decidedly the smartest we have ever seen.

Developed in new materials such as velour de laines, uncut velours, close shered zibelines, rich double-faced plaids, and boucles. The crushed shirred and tailored belts set well down on the coats are the newest features. Single and double-breasted models. The new "SPORT COATS" for juniors will be especially popular. Street colors are a sprinkling of pastel shades. Ages from 2 to 6 and 6 to 17. $5 to $25. (Girls' Coats, Second Floor.)

Neck Fixings for Milady

Fairy Frills of Lace & Silk in Charming Combinations

Neck fixings play an important role in the new fashion. And while the De Medici Collars, Ruffs and Frills dominate, there are equally promising styles in little frilled collars, new Fichus and styles that combine several clever ideas.

Medici Headings—chiffons and nets and shadow laces. All white, cream, black, black and white, white with black or colored stripes. All widths from the narrow edges and ruchings to the wide styles for ruffs. $5 to $15.50.

Medici Ruffs—quaint, even stately looking, with attractively picturesque. Black combined with white and colors, all black, all white, $11.25 to $22.50.

Medici Fichus and Collars—dainty concoctions of nets and chiffon and shadow laces. White or with a touch of color. $5 and $6c.

Exclusive Neckwear—Astride from style, these neck fixings are exquisite for they are of the most nets (many hand-embroidered), beautiful Valenciennes, shadow and other laces, sheer batiste, fine chiffon and silks. $1 to $5. (Neckwear, Main Floor, Right.)

A Queen of China Invented Silk 4500 Years Ago

Silk is an imperial fabric into which is woven the whole story of the world's progress. It has expressed fashion and mirrored history through all these centuries.

What Would that Old Queen of China Think if she could come tripping back to peep over our shoulder for a moment and see the exhibition we are making of the Magnificent New Silks for Autumn

A collection is here now—thousands upon thousands of yards, the most beautiful we have ever seen. No other such showing will be made anywhere in the entire Southland. (Silk Annex, Main Floor, Left.)

Milady's Necklace

Reveals the Influence of the Chinese Fashions

—East is East and West is West, and now the twain do meet.

—Since the picturesque fashions of the far East have decreed the cut of milady's gown, it is not surprising that China should color her taste in jewelry.

—It would be surprising, contrariwise, for these lovely ambers, dull jades, blood red carnelians and brilliant blue lapis stones add a piquant finishing touch to present modes. —The stones are made up into charming necklaces, in the quaint Chinese styles. If you have ever traveled through the Chinatowns of San Francisco or New York, and pruned similar pieces, you will appreciate these modest prices.

How to Keep Face Young and Attractive

(National Hygiene Review.)
The way to ward off old age is not to fear it, not to allow one's self to be oppressed by the dread of advancing years. Use only legitimate preventive and curative measures, and avoid trying experiments with preparations not endorsed by physicians. To keep the complexion young-looking and beautiful is to apply ordinary methods of skin care, using the most effective cream, washing it off in the morning. This gradually absorbs the wrinkles, and restores the complexion to its original beauty. One ounce of this cream, used daily, will remove all signs of old age. It is a simple, harmless preparation, made by dissolving an ounce of powdered squalite in a half pint which should be used as a face bath.—(Adv.)

MACON

MAISON—The list of debutantes and brides for this fall are rather limited, but the season does not promise to be very gay. Miss Myra Humphries, who has been in Europe for the past year studying and completing her education, will be introduced at a large ball early in November, at which Mr. and Mrs. Leon Dine will entertain, and later in the season she will be the honoree at several bridge parties and tea given by her mother, Mrs. Charles Humphries. In October will occur the marriage of Miss Josephine Jones and Mr. Will Miller, and contrary to all expectations this wedding is to be a quiet home event. Miss Jones is the only daughter of Mrs. Benjamin Jones, and ever since her debut has been considered one of the brightest and most attractive members of the unmarriageable set. She is a charming looking girl, slight and slender, with Auburn hair, brown eyes and a very gracious manner. Mr. Miller is a son of Dr. Twigg Miller, who came to Macon several years ago from America, a nephew of Judge A. L. Miller, and a younger brother of Mrs. Andrew Lyndon.

In November Miss Ann Shaw, one of the younger daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Chesley Shaw, Jr., is to wed Mr. Charles Richardson, a Montezuma man who makes his home in Macon. He has had splendid educational advantages and has already made for himself an enviable place. He, with Mrs. Harold Jackson and Sigman, are to erect a hospital in the city during the coming year. Miss Shaw is very beautiful and has a manner and character as fine and delightful as her lovely self.

In November also Miss Shirley Curry and Mr. Walter Chestnut are to be quietly married at Blandville, the home of Miss Curry's grandmother and grandfather, Senator and Mrs. D. H. Bacon. In all of its details this wedding is an exceeding simple and the ceremony witnessed by only the members of the two families, as the bride-elect is in mourning for her mother, who died last summer, and the groom has recently lost a brother. Miss Curry continues in her lovely self the happy heritage of two families long prominent in Virginia and Georgia. Cultured and clever and kind, she has been a belle in her own city and wherever she has visited. In October and November will see the awakening of interest in club affairs. A meeting has already been held of the National Macon chapter, D. A. R., at which all the officers and a large number of members were present, and it was decided to lease one of the rooms adjoining the tea room and hold for two weeks or two months a Christmas bazaar. The U. S. club will hold their next meeting in October, when Mrs. Walter Lamar returns from her trip to the States. She has been completely restored and, although she returned to her former hold the office as president of the Sidney Lanier chapter, she is fully prepared to resume her arduous duties as state president. So the first work of the local chapter will be to find her successor and to elect all other officers.

Fashion Decrees - False Hair Must GO

Fashion's decrees are frequently of an uncompromising nature, and yet we all bow to her mandates with humility. The late reaction to plain styles in hair dressing is decidedly gratifying to almost everyone. The prevailing idea seems to be simplicity, coolness and comfort.

The uncomfortable masses of germ harboring false hair and rats are, when possible, being cast aside, and the woman or miss, who cares to be strictly up-to-date, is relying upon her own natural hair for adornment. This means that more painstaking care must be exerted in saving one's own hair and in enhancing its beauty.

The Modish World Adopts Newbro's Herpicide

Long, thick, luxuriant hair is merely a question of care and cultivation. If your scalp itches, and the hair is dull, brittle, uneven and coming out with every combing, it is because its life is being destroyed by the presence of dandruff.

Such a condition demands the regular and intelligent use of Newbro's Herpicide. The best informed and most fastidious people everywhere are aware of this and rely upon the world's best-known scalp prophylactic to keep the scalp free from dandruff and to give to the hair that life, lustre and luxuriance which are so beautiful.

The odor of HERPICIDE is exquisite, the sensation of coolness and cleanliness a delight, and the visible results are frequently astonishing.

FOUR REAL GRIDIRON STARS WHO ARE WORKING FOR TECH BACKFIELD

Indications at Tech point to one of the fastest backfields that has ever represented the school. McDonald and Cook were in the backfield last season and know the Heisman system thoroughly while both Preas and Patton have had considerable gridiron experience and can rapidly get used to the one in use at Tech. All four players are unusually fast while both McDonald and Preas punt well. Right now this quartette is showing rare form and will be ready for the first game on October 4.

FOOTBALL'S BEST SEASON AT HAND

SCRIMMAGE WORK FOR GEORGIA CANDIDATES

Three Coaches Are Busily Engaged Each Afternoon With Big Squad

ATHENS, Ga., Sept. 20.—Since the opening of college the football squad has done nothing but go through a vigorous exercise under the direction of Howell Peacock. Every afternoon Peacock lines the candidates up across the field like a big open air gymnasium class and puts them through various exercises to loosen up the muscles that are so seldom used, but which have to be used in football.

Coach Cunningham took the variety squad into his management and during the course of the afternoon's practice he gave them the first few sets of signals and then came a spirited sparring practice for the rest of the afternoon.

Coach Peterson had charge of the second squad and Howell Peacock and "Cap" Peacock, last year's captain, had charge of the third and fourth squads. Cunningham will practice his men hereafter on Herty field, while Sanford and the other three squads, Coach Cunningham announced this afternoon that practically all of next week would be taken up in scrimmaging. These scrimmages will be the time to get a line on the new material that has turned up here.

Rowing Is Popular NEW HAVEN, Conn., Sept. 20.—Thursday's rowing on the Thames River is generally popular, the most popular of the Yale university next Thursday are not all heading for the Thames.

Elmer Brown, the ex-Montgomery hurler, did not last long in the box for the Dodgers. His wildness proved the cause of his dismissal.

Better Games On Gridiron This Season

Five Good Games Will Be Played in Atlanta This Season—Most of the Colleges Have Old Coaches

With the advantage of last year having mastered the wrinkles in the football rules the southern football coaches this year start out the season with the best of indications that the best football ever shown will be delivered to the fans.

Of the seven leading colleges in this immediate section five return the same coaches and they begin the season with a thorough knowledge of just what they have to contend with and just what to expect of their material.

While it is yet extremely early to make any forecast as to the class of teams that are to be turned out by the differing colleges, it is apparent that each eleven is to be at least as strong as usual while the prospects at many of the schools are much brighter than usual.

M'WHORTER IS AFTER PLAYER Coach Heisman Appears to Have an Abundance of Real Hefty Players

Never in the history of the Georgia School of Technology has as many like looking football players shown up on the same field as was the case at Grant field Saturday afternoon when Coach Heisman put the prospective varsity players through a hard scrimmage against a team composed of players who are at no time liable to out some regular from his place on the first squad.

Year after year the cry at Tech has been for material but until this September it has never shown up in sufficient quantities to allow Coach Heisman a fair chance to show his true worth as a trainer of a football outfit.

It has been long since the varsity team has been handicapped by the rawest and smallest of material and often has been forced to go into the school and practically force men to come out and try for the team, time after time taking boys who have never before seen a football and giving them a place on the varsity after he had drilled them a few weeks in the rudiments of the game.

It have four men in view, states the chief executive of the Lookouts, "and it might be added I am ever in communication with several of our players. Nothing will be definite until the world's series, however, as I will not say anything until I am sure that it is time and make a final decision."

CHAMPIONSHIP MEDAL IS A WARDEEN

Both Englishmen Who Were Defeated Last Young American, Admitting That They Were Outplayed

BROOKLYN, Mass., Sept. 20.—Francis Outmet, a small American school boy scarcely 20 years of age, today stands as the champion of the world in the United States, having won a spectacular match from Harry Vardon and 6 over 1.

Before the tournament began Vardon was 2 to 1 favorite. Even his closest had thought that he would lead it 5 to 4 that one of the Englishmen would bring home the money on his way to Vardon against Outmet alone.

The second game had been won, therefore, but naturally the Englishmen were not to be outplayed in retaining a championship for America, which was awarded to Outmet.

Outmet was hosted to the shoulders of those nearest him, while Claret after cheer rang out in his honor. Excited voices were heard in the crowd, as they had their bodies and hurried them to the front of the field to shake hands with the victor.

Outmet was a little plainly dressed, wearing a white shirt and dark trousers. He was smiling broadly, and his eyes were shining with the joy of his triumph.

Daubert Has Safe Margin In Hit Race

Ex-Southern League Star Now With Brooklyn Has Been Hitting Like Home Afire, Boosting Mark

The two Brooklyn players, Daubert and Yingling, still hold the top of the National League batting. Daubert is out to his credit and Yingling with 17. An Yingling is, however, only a pitcher, the real holder of second place in the batting, Philadelphia, with an average of .342.

In all there are twenty players in the National batting over .300 per cent. Here are the averages of all over .250 through the games of Wednesday, September 17:

MAC'S INDIAN Three Hitters Fighting Hard For Hit Lead

Cobb is Now in the Lead by a Very Close Margin-Speaker Has Climbed Rapidly the Past Week

Cobb, Jackson and Speaker. That tells the tale of the American League race for batting honors. Cobb has pulled away until his official average shows a seventeen-point lead over Speaker in third and a twenty-point lead over Jackson in second. Lajoie, of Cleveland, is climbing. He now has an average of .340.

It would really be some sport to see the old man finish among the three stars.

There are fewer .300 hitters in the American league than in the National League. Only sixteen are over the twenty mark in the younger league, while the National has twenty.

MACK'S INDIAN Next Season To be Better At Race Game

August Belmont Says Public Wants Racing Without Gambling and Owners Are Willing to Keep Stables

NEW YORK, Sept. 20.—August Belmont, chairman of the Jockey club and one of King Henry's greatest friends, predicts that next season racing will be an even greater success than it has been the past season. He declared that the revival of the sport has proven two things—first, that the public is willing to support the game without the betting ring, and secondly that there are any number of horsemen willing to make a racing stable without fear that by doing so they will lose money.

The public said a fine tribute to racing all season long," said Belmont. "We men and women go frequently to the track and sit in the grandstand with our wives and children. It shows that they are deeply interested in the sport. They want racing just as much as we do."

"This feeling of good fellowship and sympathy will accomplish what Frederick Johnson, when he offered to buy the track of the Wall against the view and race for a poorer man. That better matter ought me to be the struggle for the pure enjoyment of the race."

View and race for a poorer man. That better matter ought me to be the struggle for the pure enjoyment of the race."

What do you think about the racing next year? Mr. Belmont was asked.

"I am sure that there will be racing at Saratoga. You see, the public does not like to see the track and the taxes and assessments are so nothing compared with the Saratoga race track and Grandstand. The taxes of the two Long Island tracks amount to about $25,000 each. This is itself a great sum to any one."

"Will there be racing at all the tracks on Long Island next year, but there will be racing at Saratoga. You see, the public does not like to see the track and the taxes and assessments are so nothing compared with the Saratoga race track and Grandstand. The taxes of the two Long Island tracks amount to about $25,000 each. This is itself a great sum to any one."

Matty Likely To Hurl First

NEW YORK, Sept. 20.—Since the National commission of the world's series to begin it is probably in order to mention that the pitcher who is Christopher Mathewson, for the Giants, prospective champion of the National league and "Chief" Bender, expectant of the winner in the American league.

It will be a sort of continuation of the long-continued rivalry between the two pitchers. Mathewson has been pitching a few years longer than Bender, but "Chief" Bender, who still believes he has the edge on the best in the New York camp.

Back in 1905, when they were both comparative youngsters, they began their rivalry and they continued it in 1911, but the result was satisfactory neither to Mathewson nor to Bender. They are regarded as the mainstays of their respective teams, and the prospect of the expected clash between the Athletics and the Giants. They will both be proud for the struggle. "Matty" is going better than he has in some time. Bender's breaks and shots are still puzzling opposing batters. Under such conditions it is but logical to expect that it will be a battle royal in the opening chapter of the biggest event their respective teams will honor to support the standards of the National and American leagues.

"Matty" has pitcher against the Athletics before, and his teammates have already predicted that he will have them on a stand up by the time the first series there will be nothing to it but "Matty" and the Giants. But "Chief" is purely a New York viewpoint. Is there any reason to believe that Bender will not have just as much of an edge on the Giants?

He has pitched against "our boys" before and he knows how to use his arm, therefore why should he be any less a better hitter a curve and when they are on the inside and when he has them on the outside, also high and low?

At any rate, New York, too, regard Mathewson at all, is prone to over-estimate it will be some battle if these two pitchers should meet in the opening chapter of the Giants and the Athletics.

SNODGRASS MADE ME PLAY

NEW YORK, Sept. 20.—Fred Snodgrass is responsible for my being a professional baseball player. If it had not been for him I probably would have been out in California, yet playing a little ball, maybe, because I like the game, but I hardly think that I would have made a regular season. It was Snodgrass, you see, I am indebted to Snodgrass.

Mr. McEraw never saw me play ball, he took Snodgrass's word for it. That was a ball player and gave me the opportunity to make good. And when I first joined him I had always wanted to be going to make good. And when I first joined him I had always wanted to be going to make good. And when I first joined him I had always wanted to be going to make good.

When I did climb back into harness my hand was still weak and I had to live it off gingerly. It was rather a peculiar way in which the accident happened. Long before joining the Giants I had heard about "Cy" Seymour. I had always wanted to see him play. The day that he reported to me that day that I had my chance. It was at that time I was playing second base and he was playing pitcher. I was to be his pitcher. I was to be his pitcher. I was to be his pitcher.

When my hand was still beginning to mend, I was anxious to get back into the field. I was fearful that the time was rapidly approaching when the weathering process would begin and I feared that I would be branded as a poor pitcher. I was to be his pitcher. I was to be his pitcher. I was to be his pitcher.

There was one fellow in particular who was anxious to see me play. He was a ball player and gave me the opportunity to make good. And when I first joined him I had always wanted to be going to make good. And when I first joined him I had always wanted to be going to make good.

Chattanooga Grid Stars

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn., Sept. 20.—S. I. A. football will enjoy the greatest season of its career in Chattanooga this fall. Two things are responsible for this. First is that the Chattanooga-Sewanee, Tennessee and Tech. football has been a success. A local gridiron before in a single season. The second is that Chattanooga will have practically a Chattanooga outfit all week.

Local gridiron experts consider it almost a certainty that three men at least will be named to the Chattanooga team. The first is the mighty Patton, the second is Tully Johnson, and the third is Harry Hatcher.

That Patton will make the team of 1913 is a certainty. That he has never been a matter of doubt in the mind of the Chattanooga fans. He is a player of the war horse in action. He is already built as a second man. He has been built up to the reputation. The lad has the thing known as "vision."

GREATEST BALL CLUBS MAKE GOOD MANAGERS

Often Ball Clubs Develop Fast and Every One Gives Most of the Credit to the Manager

CHICAGO, Sept. 20.—Which is it—the manager of the ball team, the horse of the jockey? A great ball team makes a great manager, a great horse makes a great jockey. That is the argument advanced by those who recognize merit only as it is exemplified in success, and going on the principle that results count, it is a pretty tough argument to controvert.

It is true that great ball teams have made great managers. The history of the game during the past century has shown that. And it is equally true that many of these successful managers have been given prestige and reputation far beyond their deserts, as has been shown by their great teams being to crumble and fall to pieces as soon as they are strengthened the weak places.

There is one fact, however, which is the caliber of the old Chicago White Sox, manager under Anson, but when Anson permitted Clarkson and Kelly to go to Boston he failed to get his machine into the playoffs, and for twenty years the White Sox was without a baseball championship. Anson's machine was the most admired figure in baseball, but it was not until Anson's machine was broken up that the Sox started to go back. Here in the city of Chicago, it is the theory that a great team makes a great manager, and yet it is likely that with a manager less forceful than Anson the White Sox would not have been such a formidable machine.

In more recent years there have been instances of clubs "continuing" in one season and making their managers famous. The old Baltimore Orioles, for example, Cuts and the Detroit Tigers. By two-way trades and the addition of new players, the Baltimore, under the direction of Ned Hanlon, won the National league for three years. Hanlon was not a great manager, always trying to pull something off, and one of the greatest hitters of the game. He was not a great manager, but he had managed several teams, and it was not until he was transferred to Brooklyn, where Hanlon annexed two more championships. Those who are influenced by results alone will maintain that Hanlon did not make the difference between the Baltimore and Brooklyn, but that Hanlon did make the difference between the Baltimore and the Chicago Cubs, who finished third that season, would have to be figured on the following year. It is not proved, for in 1907 they went right on to first, making every year a winner, and being up a record of 116-36-76, which still stands as a record. It is time to stand for many years to come there were several years in which the honor of having contrasted the Cub machine, including the fact that the second and third years, the Orioles were in the series with the Athletics for the world championship. The Cub machine gave signs of cracking, but notwithstanding, Chance kept the money, and according to all reports he might have done still better if Fred Deal Murphy had not butted in. This is a common complaint among the fans' aspirations of at least two of the players, but a crisis in the team was averted, and eventually led to the deal which brought him to the New York American league club. Chance may have yet to demonstrate he is a great constructive manager, but he is deserving the skill he showed in the several years of his management in the west.

Though they finished sixth in 1908, the possibility of the Detroit Tigers was never mentioned. The team which followed the fortunes of the American league. This team was led by Bill Armour, one of the best judges of young talent in the business, who unfortunately lacked the ability to get out all there was in a team after getting it together. It was for three years the Detroit team were the champions of the American league, but lost out in all three attempts to win the world's championship, being beaten twice by Chicago and once by Boston. They stayed in the money in 1910 and 1911, but fell back to second place in 1912, with a winning percentage of only .411. When the Tigers were the champions Jennings was easily the foremost figure in the team. Jennings was not a manager, but he had shown nothing to indicate he was a constructive manager. He had done nothing with the minor league teams he managed, and Jennings made the Tigers a great ball club may be argued with a great deal of vigor from either angle, but the fact remains that the team has slipped in three years from the championship to sixth place, with little or no likelihood of immediate betterment.

All this does is pertinent for the reason that just now there seems to be a great amount of ownership of the clubs to make a switch in their management, but unless he has demonstrated his downright incompetence it might be wiser for the magnate to endure the manager he has than to fly to one who knows nothing.

Manager Bill Dahlen, of Brooklyn, who was the sensation in the early part of the season, is to be retired this fall. In favor of Harry Smith of the Newark team, probable person to be named in the International league this season. Smith has a time manager, the Boston Braves, who was released to Brooklyn, where he was signed as a backstop. The team to report to Brooklyn, and was later sent to Newark as manager of the International team, which is owned by the Brooklyn club, but which is managed by one of the best ball players in the game, but it is not clear that the team is not coming from President's Ebbels direct, and it is not clear that the team is not coming from time to time during the past few weeks.

President Hennessey of the St. Louis Browns, announces his intention of dropping George Stovall, who was very successful at the end of the campaign of 1911, and who Harry Davis was the manager of Cleveland were the winners in the Stovall was subsequently released to St. Louis and several months ago he started off well enough this season but the club was not doing so well. Stovall fell back to seventh place in the league, but what guarantee has Hennessey got that he will do better with the material at hand. With this in mind, it is not clear that Stovall should be a better man next year. Stovall should be a better man next year. Stovall should be a better man next year.

No Championship, Says This Club

Atlanta, Ga., September 20, 1913. Julian Murphy, First Sporting Editor Atlanta Journal, Atlanta, Ga.

Dear Sir: You published in your last Sunday's paper a long account of a baseball game between the First Baptist team of the Sunday School League and the Agona team of the Baraca League. You used a headline in your box over proclaiming the Agona city champions. The First Baptist team disputes this claim.

When the manager of the Agona team challenged the First Baptist, it was agreed that the two teams would watch strictly to the reserve lists. By reserve lists we mean the players constituting the respective teams at the end of the playing season of the two leagues. When the two teams appeared on the ground, the Agona team was the manager on Saturday, September 13, the manager of the Agona team submitted the names of a man he proposed to pitch, who had not been connected with the Agona team in any way prior to that time. He was strictly reserved, but he could not pitch this man, as he was not on their reserve list and because he had already pitched for them against the First Baptist in a city championship game prior to that date.

Under the circumstances, we cannot settle the city championship in a sportsmanlike manner. We cannot settle the decision to the fact that the Atlanta First Baptist team on Sunday School League championship list. Since the close of the Sunday School League championship list, the Atlanta First Baptist team on Sunday School League championship list. Since the close of the Sunday School League championship list, the Atlanta First Baptist team on Sunday School League championship list.

Under the circumstances, we cannot settle the decision to the fact that the Atlanta First Baptist team on Sunday School League championship list. Since the close of the Sunday School League championship list, the Atlanta First Baptist team on Sunday School League championship list.

Many Good Managers Have Fallen for This Stuff and Right Now Some Are Out of Running for Pennants

NEW YORK, Sept. 20.—A number of blasted boxes rising up in the wake of two pennant races as monuments to slow theories offer a most substantial and convincing argument against the practice of depending on two pitchers as the mainstay in an effort to win without a permanent or a high place in the final ranking of the clubs.

This has been a somewhat remarkable season for the number of clubs that tried to survive the full distance of the pennant race with a permanent or a high place in the final ranking of the clubs. The Question of Price Let's assume that you do "look around". The first thing you discover is that the Studebaker "SIX" is in a price division all by itself. You've got to begin several hundred dollars higher up in your hunt for a car comparable with it. Check One for the Studebaker. The cost of the tire upkeep lies mainly in these three shortcomings—Rim-cutting—Blow-outs—Loose Treads. We spend fortunes each year—spent by no other maker—to minimize these costs. We save tire users in these ways many millions of dollars. And Goodyear tires, on this account, outsell any other. Note now how we do it.

JACKSON CANNOT RANK WITH CLOUTER BROTHERS

Old-Timers Decide Joe's Hit at Polo Grounds Was Not Longest

NEW YORK, Sept. 20.—From all of the evidence submitted in the case it has been decided that Joe Jackson, the slugging outfielder of the Cleveland club, will not, among other things this season, be credited with making the longest hit in the history of the game.

The hit might have got into the books as a record had it not been for a number of old-time fans and ball players with keen recollections of events that occurred back in the dark ages of the game.

They pulled from the month's records the achievement of Dan Brouthers back in 1874 to show that Jackson was not even in the running for the long-distance hitting championship.

Brouthers, who at the time he wrote the record into the books, was a member of the famous Baltimore Orioles and a teammate of John McGraw, William H. Reardon, Hughey Jennings and several other famous athletes of that time.

and he is substantiated by John McGraw, Hughey Jennings and Brouthers himself. My own estimate is that the ball went 1350 feet from the plate before it stopped rolling. The ground was 100 feet deep from the home plate to the fence where it crossed over, and the ball was about 100 feet higher than the ground. It was a long, low, swift, flat hit—not a sky ball. Then it went and a half city blocks, bounding two and a half city blocks, bounding city state more than 300 feet.

Brouthers hit stands in the records, but there is one told of by baseball men that makes it look like a top fly. According to this story a player in the old National League grounds at Boston hit a ball over the left field fence in a game one day. The railroad tracks are just outside the fence. The ball fell into the coal tender of a passing train bound for Philadelphia and went all the way to the Quaker City before it stopped. That is generally credited with being some hit.

WESTERN FOOTBALL COACHES OUT TO DEFEAT THE EAST

CHICAGO, Sept. 20.—Preparing for a campaign of football more than ever since the introduction of the forward pass and adoption of the "reform" rules, coaches and players at nearly all the leading institutions of the central states today formally began practice. A rule of the western conference forbids real practice until the 20th, and many schools not in the "Big Nine" follow this law, but when the mentor assumed charge it was found in many cases that prospective candidates already had becomeed joints used in putting.

The season promises to be equal in interest to that of last year in this section of the country. The title of conference champion, which generally carries with it the championship west of the Alleghenies, probably will be decided only after a hard series of games. The pre-season prospects say it seems likely to go to Minnesota, Chicago or Wisconsin, with the legends through the prestige of their victorious careers of 1912 and through the return of more than a dozen of last year's varsity squad, considered favorites.

Minnesota's coach, orientator of several plays that have won fame for him and the northerners, it is said will try to develop the new game to an extent that will make his team invincible. Northwestern students hope this season to have their team attain the success for which it was once famous. At Chicago and Minnesota, Yale influence will be felt in planning the Purple campaign, for Glenn Burdener, member of the New Haven squad for two years, has been added to the coaching staff.

Inter-sectional games are important, since Michigan's contests with eastern colleges can be called inter-sectional, and Coach Vost is already planning the particular play for the Quakers. St. Louis university has an important inter-sectional game with Syracuse on Thanksgiving day. Coach Dennis has had a few men at work nearly a week and reports from St. Louis indicate that he has several likely candidates. One of them, James O'Neal, is a senior in the college, but until the other day it never occurred to him that he might play football.

Notre Dame's team will play the West Point cadets November 1. It will be a severe test for Notre Dame but there is little doubt that South Bend eleven will do itself credit.

Straight Heats Win

DETROIT, Sept. 20.—Seven events, including a free-for-all pace which Braden Direct won in straight heats, brought the Grand Circuit harness meeting at the State fair to a close. All of the races except the 2:17 trot were captured in straight heats. That went to the limit and was finally won by Dr. Thorne.

For the first time since Monday the sun shone. Though the track was slow, Braden Direct won the first heat of the free-for-all in 2:04 3/4, and the last half mile was run in 1:09 1/4. Walter Co-hato and the black horse record neck and neck to the finish. Dr. Thorne won the deciding heat of the 2:17 trot by inches from George Rex.

Says Southeast Has Been Particularly Fortunate in This Respect This Year

E. L. Adams, president of the E. L. Adams company, is of a similar opinion to that expressed by A. T. Campbell, president of the Retail Grocers and Butchers' association, that one of the main reasons for the high price of food stuffs produced here has been the recent government business in Georgia, heretofore.

ON THE FIRING LINE WITH THE COMMERCIAL TRAVELERS

SAMPLES & SHIPMENTS

L. L. McDaniel, of the Rice & Hutchins sales force, is reported to be going good in his new territory, southern Alabama. He has only been in that field for two weeks, but orders are coming in as if he had known the trade for years. His former territory was the southern end of that state.

C. A. Smith, with the A. M. Robinson company, will be on the firing line all of next week. He spent a good part of last week in Atlanta looking after home trade.

J. L. Williams, Florida man for the Rice & Hutchins Co., is taking the weekend day off at Pensacola. He has just finished a week of unusually good business.

J. D. Robinson, of the A. M. Robinson company, left yesterday for a business trip to New York, to be gone about ten days.

R. J. Bates, the J. K. Orr company firing line, was delayed twice within two days that week by wrecks abroad, being tied up for several hours both times.

R. B. McWhorter, Georgia road traveler for the Rider-Williamson-Wright company, was in Atlanta yesterday, accompanied by William McWhorter, also four.

J. L. White, with the A. M. Robinson company, landed an opening bill (house sale) the other day of $1,500.

E. H. Jones, after a three weeks' trip in Alabama, is home again at the Debe & Vay Co. and the only one of their travelers here for this week-end. The old soldier is having a good season.

MRS. BROWNLEE IMPROVES AFTER SEVERE ILLNESS

Mrs. F. S. Brownlee, wife of P. S. Brownlee, the well-known traveler, was operated on at the Georgia Baptist hospital last Tuesday and was seriously ill for a time, but is now rapidly improving. The hundreds of friends of both herself and her husband will be glad to learn of her speedy convalescence.

TODD WILL SPEAK AT GIDEON MEETING TODAY

At the Gideon meeting this afternoon in the assembly room of the Ashley hotel, A. P. Todd, the state president, will deliver an address. There will be the usual good musical program. The public is cordially invited to be present. The Georgia division is now tied with Texas in the membership race, according to the August report. The Georgia Gideons captured the membership banner last year and are determined to do so again, notwithstanding the good work being done by the Texans.

USE OF STEEL OFFICE EQUIPMENT HAS EXPERIENCED WONDERFUL DEVELOPMENT

Greatest Growth Has Been Within Last Five Years, Reduces Fire Risk to Minimum and Possesses Many Other Advantages

"This is pre-eminently the day of metal office furniture," said A. M. Crowder, the new sales manager of the Horne-Candler company, the office equipment dealers, who is shown in the center of the picture above, and who will devote himself especially to the sales of this line of goods.

"Metal furniture made its advent in the commercial world about ten years ago. At first its start was slow, later it began to gain momentum and within the last five years it has experienced a wonderful development. It is rapidly supplanting wood in the equipment of all progressive business men.

"Its cost five years ago was considered high, but this has been largely reduced and in the next five years will be brought down to that of really high class wood equipment. The cost now is only 25 per cent more than wood and when the lasting quality of steel furniture and its practical elimination of fire risk is considered, the cost is so much below that of wood.

"The great point of superiority of steel over wood is the fact that steel furniture is unaffected by fire. It is the fire risk alone that to a minimum. A fire which recently occurred in one of the largest fireproof office buildings in the east proved this superiority. The building was built throughout of steel, granite, marble, concrete and brick and was known to be as nearly fireproof as an office building could be. The building withstood the fire but all the wood furniture was destroyed and it was only the steel desks, files and cabinets that withstood the flames and preserved valuable business letters and records.

"Steel furniture gives the business man a sense of security, the night before, which is much more profitable than that which the morning after.

"The combination of safe and cabinet is one of the important products of steel furniture. These are made in all sizes to suit the convenience of business men. The largest and also the smallest size manufactured are shown in the picture. Between these there are many other sizes. The large size is a recent production and is designed to take the place of the old time vault, and is 72 inches high, 41 1/2 inches wide and 18 inches deep. All the cabinets are equipped to a very high degree, though of light construction and may be placed anywhere with small expense. The cabinets are proved so that the interior may be adjusted to any requirements of modern business. The business man may thus keep his records and papers in a systematic manner. In the cabinet may be placed documents, files, check files, card index drawers, vertical letter files, plain shelves, roller shelves, etc.

"Another important feature of the steel filing cabinet is that it has made rapid progress that it has now secured the endorsement of the national board of fire underwriters and is manufactured under their supervision and bears their label of certification.

"The United States government has realized the importance of the superiority of steel over wood, for within the last two years it has spent thousands of dollars in the purchase of steel furniture and filing cabinets for use of all of the departments at Washington and for its consular offices abroad.

Thanksgiving Oats

Thanksgiving Brand Rolled Oats differ widely from other Rolled Oats on the market as they are prepared by a special process which destroys the indigestible elements so that they are especially recommended for children, dyspeptics and all members of the household, to whom health and strength are the first consideration.

By this process they are partially prepared so that it takes less time to cook them than other Rolled Oats. They are roasted, dried and sterilized and by this special roasting process they gain a delicious nutty flavor.

WHAT'S WHAT IN THE SEASON'S MILLINERY STYLES AND MATERIALS

Wholesaler Talks Interestingly of the Trend of Fashion in Women's Headwear - Ribbon Leads as a Trimming, Veils Will Be Much in Vogue, as Hats Will Not Be Overlooked With Trimming-Many Turban Shapes Are Being Shown

By ERNEST L. BROWDER, OF THE ERNEST L. BROWDER CO.

Broadened crowns, velveteens, and plain corduroys are a feature in costumes for young people, and the same goods will be demanded for headwear. Velvet plush is the favorite at present, but hat-makers' plush or silk-clothes, as some call it, are very dressy and will sell well following the reports from Paris that patent leather is used to some extent as a substitute for plush and corduroy for hats. American manufacturers have introduced this material in the better grade of hats, while old cloth, such as it is used for table covers, is used as an imitation patent leather and is made up into hand-made or ready-to-wear hats of the cheaper grade, and so on. There is a wide choice and every woman can secure a hat to please her fancy without very much stretch for it.

There is a great variety of materials used as trimmings for the hat of the season, to be found everywhere, not only among manufacturers but among the jobbers and specialty houses. Black velvets in combination with moiré will be extensively used. Velvet ribbons are always good. New silks, plain and artistically printed with artistic designs are used as bands, bows and other trimming effects.

In fancy feathers, canary is exceedingly strong, likewise geese, which is used as well as in bandeaux, with its long wandling erect. Peacock is being used largely, not only in its original form but having the eye plucked out and also being burnt and made into imitation alpacas.

POPULAR LACES.
Chantilly lace supercedes all other laces in millinery trimming. Veils will be largely used because the hats are not to be overloaded with trimmings, but will give an opportunity for putting a veil on stylishly and also give the effect of using different veils on one hat. Pattern veils will be popular. Extreme novelties are on the market, but modified shades of brown, blue, gray, taupe, black and lavender shades are among the favorites. Tinsel and colored laces are very much in evidence and net laces with fancy borders are one of the features of the season.

Choker roses made of narrow ribbon or piece goods are among the novelties of the season. They are square petals and square foliage made solid and sometimes with two or three petals in one flower. They are exceedingly fresh, not at all natural, and yet at the same time may be popular because of its arrangement.

Fur trimming is employed with great prominence by all prominent designers in connection with velvet, plush, broad and even chiffon and lace.

Fish heads as a trimming and there are no signs of its popularity being prominently in the garments. Broadened ribbons all have a great vogue, and are also to be seen in exceptionally beautiful. Pame velvet ribbons are also to be seen, and some of these have a rough plush effect which is very good. Black and white strongly featured. Tall ostrich arrangements are the fad of the moment. Chapeau and Bonnet loops are a conspicuous feature in dressy fall millinery. Wings are used in all sizes and colors and in very great quantities. A novel brim finish is introduced by outlining the brim edge with the long straight feather fancy used in trimming. Flow-bands and trimmings. Pompadour, brown and torch motifs in all trimming materials.

Hats are medium and large, manufactured as abundantly at the left side and trimmed with a high amount of shawl, paradise and geese, and the new peacock alpacas, which is said to be very feathers of the peacock, and the designers of the manufacturers say they cannot reproduce it. Many fancy effects are noted here in vogue, and tiny stars of paradise are used effectively in trimming a brim or a crown in various artistic ways.

Morris Croft, of the Hahn-Malone company, spent the week in Atlanta looking after home sales.

ON THE FIRING LINE WITH THE COMMERCIAL TRAVELERS

SAMPLES AND SHIPMENTS

ON THE ROAD AND IN THE OFFICE WITH ATLANTA'S COMMERCIAL TRAVELERS

F. H. Glasgow, city salesman for the Consolidated Paper company, is delighted over the results of the week's business. "If business was any better," said Mr. Glasgow, "I don't think I would be able to stand it."

The "tie" at Palm & Stamps Saturday was J. J. Owens, W. L. Bailey and E. E. Smith.

J. R. Almond, of the E. L. Adams company, will take over part of the territory formerly covered by W. A. Lawson, who has resigned from the sales force of the Adams company. Mr. Almond's additional territory will include that between the old and new lines and N. railroad.

Traveling salesmen are not the only ones who would be supposed to know Atlanta. Two of these sample case preachers, Mr. J. L. Johnson, of the Dunsmuir-Lewis-Johnson company, and Mr. G. G. Woodall, whose week day occupation is setting orders for the Ward-Truitt company, but who is a regularly ordained minister and like "Thee" company, are as well known for his activities in preaching the gospel as in selling goods.

Cliff Edwards, of Palm & Stamps is now working along with the question of an amendment. It was thought this matter had been settled by the legislature, but Mr. Edwards thinks not. He held a lengthy conference with Mr. Stamps last week in his outfit.

"If business keeps up as it has been some this month, September will prove the biggest month in our history," is the way E. L. Adams, of the E. L. Adams company, sizes up the present situation.

E. E. Rhyer, of the Consolidated Paper company, is on a trip through Alabama, and will return to Atlanta, H. E. Jewell, of the same company, has not over his recent illness and is still making good at his new job on the coast.

Mr. Hall of Macon, former traveler for the Mountain City mills of Chattanooga, is now with the Lexington Roller mills, selling Henry Clay flour. Mr. Hall will soon move to the city where he will have his headquarters.

A. T. Collins, of Macon, better known as "The Hammer" will start the first of October on the road for E. Steinhart & Sons, of Savannah, and will cover his old territory for them. Mr. Collins is one of the most popular and effective knights of the grip in Georgia.

"They're regarding Georgia as the brightest spot in the country," says W. C. Barnwell, of the Hagan-Malone company, recently returned from New York and referring to the business situation here by the eastern mill agents and others he called on in this state. "They are having a lively season on cotton goods with the market still rising, and they are in some quarters that there will be a shortage in certain classes of goods."

L. A. Shirley was a pleasant visitor at the Firing Line office Friday en route to his home at Macon from a sales trip for his company, the E. L. Adams company. "Sales have been fine," said Mr. Shirley, "and I have seen some of the best cotton goods in Georgia. During my recent trip I have seen some of the best cotton goods in Georgia. During my recent trip I have seen some of the best cotton goods in Georgia."

Charles C. Pratt, of the A. J. Long & Co. Grocery company of Macon, is now on the road for his company selling cigars.

If H. D. Thompson, who has recently joined the sales force of the Hagan-Malone company to work nearby territory, proves the heavyweight of sales that he is in Atlanta he will lead the

LEWIS DID QUICK WORK ON OPENING BILL ORDER

F. P. Lewis, of the McClure Ten Cent company, when asked to make a report of himself for the past week, made it out like this: "Monday I left Atlanta at 1 o'clock in the company with Mr. King, our destination being Eberstone, Ga., one of the best business towns on the Seaboard road."

"We arrived there at 12 o'clock, and by 1:30 had rented a building, and left there at 2:45; reached Atlanta at 4:45, this morning. I had written up a $4,000 stock, which will be opened and the sale conducted Saturday, September 27."

Tuesday Mr. Lewis sold an opening bill for Lithonia. On Wednesday one for Marietta, Ga., and on Thursday a $1,000 opening bill for Sparta, Ga. On Friday Mr. Lewis left for Tifton, Ga., to conduct a sale for the B. T. Still Five and Ten Cent company, who has been handling the McClure line in that section for two years. Mr. Lewis expects to get back to Atlanta Sunday morning and spend the day in bed, as, says, some one will want an opening bill on Monday.

SALESMAN INVENTS "TOWEL SACK" WHICH BECOMES "SACK TOWEL"

idea Is Boosting Sales of Company's Flour - Popular Traveler's Scheme Proves a Go With Housewives

As an inventor as well as a salesman, L. L. McCallan now makes a bid to stand in the limelight before the Firing Line.

Mr. McCallan, of the W. S. Duncan company, is the inventor of the "Towel Sack," which is a sack of flour, after which it becomes the "sack towel."

This sack means that hereafter the housewife who finds the house short of towels has only to make up enough biscuit for supper each night to empty a sack of flour and within a week she will have a half dozen new towels free of cost—great scheme.

The Duncan salesman don't claim the credit. The customers are emptying the sacks at one taking but they are finding their sales on this brand of flour increasing at a rate that shows the scheme is making new customers for the product. The sacks are made of regular heavy towel material.

L. L. McCallan never has run at a "sack race" on sales, however. He is not hampered by any hobby from making his usual good amount of sales on the general line of Duncan company stuff, week in and week out.

"His little girl" twice, now several months old, of course, came near diverting attention entirely from business for a while but it was just after this diverting matter that he "began back" with the idea that is running up the Duncan company flour sales to record figures.

Mr. McCallan travels the Central, the West Point and the Southern roads south of Atlanta and has worked this same territory for fifteen years for W. S. Duncan. He is popular up and down the road for his jovial nature and a first rate salesman who holds his customers and adds many new ones every year.

L. L. McCallan, of the W. S. Duncan company, and his convertible flour sack.

Co. bread into headquarters Thursday with orders for two carloads of his company's products from Jacksonville, Fla. L. C. Miller sent in orders for 500 cars from Middleboro, Ky.; W. R. Simpson came in with a car order from Rome on Wednesday.

Mr. Ferrat, representing Stonebeck Brothers, makers of Cocoa and cocoa, was working the city trade last week with the H. L. Singer salesman.

"We are now processing on our third car of Georgia-raised pickles from Lawrence, Ga.," said G. C. Jones, president of Jones Bros. & Co., who never seen finer pickles made anywhere. "We are entirely delighted over our experiment with home-raised cucumbers."

"We sold last week seventy-five quarter-barrel kegs of fresh Derby's pig feet," said Donald McKie, of the H. L. Singer company. "I think that you may say that J. L. Singer has already been out to sample them at all the places of liquid refreshment. I certainly don't blame him for this product is delicious."

A. E. Brannon, of Jones Bros. & Co., was away last week on a visit to his relatives at Louisville, Ky. He will be back at his office Monday.

"They are hankering after good things to eat in my territory now," said Joe Walker, traveler for the H. L. Singer company, "and the best thing about it is they are buying them. Money is getting plentiful and trade is brisk."

W. H. Stents, manager of the John Deere Flour company in Atlanta, who has just returned from a brief visit to the company's factories and headquarters at Moline, says his company is laying plans to handle the biggest quantity of flour in the South this year. He has ever had through their branch here.

J. L. Garner, a new addition to the John Deere, a company shipping department, the increase in the force being required to handle the heavy business.

W. W. Scott brought into town recently four cases of fine cotton cloth in the southern end of the state—his first car since the merchant convention. "Cotton gins are running night and day everywhere," says the traveling liner are going to "mop up" in the next six months, he says.

The Brown, Perryman & Greene company sample cases are getting out with their spring line. John Jenkins was first out, leaving for Florida several days ago. L. E. Peterson and W. A. Riley started calling on their customers last week, and both declare they have the best line yet and are going to do a big business. C. R. Hubbard,
